7 JAP WARSHIPS SMASHED

3 CRUISERS, 2 CARRIERS, 2 BATTLESHIPS BLASTED

Kure and Kobe Hit in 1st Around the Clock Bombing

GUAM, July 25 [Wednesday]—(AP)—American and British carrier planes heavily damaged two Japanese battleships, two aircraft carriers, and three cruisers in coördinated attacks on Japan's great Kure naval base and off Shikoku Island yesterday.

Adm. Nimitz also disclosed that cruisers and destroyers moved close inshore early this morning and shelled a seaplane base and an air field on southwestern Honshu. An hour later, he issued a second bulletin reporting that American and British carrier planes renewed their attacks on Japanese warships and other military targets at dawn today.

Night fighters took up the attack at dusk yesterday and hit the Kure and Kobe areas in continuous sweeps over those vital military bases thruout the night, an Associated Press correspondent aboard a 3d fleet warship said. It was the first around-the-clock bombing of Japan ever launched by the fleet, he said.

Nimitz Lists Results

Nimitz did not report the strength of the assaults but gave these results of yesterday's blows at Kure by American carrier pilots:

The battleships Ise and Hyuga heavily damaged.

One large aircraft carrier damaged.

The British, attacking to the north, damaged a Kobe type escort aircraft carrier north of Takamatsu on Shikoku Island. They also damaged two freighters near Suta, on the Shikoku coast, and sank a small cargo vessel, three luggers, and four junks in the inland sea.

For the first time in the 15 days Adm. Halsey's fleet has prowled Japanese home waters the enemy put up aerial resistance. Flagship reports said 18 Japanese took to the air. Nimitz reported eight were shot down by American pilots. There was no indication that any Japanese aircraft got near the fleet, however.

Japs Lose 64 Planes

A total of 64 enemy aircraft were destroyed or damaged by the coördinated raids, in which some American planes were sent against Kure and Kyushu air fields from which the Japanese had staged their kamikaze [suicide] attacks.

The Japanese put up extremely heavy anti-aircraft fire as well as some fighter plane opposition. Nimitz made no mention of American plane losses.

Altho official announcements were not exact, the number of allied planes over Japan yesterday included more than 1,000 British and American carrier aircraft, at least 625 Super Forts, 93 P-51 Mustangs, and 40 to 45 Corsairs.

B-29s Cause Heavy Damage

"Heavy damage" to seven industrial targets of the Osaka-Nagoya industrial area by the B-29s was reported by the 20th air force. Only one B-29 Super Fortress was lost in the 4,000 ton raid, but 180 of the big planes landed at Iwo en route home because of battle damage or dangerously low fuel. Pilots said anti-aircraft fire was the heaviest they ever had seen over Osaka.

Between the two days' aerial assaults, Rear Adm. J. C. Jones Jr., took a small force of cruisers and destroyers to the southwestern tip of Honshu to bombard Kushimoto seaplane base and Shionomisaki air field, a radio station and other military installations in the vicinity of Kushimoto. They encountered and sank a small ship.

ENEMY'S FLEET IS HELPLESS; JAPAN DOOMED: HALSEY

San Francisco, Cal., July 24 (AP)—Adm. Halsey, boss of the current fleet-aerial attack on Japan, broadcast from his flagship off Japan tonight that "the Pacific fleet has opened a new phase of naval warfare—the final plunge into the heart of Japan."

"I said after the farflung battle for Leyte gulf that the Japanese fleet was beaten, routed, and broken, and nothing has happened since then to change my opinion," Halsey said.

Jap Navy Helpless

"What is left of the Japanese navy is helpless, but just for good luck we will hunt them out of their holes."

Big naval guns inflicted tremendous damage on the northern steel plants, which had been safe before even from B-29s, Halsey said.

"In the northern part of the empire carriers have already wrought almost unbelievable destruction of enemy shipping, industry, and transportation," he added.

Nips Are Stupid

"If the Nips do not know they're a doomed nation they're even more stupid than I think they are.

"My only regret is that the ships do not have wheels so we could chase them inland after we drive them from the coast."

Cooler Today After Year's High of 99.4°

A sudden thunderstorm broke Chicago's four day heat wave this morning after a torrid day yesterday in which the mercury climbed to 99.4 degrees. The storm followed an earlier prediction of cooler temperatures for today with maximums of 78 near the lake and 83 elsewhere.

First signs of relief came with scattered showers around 11 p. m. By midnight the rain came down more generally, accompanied by heavy lightning. Twenty-five structures were hit by bolts soon afterward. The rainfall was particularly heavy on the north and northwest sides and in suburban areas. By 1 a. m. the temperature had dropped to 76 from a midnight reading of 84—a decrease of eight degrees.

Yesterday's heat, which was general over the country, sent lagging corn shooting upward as much as 4 inches in 24 hours, and gave Chicago its fourth successive day of 90 degrees or higher.

All-Time High Was 104.8

Yesterday was the hottest July 24 since 1940, when the thermometer reached 101. The all-time July 24 high was 104.8 in 1934, which also was the all-time high in Chicago. Also, yesterday's 99.4 was the warmest since July 27, last year, when the temperature reached an even 100.

The heat sent an estimated 364,750 persons to park and city beaches and nearly 40,000 children to park district wading pools.

Miss Congo Gets Ice Cream

In the Chicago Zoological park, at Brookfield, keepers showered animals. One keeper, Sam Parratt, fed ice cream to Miss Congo, a gorilla.

In spite of liberal use of water in the city, pressure was kept up, but Public Works Commissioner Hewitt asked police to arrest violators of sprinkling ordinances.

Chicago's 99.4 temperature was nearly equalled by most suburbs, but exceeded by Joliet and Elgin, each reporting 100 degrees. Moline, Ill., Kansas City, Mo., and Burlington, Ia., reported 102. Wisconsin Indiana, and Michigan all reported readings near 100.

The nation's highest temperature was in Phoenix, Ariz., where it was 105.

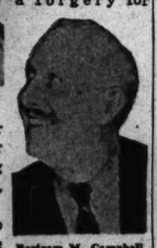
ADMITS A CRIME BROKER PAID FOR

Forger Clears Man who Served 3 Years

New York, July 24 [Special]—A man identified by government agents as one of the country's "smoothest" check forgers today admitted in federal court that he was guilty of a forgery for which a former Wall st. broker was sent to Sing Sing in June, 1938.

A. D. L. Thiel



Bertram M. Campbell

The man who confessed the crime is Alexander D. L. Thiel, 57, who was sentenced to four years in prison on another forgery charge by Federal Judge Arthur D. Healey. Thiel's forgeries since 1930 in various parts of the country were estimated to have netted $480,000.

Victim Gained Parole

The innocent victim of Thiel's activities was identified by Assistant United States Atty. John J. Donovan Jr. as Bertram M. Campbell, 57, who lives with his wife and three children at Floral Park, N. Y. Campbell was paroled after serving three years and four months of a 5 to 10 years sentence. He has been working as a coal dealer's clerk being unable to resume his Wall st. business.

Donovan said that Thiel opened an account in the Trust Company of North America here in November, 1937, under the name of F. W. Blackstone. He deposited checks for $3,000 and $4,575 drawn on the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company under the name of George Workmaster, and before the end of the month drew out $3,150.

Thiel Tried to Aid Victim

When Workmaster received his bank statement, he complained to the bank and the police. Campbell, similar in appearance to Thiel, was arrested, charged with the crime, and convicted when bank employes identified him as the man who opened the account. In addition, Thiel had given the bank the telephone number of a business office in which Campbell had had dealings in the past.

Thiel finally was arrested in March for another case while undergoing treatment for drug addiction in a hospital at Lexington, Ky. The forgery for which he was sent to prison involved a $4,000 check drawn on a Boston bank.

Donovan said Thiel's conscience bothered him to the extent that he tried to help Campbell by committing a similar forgery early in 1941 to show the real criminal was still at large.

Campbell will ask Gov. Dewey for a full pardon and will seek legislative permission to sue the state to recover damages for his false imprisonment.

Chicago Police Record

FBI records show that Thiel began his criminal career in Chicago. In 1904 under the name S. Alexander he was committed to the John Worthy reform school for receiving stolen goods. Thereafter for many years he operated in the east under the names Alexander Thiele, Archibald Travers, Franklin Bartholomae, and Maj. A. Maclay. In October, 1943, he was held by the marshal in Chicago and in June, 1944, sentenced to a year and a day at a federal health farm on a narcotics charge.

TAMMANY CANCELS ITS INDORSEMENT OF RED IN N. Y. ELECTION

New York, July 24 [Special]—Tammany Leader Edward V. Loughlin tonight announced that the Manhattan Democratic organization had withdrawn its support of Councilman Benjamin J. Davis Jr., Negro Communist leader, as a candidate for reëlection.

Loughlin said in a statement that Tammany's 5 day old indorsement was withdrawn because "Davis issued a statement to the effect that his status as a member of the Communist Political association, of which he is a national officer, would remain unchanged."

1,198 RAPINGS LAID TO FRENCH

Stuttgart Police Deny Senegalese Attack

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

STUTTGART, Germany, July 24—An on the scene investigation of charges and denials that German women in Stuttgart and other towns in Wuerttemberg were raped by French North African troops after the capture of Stuttgart last April 21 has just been made by this correspondent.

German officials and residents of Stuttgart insist that the troops did commit rape on many German women. However, at the outset, it may be said that not even the Germans make any charges of mass atrocities or rape such as were complained of recently by Sen. Eastland [D., Miss.]. Here is the story as related by various sources:

Burgomaster Klett of Stuttgart denied Sen. Eastland's report that several thousand women had been rounded up, placed in an underground subway, and turned over to Senegalese troops for rape under instigation by French officers.

"Never Heard of It"

"That is an exaggeration and we never heard of it," Klett said. "The actuality was bad enough. The French never had Senegalese troops in Stuttgart and there is no subway."

According to this correspondent's information, the rape story was given to Sen. Eastland at a cocktail party in Paris merely as gossip and not in a form which even pretended to be accurate or official. When Eastland later asked several generals about the story, they told him there was of course much rape in the French occupation area.

According to figures released by Herr Weber, chief of Stuttgart's police, 1,198 women were raped and eight men also were violated by French troops, mostly Moroccans, during the French occupation.

The women, police and German civilians reported, were between 14 and 74 and were of all classes of society and professions.

This correspondent was told that the rapings took place after curfew when all Germans were in their homes and none allowed in the streets. Then groups of three or four Moroccans entered the houses, locked the men folk they found in the cellars, and attacked the women after menacing them with weapons.

French Set Up Brothel

Chief Weber said the French also established a brothel in an underground air raid shelter in Market

REYNAUD ADDS LEOPOLD TO HIS TRAITOR LIST

Tells Veto of Plan to Buy Off Italy

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, July 24—"Never has a people been so thoroly mistaken in a man as the French people has been in Marshal Petain and never has a man done so much harm to a people as Marshal Petain has done to the French people."

These words ended the withering deposition made during the second day of the Petain treason trial by Paul Reynaud, last premier of France before the armistice. The deposition, which had taken up the final hour of yesterday's session, kept Reynaud on the floor for four hours today.

His measured but merciless testimony, which bristled with historical facts of the first importance, was angrily described by the defense as a series of calumnies, a sort of summing up of a defense for Reynaud and a prosecution against Petain. Fernand Payen, chief defense lawyer, declared that if all the politicians of France intended to take this opportunity to "make over their purity" the trial would not be over before New Year's eve.

Makes Deep Impression

Reynaud's long speech had been breathlessly listened to, however, and both the court and the public appeared to be deeply impressed by it.

Among the statements made by Reynaud:

1. King Leopold of Belgium was equally guilty with Petain of treachery in surrendering to Germany.

2. In May, 1940, Britain vetoed a French suggestion that Italy be bought off from entering the war by giving her territorial concessions in Africa.

3. Petain had obstructed the rearmament of France as far back as 1934.

4. President Roosevelt in 1940 sent a sharply worded telegram to Petain saying France would imperil American friendship if she dealt with the Nazis.

5. Reynaud opposed the armistice with Germany, favoring continuation of the struggle from North Africa.

Daladier Takes Stand

He was succeeded on the witness stand by former Premier Edouard Daladier, who began his testimony toward the end of the sitting and will continue tomorrow. Daladier said he was testifying "sorrowfully, but without resentment." He charged that Petain lowered the army's war materials fund by 20 per cent when the marshal was a minister in 1934.

As yesterday, Petain, wearing a hurt, martyred look, remained motionless, slumped in his armchair with his expression undergoing little change thruout the entire afternoon. At times he appeared to be listening attentively, but mostly he looked as tho he were in a coma. In fact, many had the impression that he was still living in the vanished world of his past glory and that he looked upon all charges made against him in court as just so much sound and fury.

History in Review

Reynaud, fresh and dapper, took the floor at the opening of the session and talked fluently and often eloquently without notes until the judge called a recess. His testimony sounded like a book of contemporary history written in an easy reading, popular style. The villain naturally was Petain, with minor villains, such as Gen. Maxime Weygand [commander of the French army at the time of the armistice], Camille Chautemps [former premier], and Adm. Jean Darlan. Altho it was inevitably partisan, it threw new light on many obscure events of recent years.

The portrait that Reynaud drew in dark colors of Petain was that of an inveterate defeatist and a politically ambitious man who, once he had secured power, wielded it more

Hint Convicts Got Night Off to Kill a Man

BY JAMES DOHERTY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Lansing, Mich., July 24—Possibility that the mysterious slaying of State Sen. Warren G. Hooper last Jan. 11 was executed by convicted murderers permitted to leave the southern Michigan prison for the crime and then return to their cells with a "perfect" alibi was suggested today by Atty. Gen. John R. Dethmers in a scathing report charging scandalous laxity and maladministration at the big penitentiary.

Terming the prison a "veritable cupid club for lovelorn inmates," Dethmers said that women were imported into the prison to "solace" convicts in screened hospital beds. Inmates went out to brothels and to roistering week-end parties with women at a prison official's resort cottage, staggered back to prison at 3 a. m. some mornings, and were counted present during their absence, the attorney general reported.

Other Details to Come

His multiplicity of charges against the prison, which houses 5,197 inmates—all men—in its plant near Jackson, were made in the first of a series of reports to the state corrections commission following four months of investigation.

A section of the report released early in the day described the immorality assertedly rampant at the world's largest penitentiary and a second part released tonight included consideration of the "interesting question" of whether Sen. Hooper was killed by a convict who temporarily slipped away from the prison for the purpose and probably was "on count" at the institution at the very time of the slaying last Jan. 11.

Dethmers said that when Director Garrett Heyns of the state corrections commission was asked about it he said this was possible.

Purple Gang Visitors

The report cited the testimony of Henry Luks, a convict, that members of Detroit's notorious Purple gang made frequent visits to the prison. Luks named one of these visitors as Mike Selik, one of four Detroit men now on trial at Battle Creek on charges of conspiring to murder Hooper. The other three defendants are Sam and Harry Fleisher, and Pete Mahoney. The state has charged killers were paid to exterminate the senator to keep him from testifying about legislative corruption.

Referring to gangsters being permitted to visit gangmen in prison and listing a number who had in-and-out privileges, Dethmers' report said:

"This gives rise to the interesting question as to whether it is not within the realm of human possibility that Selik and Harry Fleisher were able to contact one or more gangsters who are doing time for murder at the present time and arrange to take him away from the prison for a sufficient time to commit the murder and return to prison.

Provides Perfect Alibi

"This would leave him or them with a perfect alibi, that is, being confined in the southern Michigan prison and 'on count' at the time the murder took place."

Detailing his charges that the big prison is torn by dissension, maladministration, and corruption, Dethmers declared that a ring of "big shot" convicts has wide control inside the prison and that the inmates are permitted such vices as

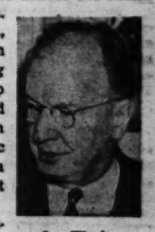
SEEKS TO CURB USE OF TROOPS BY NEW LEAGUE

Fury of Colleagues Turned on Him

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 24—Internationalists of the senate sat silent today when Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] told them America is being used to build up a new world struggle between the imperialistic nations of Russia and Great Britain.



Sen. Wheeler

But all the bitterness that has been concealed during the debate on the new international charter was turned loose upon him when he demanded that the American people decide whether to delegate to one man the power to send Americans to fight foreign wars under the charter.

The Montana senator took everything his democratic colleagues could throw at him, in a debate of unparalleled fury, and sent them scurrying for cover, after announcing he will reluctantly vote for the charter.

Asks Chance for People

Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] sprang to his feet to offer to "take him on," as Barkley put it, on the subject of the war making power at any time. Wheeler retorted with a demand that the American people be given a chance thru a constitutional amendment to decide whether they will delegate that power to the American representative on the new league of nations security council.

Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.] shouted:

Connally Takes Hand

"I resent that," snapped Wheeler. "What the senator is sorry for is that I am not going to vote against the charter, so that he and the rest of his internationalists could go out and holler from the housetops that I was for war and he was for peace, when he was the one man on the senate floor who was shouting for it and leading the van for the internationalists and interventionists in this war."

Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], who is guiding the charter to senate ratification, said Wheeler had helped violate the Constitution "a number of times" in reply to Wheeler's plea for constitutional procedure. Wheeler forced Connally to withdraw the charge.

Served for 150 Years

Turning upon those who scoff at the Constitution, Wheeler said:

"I know perfectly well that the Constitution of the United States rests very lightly upon a great many persons, both in and outside of congress. I have been told 'You cannot eat the Constitution.'

"Let me say that for 150 years we have lived under the Constitution, and for over 125 years we did not meddle in European politics. We did not meddle in the business of every one else.

"We built up on this continent the greatest country on the face of the globe, where there is more prosperity and more freedom and more liberty and more real religion than there ever was in any other country.

Think They Know Better Way

"Yet because we followed the precepts and preachings of those who founded the Constitution—George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and the other great leaders—we now find springing up in this country a great many statesmen, a great many columnists, and a great many leaders of groups of various kinds, who know a better way and a better form of life than the one we have built up in the United States.

"Some people think Russia is a better country than the United States, and that Russia has a better form of government. All I have to say to those people is that they should have to go to Russia and have to live and stay there.

"They should have to go right now to Bulgaria, to Poland, to Latvia, to Lithuania, and Rumania, and there they would see what would happen to them if they dared in the slightest degree to criticize either the government or any of the officials of the government. After that experience they would be happy to arrive in New York harbor.

Want Totalitarianism

"Yet the same persons who are now crying in the United States against every one who seeks to preserve the Constitution or who wishes to live up to its principles are the ones who want to tear it down. They want to tear down this country.

"They want it torn down so they can set up a totalitarian government.

"I say to those who would tear down our Constitution: 'Tear it down if you want to. Override the Constitution if you want to. Send your troops anywhere in the world to protect the Chinese or the Hindus or any one else. But you will never do it with the sanction of my vote.

Has Seen Public Unsold

"'You may think that all the propaganda which is put out for it has sold the American people a bill of goods. I have seen them sold before. And I have seen them unsold.'"

Pepper asked if Wheeler had noted that public opinion polls show Americans favor a charter "with teeth in it."

"I think a lot of polls that are taken are pure fakes," Wheeler replied. "And they have been disclosed time and again to be fakes. If all the people of the United States wanted to violate the Constitution, I, as a member of the senate, having taken an oath to uphold it, would uphold it.

Voting Reluctantly

"If the people of the United States temporarily became swayed by propaganda to do something that they did not know was in violation of the Constitution, I would vote against it. . . . If the American people understood that their boys were to be sent at the command of any single person to fight in foreign wars without the question's being submitted to congress—if they understood it thoroly and it were properly explained to them—they would vote against it."

Many senators on the Democratic side took part in the attack upon Wheeler. When the attacks had subsided, he concluded:

"I am going to vote for the charter very reluctantly on the strength of statements by John Foster Dulles and my colleagues who helped frame it [Sen. Vandenberg, R., Mich.] that all questions of the specific duties of the American delegate will be spelled out in supplementary agreements which will come back to the senate for ratification."

Denies Executive Power

Replying to assertions that the President has always had authority to send American forces abroad, Wheeler said:

"I cannot subscribe to the idea that the President has or ever had the right to send American forces anywhere, or for any reason that he desired, without a declaration of war by congress. Examination of the authorities in this field shows that, whatever the reason lurking in the mind of the President, it has always been claimed by the chief executive that every such act was to protect American lives and property, and not the property and lives of some foreign nations or combination of nations."

Here are the highlights of Wheeler's speech before the attack by other senators:

Now Face Chaos

"The problems we faced after the last war were child's play compared to the chaos we now face. While our statesmen breathe an air of confident expectancy, the terrible truth is they are whistling in the dark. The resurgence of a brutal and fanatical fascism lurks in every flooded cellar, behind every shattered tree in Europe.

"Yet my greatest fear is that the light of reason is being extinguished here at home. Today any man who dares to speak his deepest convictions, even in what he conceives to be his highest duty to his country, not only does not get a hearing. He is reviled and smeared, his intentions are publicly slandered and his reputation is broken on a rack of interventionist lies."

Groping Toward Doom

Telling of his 1941 fight against involvement of America in old world feuds which he said he knew the lend lease act would guarantee, he continued:

"The America in which I live is no longer afraid of totalitarian tyranny. It openly embraces what President Roosevelt declared to be a dictatorship as absolute as any in the world. [Russia]. If, as our contemporary wolf pack of propagandists attempt to prove by their yapping, the simple statement of American principles and ideals is subversive, then America as a free nation is already blindly groping towards her doom."

Wheeler said American people have been treated to a "veritable banquet" of speeches in favor of the charter, praising it for its realism. But the reality, he said, is merely keeping Britain, Russia, and the United States in power.

On Sea of Anarchy

"If we abandon our principles," he said, "we are set adrift on the wildest sea of international anarchy the world has ever known."

Wheeler charged that the parallel between the fate of the late President Wilson's celebrated "14 points" and the Atlantic charter has been withheld from the people.

"A second grim, historical fact that is being deliberately suppressed," he said, "is that behind the slogan of unconditional surrender we have been compelled to wage a vicious war of power politics with Russia and Britain, ever since the tide of battle turned."

Mask of Hypocrisy

Wheeler said the Crimea conference promised that the integrity and independence of every European nation was to be respected, but said of the nations represented:

"Events soon tore away the mask of hypocrisy from their pious intentions. It was only a few days later that Russia set out on a series of unilateral acts in which one after another the smaller nations of eastern Europe fell victim to her power.

"If we are to be honest, we confront the fact of Russia's attack on Finland. Her annexation of Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania and her treacherous attack on Poland along with the Germans, and the long series of unilateral acts from the Baltic to the Balkans which have continued right thru all the solemn deliberations of Lumbarton Oaks.

Assails British Action

"It is a matter of record that even while all these solemn deliberations have been going on at San Francisco, Russia has been determined to make political hay while a non-Anglo-American military intervention sun was shining. . . .

"Against these obvious violations of every pledge Russia has made since she signed the Atlantic charter, we have the record of Britain's intervention in Greece, Italy, Belgium, and Syria and her sudden concession to Fascism in Spain.

"What we have been doing is lending a hand to the subjugation of Europe."

Asserting that there is the making of a major catastrophe in the European settlement, Wheeler said Russia and Great Britain are dividing Europe into two spheres.

F. D. R. Repeated Blunder

"It has now become clear," he continued, "that at Tehran our late President repeated Woodrow Wilson's tragic blunder at the Paris peace conference. Wilson yielded to pressure in the vain hope that he could get the other victor powers committed to his league of nations. How tragically mistaken Wilson was, even in spite of our failure to enter the league, is now written in the blood of a million American boys.

"When the late President Roosevelt journeyed to Tehran, he too, with his dreams and plans for peace, found himself closeted with international power politicians.

"Under the irresistible pressure of Mr. Stalin and the obstinacy of Mr. Churchill, for the sake of his dream of the united nations, Mr. Roosevelt likewise compromised his plans for a just and enduring peace. Mr. Stalin was already in the saddle in eastern Europe, cracking out his own peace terms on the end of his totalitarian whip, and he could not be challenged except by direct Anglo-American military intervention."

Predicts Spread in Asia

Wheeler warned that the Russian-British rivalry in Europe will spread thru Asia.

"The peace about which this charter speaks," he said, "is nothing more than a pious hope built up by propaganda. It is a deeply rooted and ever intensifying and expanding conflict between British and Russian interests.

"The truth is that events have gone too far for any one man to ignore the fact that whatever peace settlements are now reached, the steadily expanding conflict between the east, dominated by Moscow, and the west, dominated by England and the United States will be uprooted bodily and transplanted into the very heart of this new world organization.

An Ethereal Dream

"Does any one think that the chaos, famine, disease, immorality, suffering, and the stinking desert of conflict that has been made of Europe and that is fast being spread over the Orient is fertile soil in which the roots of democracy can flourish? Are the proponents of this charter to tell the American people that the catastrophic consequences of this most hideous struggle of all time are conducive to the development of stable governments and societies? Any man who holds out such an ethereal dream as a prospective reality to the American people is only deluding himself.

"There isn't a country in Europe, which, if it had the money and machinery and men, wouldn't be at the others' throat at this moment.

"But these are not the only mistakes we are repeating. We are continuing lend lease into the hands of the bitterest rivals history records—furnishing lend lease after the war is over."

Critizes U. S. Policy.

Rebuking the government for its pre-war Japanese policy, Wheeler told the senate:

"In 1933 the American government not only tolerated the expanding aggression of Japanese war lords but actually increased the flow of oil, scrap iron, and other essential war materials to Japan, without which Japan would have been helpless to expand her aggression, without which there could have been no Pearl Harbor.

"And up until 1939 in Europe and 1941 in Asia, by our stupid policies which helped to build up Hitler and Tojo, by attempting to prevent the inevitable consequence which followed these blunders, and by swinging from the extreme of appeasement to that of war, we found ourselves compelled to build up Russia, a Russia we had denounced as the most tyrannical despotism the world had ever known.

Truth of Our Stupidity

"The staggering truth about the consequences of our stupidity is that by this war we have caught the peoples of Europe and the peoples of Asia in the mighty jaws of a military machine unprecedented in history, a machine which we helped to strengthen and enlarge until the mind of man cannot even grasp its destructive fury.

"Now, again having learned nothing from the past, America is being used to build up a new world struggle between two great imperialistic nations, a struggle for world trade, world markets, world resources, world power, and world domination, in which again we shall be called upon to pour out what is left of our once vast storehouse of treasure and blood.

"The people and their elected representatives in the senate have been maneuvered into a position where they are not going to be able to do anything more than acquiesce in an ultimatum.

"They are not going to be given the chance to indorse a nobler instrument of collective action. They have been told they must accept this instrument or nothing."

BIG 3 IN RECESS WHILE BRITAIN'S VOTE IS TALLIED

POTSDAM, Germany, July 24 (AP) —The Big Three conference will pause temporarily late tomorrow while British leaders go home to learn election results and discover who shall speak finally for Britain in the history charting negotiations.

Prime Minister Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden, and Clement Attlee, Labor party leader, will fly to London for Thursday's announcement of the July 5 balloting.

On Friday at the earliest the victor is expected back—either Churchill, the Conservative party head, with Eden still his foreign expert, or Attlee with a new foreign secretary of his choosing.

A formal British announcement said, "There is no question of the Berlin conference being over by Wednesday when the prime minister, the foreign secretary, and Mr. Attlee are returning to England for the election results."

Another Secret Session

President Truman, Premier Stalin, and the British leaders held their eighth formal conference session today, but no details were disclosed. Another formal session may be held tomorrow before the Britons depart, marking the close of the "election interim" phase of the conference.

What plans Mr. Truman and Stalin have for Thursday were not disclosed, but it was said they would not discuss matters of the agenda between themselves until the British governmental chiefs return. They might, however, confer on matters of purely Russian-American interest, such as continuing lend-lease, or post-war loans.

Attlee's presence at Potsdam has permitted the tripartite negotiations to progress with less uncertainty than otherwise would have been the case. It has been obvious that no final responsibilities could be undertaken until Mr. Truman and Stalin knew for certain who would head the new British government.

Coöperation Is Aim

Whether this situation has tended to curb British influence in the negotiations thus far is a topic of pure speculation. It is believed, however, that both the soviet and American delegations have made allowances for the unusual political position of the British spokesmen. The long range objectives of interallied coöperation were regarded as too great to be jeopardized by any other attitude. Further, in the British election campaign, no sharp differences were raised between Churchill and Attlee over foreign policy.

The chief American aim is understood to be the earliest and most economical defeat of Japan. Agreement on European issues became chiefly a task of harmonizing soviet and British views, with American opinion apparently somewhere in between.

The determination of all three powers to maintain their valuable war time confidence and coördination thru the difficult period ahead has been emphasized by sources close to each delegation.

GRACE ASSAILS CHARTER HASTE; RAPS SENATORS

San Francisco Charter advocates were challenged to await the return of the nation's fighting men and women and to abide by their decision in telegrams sent yesterday by William J. Grace, chairman of the Citizens U. S. A. committee, to Sen. Connally [D., Tex.] and Sen. Fulbright [D., Ark.].

"What fear prompts your charter rush?" Grace telegraphed to Connally. "You were not afraid of the people in putting our country into an undeclared, illegal, immoral war, but your unholy, hellish rush to push this charter thru before the return of the fighting men shows you are afraid of them."

To Sen. Fulbright, who took part in the senate's charter debate, Grace telegraphed: "You are right about the charter being oversold. Our political stomach is overstuffed with alien political food. Europe does not need America for peace. Europe needs America only for war.

"It takes a senator with a British subsidized education to crack the whip over the colonials in the senate and tell them the Frisco charter lies. It is a fraud, but they must obediently swallow it regardless. The charter unanimity is not real any more than there was real unanimity behind Benedict Arnold, but the British colonials, the Tories, and Red coats were with him.

"Your charter advocates the unconditional surrender of our country to Hitlerism. It surrenders us without a fight. Germany at least fought and lost."

BRITISH BALLOT RESULTS WILL BE TOLD TOMORROW

Laborites Expected to Gain Many Seats

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 24 — Whether Prime Minister Churchill succeeded in his bid to retain political leadership of Britain for the next five years will be revealed Thursday when the bulk of the general election results will be announced.

The prime minister with Foreign Secretary Eden and the opposition leader, Clement Attlee, will fly home from the Potsdam conference to learn the decision of Britain's 32,353,000 voters. If, as most political observers anticipate, Churchill and his so-called national government return to power it will be largely a one man victory, won on the personality and the war record of Britain's dynamic prime minister.

321 Seats Needed

Political experts, however, expect the Laborites to gain many seats from the Conservatives, and Churchill's supporters may be so small a majority that they will have a hard time avoiding defeat in parliament for a full term. To hold a bare majority of one, 321 seats will be needed by the Conservatives in the new commons.

A preliminary check of voting papers will be made tomorrow. Ballot boxes, which have been sealed and guarded since polling day, will be opened by election officers together with those containing soldiers' votes. The ballots then will be counted to ensure the number corresponds with the total of counter foils filled in at the polling booths.

Service mail votes, which have been flown in from Europe and the Pacific, will be checked against proxy votes to make sure there is no duplication. At the end of the check, voting papers will be resealed in the boxes and again placed under guard until Thursday morning, when they will be recounted and apportioned among the various parties.

May Be Known by Noon

The results are expected to be made known at a record pace. Counting will begin in practically every constituency at 9 a. m., and the first results will be known within 45 minutes. By noon it may be known whether the Churchill government is reelected.

The long delay between general election day, July 5, and the announcement of the results was necessary to permit the soldier vote to be cast and sent here. The last of the ballot bags arrived by plane today.

TURKEY VIEWS TRUMAN TALK AS REBUKE TO REDS

BY CLAY GOWRAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 21 [Delayed] — President Truman's statement in Berlin yesterday that the United States is not fighting for conquest but for peace and world welfare was received with banner headlines in the Turkish press today. Turkish editors interpreted the President's words as a quiet rebuke to Russia for its recent demands against this vitally situated nation.

This interpretation of Mr. Truman's statement illustrates how desperate Turkey is today in the face of Russia's latest move against her. Uncertain whether she can count upon the support of either Britain or America in the present crisis, Turkey is making every effort to bolster her position.

Reds Resume Attacks

The Moscow radio last night resumed its attacks against Turkey but with a slightly different technique. The Russian announcer devoted 15 minutes to quoting a story allegedly printed in an American newspaper identified only as the "Evening Star," which advocated the return of the eastern Turkish provinces of Kars and Ardahan to Russia and the granting of new privileges to Russia with regard to the Dardanelle straits. This broadcast was also prominently featured in the Turkish press.

Turkish officers who returned yesterday from the Turco-Bulgarian frontier, described the nerve war which is being carried on there. They said that early in July Russian and Bulgarian troops held a three day maneuver on the frontier within sight of Turkish garrisons.

Heavy guns and tanks rumbled along Bulgarian roads practically under the noses of Turkish border guards.

Neutral Zone Created

The Turks have established the widest possible neutral zone along the frontier. Turkish troops have been withdrawn well behind the actual border in order to avoid incidents.

It was also reported the Turks recently heavily reënforced the eastern Turco-Russian border along the threatened provinces of Kars and Ardahan.

DUCE'S SON VICTOR AND NEPHEW HANDED OVER TO PURGE COURT

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

ROME, July 24 — At least two members of Benito Mussolini's family today appeared likely to face an Italian purge tribunal. It was announced tonight that his son, Victor, and his nephew, Vito, had been placed at the disposal of the high commission for punishment of Fascist crimes which now operate under Vice Premier Pietro Nenni.

Both men had been protectively held in the north. Vito was editor of Il Popolo de Italia which was the duce's organ in Milan.

Mussolini's widow, Rachele, and his two younger children who do not face charges are at Ternu in central Italy.

FLORIDA EDITOR LOSES FIGHT TO BEAT COURT 'GAG'

State Supreme Bench Upholds Sentence

Tallahassee, Fla., July 24 [Special]—Contempt convictions of the Miami Herald and its associate editor, John D. Pennekamp, for publication of editorials and a cartoon criticizing two Dade county Circuit court judges were upheld today by the Florida Supreme court in a 5 to 2 decision. Pennekamp later announced the paper would appeal to the United States Supreme court.

Justice Glenn Terrell, in the majority opinion, said "the vice in both the editorials was the distorted, inaccurate statement of the facts and with that statement were scrambled false insinuations that amounted to unwarranted charges of partisanship and unfairness on the part of the judges."

"Courts Not Immune"

Terrell said, "It is not to be inferred that courts are in any sense immunized from criticism." He added:

"A newspaper may criticize, harass, irritate, or vent its spleen against a person who holds the office of judge in the same manner that it does a member of the legislature and other elective officers, but it may not publish scurrilous or libelous criticisms of a presiding judge as such, or his judgment, for the purpose of discrediting the court in the eyes of the public."

The Dissenting View

Justice Riers Buford, dissenting, said he saw nothing in the editorials or cartoon "which imputes a want of fairness, impartiality, or integrity to any judge or the court."

He said the defendants do not appear to have for their purpose or intent "the influencing or controlling the determination of the result in any particular case then pending in any court. They appear to adversely criticize a judicial system which, to protect the rights of the righteous, must, by the same token, see that the alleged rights of the unrighteous are determined."

The two judges who cited the newspaper and the editor for contempt were Paul D. Barns and Marshall C. Wiseheart. They brought action last November after two editorials and a cartoon in the Nov. 2 and 9 issues had reviewed their rulings in gambling, rape, and assault cases. The judges asserted the editorials and cartoon were "untrue and unfair" and tended to interfere with the fair administration of justice.

Newspaper Is Fined

Barns and Wiseheart on Dec. 10 denied a motion to quash the charges and on Dec. 18 they found the Herald and Pennekamp guilty of contempt. They levied fines of $1,000 against the newspaper and $250 against the editor. An appeal was taken to the Supreme court in February.

In the Nov. 2 editorial the Herald had commented that the grand jury returned eight indictments for rape that week, but that Judge Barns ruled they were not properly drawn and had sent them back to the grand jury.

It also observed that Judge Wiseheart had taken over from another judge a padlock action started five months earlier against a gambling club. While the state's attorney was busy before the grand jury, the editorial said, Wiseheart had dismissed the injunction against the club. The editorial said the defense was given a "delay when it wanted it and a prompt decision from the court when it profited it" after months of stalling.

Public Interest "Ignored"

A cartoon accompanying the editorial showed a judge handing to a tough looking defendant a paper marked "dismissed" while a little man labeled "public interest" tried unsuccessfully to get the judge's attention.

Pennekamp, after learning of the Florida supreme court's ruling, issued this statement in Miami:

"Our offense is that we had criticized the legal system in our courts. We found upon investigation, that criminals and lawbreakers had all the better of it under the technical processes which have been built up to invalidate what we conceive to be the plain intent of the law.

"The point here involved is simply whether a judge, displeased with what a newspaper says, has the right to gag that newspaper.

"If that position is maintained there is no limit to the coercion and control which a court may use to keep the people uninformed as to its doings."

ANPA Counsel Engaged

When the Herald and Pennekamp were first cited for contempt, the directors of the American Newspaper Publishers' association authorized the association's general counsel, Elisha Hanson, to appear in their support. Defense attorneys asserted in a brief filed with the Supreme court that the contempt prosecution was an attempt to muzzle the press.

ACQUIT SAILOR IN HOTEL DEATH OF MRS. EAMES

Evidence Inadequate, Judge Rules

Miami, Fla., July 24 (AP)—County Judge Ben G. Willard quickly acquitted Sailor William W. Parker, 19, of Toledo, O., late today on a manslaughter charge arising from the death of Mrs. Ella Mae Eames, 43, estranged wife of a former New England pastor.

The stocky sailor testified he hit Mrs. Eames with a beer bottle and several hours later dumped her bruised, nude body off a fire escape into a blind alley behind a hotel in downtown Miami a week ago yesterday.

She Wanted $10

Asserting he picked up Mrs. Eames in a bar and took her to his hotel room, Parker said:

"She wanted to charge too much. She wanted $10. I told her it was no go for that kind of money. We got into a hot argument and she went too far—she threw a beer bottle at me."

Parker said he was sitting on the bed, drinking beer out of another bottle, and he hurled the bottle at her. He added that he fell asleep almost immediately, awakening about 4 a. m.

"I found her in bed, nude," he testified. "It seemed to me, sir, like she was dead. It seemed like her body was a little stiff.

Just Like a Dream

"I was just beginning to come out of it then.

"It was like a dream. I held onto her hands and lowered her as best I could into the alley."

Judge Willard, sitting without a jury, listened to a 15 minute summary by Assistant Prosecutor John C. Wynn and then within 30 seconds gave his verdict of acquittal saying that "the state had failed to make a case."

FULL QUIZ ASKED IN CHICAGO GI's DEATH SENTENCE

Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] has asked the adjutant general's office to make a full investigation of the charges against Pvt. Edward J. Reichl, 39, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Reichl, 5343 School st., who is under sentence to be hanged for slaying a comrade, it was learned yesterday at Lucas' office in Washington.

Aids of Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] said they were informed yesterday by Maj. Gen. Myron C. Cramer, judge advocate general, that the sentence had been sustained by a board of review and that President Truman had approved the action July 5.

A plea to save the Chicago soldier from the gallows was sent to the senators by Reichl's sister, Mrs. Rose Michalski, of the School st. address. She said she understood that her brother accidentally fired a rifle at random while drunk and fatally wounded a sergeant. The shooting occurred Nov. 17, 1943, at Hamilton field, Cal. Reichl is now at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., awaiting execution.

Chicago Newsmen Head New Navy Publication

GUAM, July 24 (AP)—The first edition of The Navy News is off the press. The first issue's lead story today told of the "one-two" punch against Japan by navy planes and B-29s yesterday. The publication is under supervision of Lt. Comdr. Marvin McCarthy, former managing editor of the Chicago Times, aided by two other former Chicago newsmen, Lt. Seymour Francis of the Sun, and Ensign. Lloyd H. Norman, former Washington correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Arrive by Plane

Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, the Chicago boy who made good by outmaneuvering Germany's prize military tactician, Gen. von Rundstedt, made his first visit to his old home town in nearly five years when he arrived yesterday by plane.

Still under the care of army medical officers for the illness that forced him out of command of the 12th army corps after he had played a leading role in the American advance thru France and the Siegfried line, Gen. Eddy was met at the airport by his three Chicago brothers, John, George, and Sprague, and their families.

Gen. Eddy was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Martha, 22. The family plans to reestablish its Chicago residence when the war is over, Gen. Eddy said. After visiting a few days in the Hinsdale home of his brother, John, Gen. Eddy plans to spend a week or two fishing in Wisconsin and then will return east for more medical treatment.

Gen. Eddy was awarded the French Legion of Merit and the Legion of Honor, and was made a private first class of the French Foreign legion for his leadership of the 9th infantry division in the African campaign. Gen. Eddy led the 9th into Cherbourg after the Normandy landing to capture the nazi generals there. He won command of the 12th army corps by outfoxing Von Rundstedt in crossing the Moselle river. For that he also received the distinguished service medal.

SIX MILLION REPATRIATED, SAYS UNRRA AID

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 24—Six million of the eight million displaced persons of Europe, including war prisoners, forced labor, and deported persons, have been repatriated, Dr. Leonard Marsh of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration information division said today. Transport difficulties are delaying the movement home of the remaining two million.

Marsh said millions of dollars worth of repairs are necessary to rebuild Europe's transportation systems devastated by the war. Land mines planted by the Germans also offer a big problem, he said, citing 10 million still remaining along the French coasts.

Defending UNRRA, which has been accused of falling down on its job, Marsh said the organization was intended to deal only with basic problems such as clothing, food, and shelter. Next month representatives of 44 nations will hold the third meeting of the UNRRA council here. Previous meetings were in the United States and Canada.

NETCHER'S BOSTON STORE

FINDS CANADA A RATION FREE LAND OF PLENTY

[The following story was written by the wife of Walter Trohan, a Washington correspondent of The Tribune, on her return from a vacation trip in Canada.]

BY CAROL TROHAN

After ration ridden United States, Canada is a shopper's paradise where shelves and showcases abound with items that have disappeared or become rarities in this country.

There are no waiting lines; there are no quotas; there are no ration points, and there are no signs with the disheartening legends "No Meat," "No Butter," and "No Cigarets," in cities and towns, and even remote lumber villages.

Best of all from the American woman's point of view, there is a bonus for every purchase in American money. Change is meticulously made at the rate of $1.10 for every $1 in American money.

Most impressive to any American woman are the butcher shops. Gleaming white cases display every kind of cut of meat, like the American shops of pre-war days—steaks, roasts, chops, and sausages. Canadians complain that ham and bacon were hard to get, but in one shop I saw six butchers dispensing a mountain of hams.

Altho the common bacon is somewhat scarce, there was no lack of Wilshire sides or Canadian style bacon.

Finds Prize Beef

In Montreal I found prize beef, an item unkwnown in war time America. I couldn't resist buying a roast—16½ pounds of sirloin marbled with rich yellow fat. The butcher, who pressed me to buy a larger cut of the prize winning steer from the Sasketchewan fat stock fair, gave me $2.77 change from the $10 bill I gave him in payment.

Incidentally the roast, as cooked by the first cook of the M. S. Franquelin of The Tribune paper fleet, was a masterpiece. He basted the roast with butter, which appears on tables at every meal in a land where margarine is banned by law.

Canadians are grumbling over an impending meat rationing program scheduled to begin Aug. 15. They argue that their meat supply should not be curbed in order to feed an enemy their troops were trying to exterminate by bombs and shellfire a few weeks ago.

No Stamps for Shoes

Ranking next in interest to an American mother were the shoe stores. Real leather shoes were displayed in all styles, and no ration stamp was required. I bought a pair of hand pegged leather three-quarter boots, so dear to the hearts of young American boys, for my son for $6.85 Canadian. [That's 6.13 in American money.]

At the same time I found leather pocketbooks for my daughters—a genuine steerhide shoulder strap purse for $4.62 Canadian [$4.36 American] and a soft green leather bag—a Margaret O'Brien original—for $3.50 Canadian [$3.15 American] both with zippered compartments.

In contrast to the United States, the Canadian leather bags all bear the stamp "Made in Canada." In the United States the rare leather bag one can snare at a fantastic price is usually stamped "Made in Argentina."

Household linens are abundant. Sheets, muslin and percale, were displayed in all sizes and brands at comparable American price levels. There were no limits on purchases.

Plenty of White Shirts

In men's stores there was no dearth of white shirts at American pre-war prices, as low as $1.49 Canadian.

Shelves of Canadian stores were well stocked with such items, scarce in America, as soap chips, soap, jello, clothes pins, heavy wire hair pins, olive oil, corn oil, mayonaise, loaf sugar, and facial tissues.

Electric shops had electric fans, toasters, irons, washing machines, phonographs, stoves, and grills. Heavy aluminum cooking utensils were on sale.

Cigarets are plentiful but expensive. In Ontario they sell at 33 cents for a pack of 20. In Quebec, the province takes two cigarets out of each pack, but charges the same price.

Only in liquor is the picture grim. The supply is limited and the brands weak. Spirits have been cut as low as 30 proof while the price has been increased. In Quebec a tourist must pay $1 for a license to purchase a fifth of spirits at about $5 a bottle. The permit is good for two bottles, one in each of two months.

Scotch is virtually unknown and Canadian rye is scarce. Our northern neighbors fume over the movement of thousands of cases of Scotch to the United States thru Canadian ports.

Asks $1,500 a Month

LILI DAMITA

Los Angeles, Cal., July 24 (AP)—Lili Damita, former French actress and ex-wife of Actor Errol Flynn, declared in an answer filed in Superior court today that Flynn should pay $1,500 monthly net for support of herself and their 3 year old son, Sean Leslie Flynn.

The actor filed suit two months ago for declaratory relief, saying that under their property settlement he agreed to reimburse Miss Damita for state and federal income taxes she paid on her alimony. He said they were unable to agree on whether such reimbursement should be included in ensuing support payments.

Miss Damita has returned here after a four year absence to do nurses' aid work in a veterans' hospital. She and Flynn were married in 1935 and were divorced seven years later.

CANADA TO RUSH PACIFIC CRUISER TO HOME PORT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 24—The Canadian cruiser Uganda, operating in the Pacific, will return to Canada just as soon as it can be spared so that those of its crew who have not volunteered for Pacific service can be replaced, D. C. Abbott, minister of naval affairs, said today.

Only volunteers for Pacific service are to serve Canada in that war theater. The crew of the Uganda enlisted for service anywhere in the world, and was in the Pacific before Canada announced the new policy under which volunteers will serve only in the specific area to which they offer to go.

Report 500 of Crew Balk

Abbott's statement about the return was his only comment on a charge by Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes at Duncan, B. C., that 500 of the crew had refused to serve in the Pacific. He referred to statements he had previously made on the issue.

Abbott had said that the Uganda was serving under the British fleet and would return home in due course so that those of its crew who wished to serve in the Pacific could take leave, and the others could be replaced.

He is expected to make a detailed statement when the vessel nears a home port. He does not desire to make it now for security reasons.

Leave Due to Europe Vets

Under the Canadian policy veterans of European service who volunteer for the Pacific are given 30 days' leave in Canada. Members of the Uganda crew who have volunteered, therefore, have leave coming to them.

Abbott has made it clear it will be up to the British command to say when the vessel is to return.

The Uganda was the flagship of the British Pacific fleet task group which recently bombarded Truk. Its six inch guns hurled 260 rounds of high explosives, approximately 12 tons, at targets on the island. The action lasted 40 minutes.

Upon leaving the Uganda after the action, the British admiral complimented the crew and said he considered "it an honor to be the first flag officer to fly his flag in this Canadian warship."

MEAT RATIONING IN CANADA WILL START BY SEPT. 1

OTTAWA, July 24 (AP)—Meat rationing, limiting purchases by individuals to 1 1-3 pounds a week, will be re-instituted in Canada not later than Sept. 1, Donald Gordon, chairman of the dominion prices board, announced today. He said the rationing would be "tighter" than that imposed in May, 1943, and discontinued in February, 1944. The new measure is designed to meet obligations for meat shipments to hungry Europe, and the United Kingdom.

The weekly allowance will be the same as that provided during the previous meat rationing period, but was described by the board as "more severe than before because all processed and 'fancy' meats will be included in the ration."

The new ration represents about five pounds more a year than the estimated United States meat ration allowance, and 23 pounds more than in the United Kingdom. Such items as beef, calf, pork, and lamb brains and heads, and beef, pork, and lamb tails, will not be rationed.

MIKADO HEALTH NOW A SUBJECT OF TOKYO TALKS

Japs Also Work Overtime Telling of Raids

San Francisco, Cal., July 24 (AP)—Japanese broadcasters worked overtime today announcing the latest American raids on the homeland and stepping into diplomatic matters to argue that the United States was trying for a quick knockout of Japan to avoid playing a secondary role to soviet Russia in the post-war world.

On the military side, Tokyo radio acknowledged air attacks by Super Forts, carrier and land based planes, and said the stepped-up air blows in the Shanghai area were a prelude to landings on the China coast to protect the allied flank once Japan is invaded.

Will Dicuss Mikado's Health.

In another broadcast, Tokyo announced that the Japanese political association, the totalitarian party, would meet tomorrow and the first item on the agenda would be a report "on the latest state" of the health of Emperor Hirohito.

[A careful search of previous reports on broadcasts from Japan indicates that this is the first news concerning possible illness of the ruler.]

Various cabinet members, headed by Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo, will discuss Japan's current problems. Hirohito's health will be discussed by Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, board of information president.

"Finally," reported Tokyo, "led by President Minami, all members will join in shouting 'banzai' three times, and the meeting will be brought to a close."

Claim All Out Stage Reached

Domei news agency said that American operations had already reached the "all out" stage in the bid for speedy victory, a pace necessitated because of "fears" that the Russians, "already freed from the war against Germany and already carrying out peacetime reconstruction efforts," might gain the ascendency.

Tokyo also announced the names of nine generals killed in action during the past year. Listed was one lieutenant general, seven major generals and one surgeon general.

The northern Japanese city of Muroran was reduced to "pitiful ruins" by the United States 3d fleet bombardment July 14, Tokyo said in reporting rebuilding progress.

BOMBED ENEMY BATTLESHIPS ARE SEMI-CARRIERS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The 29 year old Ise and 28 year old Hyuga, Japanese battleships damaged by the American carrier strike on Kure, were 32,000 ton warships recently converted into semi-carriers, with flight decks at the stern.

They carried 12 14-inch guns apiece, plus secondary 5.5-inch batteries as well as 5-inch anti-aircraft rifles. They were designed for a top speed of 23 knots. Presumably neither was seaworthy at the time of Tuesday's attack, since earlier Guam dispatches indicated that only one Japanese capital ship—evidently the Haruna—remained useable after the Nagato was hit.

The new [1937] heavy cruiser Tone is believed to be a 10,000 ton ship, possibly carrying 12 8-inch guns. Like the Aoba [1926] which carried six 8-inch rifles, the Tone is listed among Japan's first class cruisers.

Little is known of the cruiser Oyodo, evidently a recent addition to the fleet.

CHUNGKING, China, July 24 (AP)—Chinese troops, sweeping toward almost isolated Kweilin from the south, have battled into the outskirts of the former United States 14th air force base of Yangso and are laying siege to the Japanese held stronghold, the Chinese high command said tonight.

Yangso is 44 miles south of Kweilin. The Chinese fought into the suburbs of the base Monday. To the north other forces intensified their drive to take Kweilin, a war bulletin said.

Chinese artillery 13 miles northeast of Kweilin bombarded Lingchan on the Japanese escape route to central China.

The Chinese war bulletin said the Japanese had launched a sweep south of the Yangtze river to protect the transcontinental corridor from Korea to Hong Kong. Bitter fighting also was reported along China's coast.

Another struggle raged 140 miles southwest of Nanchang where an isolated "floating pocket" of Japanese troops attempted to fight thru Chinese territory from the former United States air base at Kanhsien.

HEAR JAP ENVOY, NOW IN U. S., WILL URGE SURRENDER

SALZBURG, Austria, July 24 (AP)—United States infantry men guarding 100 Japanese diplomatic personnel today quoted their prisoners as saying they understood that Lt. Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese ambassador to Berlin, would urge his government to comply immediately with the allied demand for unconditional surrender.

The American soldiers were able to have frequent talks with the Japanese, who were taken into custody early in May by the United States 3d infantry division.

To Leave for U. S.

The Japanese were scheduled to leave Austria by plane today for Le Havre, where they will board a vessel for the United States Thursday. An advance contingent of 33 top ranking members of the Japanese diplomatic staff in Berlin sailed earlier this month and now is in the United States.

Third army headquarters said the second party included the remainder of the staff and wives and children. The Japanese have been quartered in the luxurious Astoria hotel in Bad Gastein.

Altho no more American diplomatic personnel remain in Japanese hands, it was believed that the United States state department might be attempting to exchange Oshima and others for Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright and other high ranking Americans held by the Japanese.

Back Surrender Policy

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—The Times declared today that the Japanese government was "straining every nerve to achieve a compromise peace," but said anything less than unconditional surrender should be unacceptable to the allies.

"Both Britain and the United States realize that in the case of Japan, as in the case of Germany, half measures would be fatal," the Times said.

"It is not the extermination of the Japanese people at which the allies aim: It is the destruction of the aggressive potential of their system of government. On this capital aim there can be no kind of compromise."

350 U.S. PLANES RIP 13 JAP SHIPS IN SHANGHAI RAID

MANILA, July 25 [Wednesday]—(AP)—More than 350 far east air force bombers and fighters of all categories returned to Shanghai Sunday after a four day lull to sink or damage 13 warships and freighters and bomb three major airdromes.

Gen. MacArthur's bulletin today, announcing the strike 36 hours after Tokyo had acknowledged the raid, listed a destroyer, a 3,000 ton freighter transport, and a smaller freighter definitely sunk; a destroyer escort, two submarine chasers, a 10,000 ton freighter-transport, and six freighter-transports aggregating 27,000 tons probably sunk, and much small shipping damaged.

Three large fires and several smaller ones licked over parked Japanese aircraft caught on Kiangwan air center by flights of Liberators. Invader attack bombers hit Tachang and Tinghai air strips, spewing countless fragmentation bombs over dispersal areas and buildings. There was no interception. Tokyo claimed seven United States aircraft were downed by anti-aircraft fire.

An estimated 45 planes were caught on the ground at the three air fields and destroyed or seriously damaged.

FAMILY ELSAS: TRAGIC STORY OF NAZI BRUTALITY

Hang Berlin Ex-Mayor; Kin Tortured

[Here is the dramatic story of what the nazi regime and its concentration camps meant to one German family. It was written by Sigrid Schultz, head of The Tribune's Berlin bureau for many years, who before the war was well acquainted with Dr. Fritz Elsas, former mayor of Berlin. When Miss Schultz returned to Berlin recently, she sought to learn what had happened to him and to his family.]

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, July 24—This is the story of the family of Dr. Fritz Elsas, former mayor of Berlin. Dr. Elsas was hanged by the Nazis after the bomb plot against Hitler failed on July 20, 1944. His wife and two daughters were imprisoned. Earlier, his son had been sent to the Buchenwald concentration camp, and no word has been heard of his fate.

Early in the Nazi regime Dr. Elsas was dismissed from the municipal service because he was a Jew. However, he was permitted to draw a pension because of the prestige he enjoyed abroad and because his non-Jewish wife was a member of a prominent Wuerttemberg family.

Thru the war years, Dr. Elsas ostensibly devoted himself to his hobby of stamp collecting, but he kept in touch with anti-Nazi centers. One of his friends was Karl Goerdeler, former mayor of Leipzig, who talked a great deal about the necessity for overthrowing the Nazis and went about looking for candidates for the future government.

Goerdeler Finds Refuge

On July 27, a week after the attempt on Hitler's life, Goerdeler came to the garden gate of the Elsas home in Dahlem, near Berlin, and begged for a place to sleep. He said the Gestapo was on a rampage, picking up "enemies of the state," and that he was in hiding. Dr. Elsas, notwithstanding the fact that many of his neighbors were Nazis and could see them, talked with his friend in the garden.

Goerdeler persuaded Elsas to let him stay overnight. Allied bombers raided Berlin that night. The Elsas family had the best shelter in the neighborhood, and their nazi neighbors came to seek safety in it. Goerdeler had agreed to remain upstairs in case of a raid to avoid the neighbors, but he moved about the house and his footsteps were heard by all in the shelter.

The next day Goerdeler left, saying he would seek safety with relatives in the country. On Aug. 2 all Nazi papers published his picture and the government promised a reward of 1,000,000 marks for his capture. The Nazis had found a safe containing written plans of the anti-Hitler plotters and a list of potential candidates for offices after the Hitler regime was overthrown. The list included the name of Dr. Elsas.

Gestapo Seizes Him

On Aug. 10 the Gestapo went to the Elsas home, looking for Goerdeler. They found no trace of him, but they arrested Dr. Elsas, explaining that they were taking him along for questioning. His family never saw him again.

Soon after the arrest of Dr. Elsas, his wife and their older daughter, Marianne, were seized by the Gestapo and taken to Moabit prison. There they were locked in separate cells and questioned for many hours. Neither of the women knew anything about the anti-Hitler plot.

A nazi judge lectured Frau Elsas in this way: "Your husband has told us you are an exceptionally honest and brave woman. We need women like you in the [Nazi] party. Why don't you divorce that Jew? Within three weeks after your divorce, you'll be set free."

Chaplain Pursues Theme

Herr Poelschau, the Protestant chaplain of the prison, came to see Frau Elsas. After sympathizing with her, he undertook to advise her.

"You have not been happy with your husband in recent years," he said. "Why don't you divorce him?"

One day, while Frau Elsas was cleaning her cell, she found on a high ledge a small packet of papers bearing her husband's handwriting. As she started to read them, a matron entered the cell and snatched them out of her hand.

"Evidently the papers had been dropped into my room from the floor above," Frau Elsas said. "But I had no prison experience. I did not realize that messages are smuggled in and out of prison. The matron and Herr Poelschau told me they burned the notes.

Nazis Report Family False

"I'll never know what was in those notes, but I have a pretty clear idea. After my release, neighbors gave me a letter my husband had smuggled out of prison. The letter told how he suffered and how, on top of everything else, the Nazis tortured him by telling him his family no longer loved him."

Other women who were in jail with Frau Elsas and Marianne could seek the help of a lawyer, but as the wife and daughter of a Jew, legal aid was denied them. Another inmate of the prison was Frau Solf, who formerly played a big role in Berlin society as the wife of the German ambassador to Japan. Other prisoners included Countess Ballestrem and Frau Sperr, the wife of Bavaria's minister to Berlin in the days of the republic.

Frau Sperr received word that her husband and Dr. Elsas were hanged in January, and she gently told Frau Elsas, "You had better get used to the idea of never seeing your husband again."

Air raids brought terror to most of the prison inmates, but Frau Elsas said she was never afraid, even when she heard the shrieks of prison mates who feared they would never escape alive.

Frau Elsas worked while she was a prisoner, operating a sewing machine and darning socks. When she was released in April, the Nazis gave her a total of 14 marks for her eight months' labors.

In the meantime, the Elsas' younger daughter, Hanna, was in a hospital in Stuttgart, her mother's home city, suffering from a heart ailment and a concussion suffered in an air raid. When she received letters from her mother and sister in Moabit prison, she went there immediately to try to help them.

At the prison she was told she could not see them without a permit from the local court. At the court, she was told the matter was in the hands of the People's Supreme court, which all Germans knew usually dealt death to all those in its clutches.

10 High Officers in Chains

Six times Hanna went to the forbidding looking People's Supreme court building, guarded by the even more forbidding Death's Head SS [elite guard] troops. On one of her visits she passed a group of 10 high ranking army officers, chained together, who were being pushed along like cattle. She saw the judges in their scarlet robes, all high ranking storm troopers, who were to sit in judgment on the officers.

At last Hanna got permission to enter the court's file room. It was about 20 by 30 feet, lined with shelves that were crammed with the files of persons arrested in connection with the attempt on Hitler's life. An official told her there were 30,000 files in the room, but that the Elsas file was not there yet.

Hanna was advised to go to the Gestapo. This was bad news for a half-Jewish girl, but she was undaunted, and went to Gestapo headquarters, which sent her to the section dealing with Jews. There she was interviewed by Storm Troop Leader Guenther, son of the professor who evolved the racial theories so dear to the Nazis.

"How dare you inquire about the fate of Family Elsas?" he thundered at her.

Stands Thru 4 Hour Grilling

Hanna was turned over to the dreaded S. D. [security service], which kept her on her feet thru four hours of questioning. Fearing her days of freedom were over, she asked to go to the washroom and, altho a guard accompanied her, seized the opportunity to destroy all the addresses and letters she was carrying.

When she emerged, she was taken to the Jewish camp in Schulstrasse, where Jewish guards tried to pin a Jewish star on her. She refused to accept it, protesting that she was only half-Jewish and not entitled to wear the star. This turned the whole camp against her, for the Jews considered her a renegade.

One day she fainted, and a doctor ordered her taken to a hospital. Instead, she was taken to a police infirmary where she was confined with diseased streetwalkers.

Meanwhile, Hanna's sweetheart, Dr. Heuss, had learned of her arrest and was trying to trace her. When he learned she was in the hands of the security service, he succeeded in sending her a food package. This helped her recover some strength, which she needed during the cross-examinations that soon began.

On Grill for 13 Days

For 13 days she was questioned, sometimes for five hours without interruption. The investigators asked her about Goerdeler and his relationship with her family, and urged her to denounce "that Jew, Elsas." Hanna replied that she loved and respected her father, and that any decent German would always give shelter to a friend in need.

The Nazis then tried another tune, urging her to sign an admission of guilt "because I failed to report my father as a friend of Goerdeler." Again she refused.

The next day Hanna was told that she was free. Elated, she borrowed carfare from another inmate because the Nazis had taken all her money. But she was not freed. Two policemen put her in a patrol wagon, which took her to Alexanderplatz prison.

"Jewess Elsas, you go to Ravensbrueck," she was told.

A Ticket to Eternity

Hanna knew that Ravensbrueck was the first station on the way to Theresienstad, from where there was no way back. In the Jewish camp she had seen 10 women kill themselves when ordered to prepare to go to Ravensbrueck.

She fainted. When she returned to consciousness, she was being beaten by three policewomen, who thought she was pretending to be unconscious. They tore out her hair and threw pails of icy water over her.

"I shrieked for help while the policewomen kicked and hit me and called me vile names," Hanna said. "They fastened chains to me and attached these to rings on the wall. At last a doctor came, gave me some medicine, and I was taken to a cell."

[Concluding instalment will be printed tomorrow.]

Divorce Revealed

Arline Judge and Capt. J. R. Addams at the time of their marriage. [Associated Press Photo]

Neither Judge Joseph Sabath nor any of the spectators or attaches in Superior court knew that the Mrs. Mary Ann Addams granted a divorce May 17 was Arline Judge, the former film star. Her attorney, Phil R. Davis, disclosed the former actress' identity yesterday.

She was divorced from her fourth husband, Capt. James R. Addams of the British royal air force. Her fifth, Davis said, will be Morgan Ryan, 41, an executive with Grant Advertising, Inc., of 919 N. Michigan av., who has a divorce suit pending against his wife, Lucia, in Superior court.

When Miss Judge appeared before Judge Sabath she gave her age as 33 and listed her Chicago address as 5518 Everett av., that of Davis' sister-in-law, Mrs. Annetta Davis, who was one of the two required witnesses where desertion is charged. Miss Judge alleged that Addams deserted her eight days after their Santa Barbara, Cal., marriage on Oct. 7, 1942.

U. S. LEAFLETS BRING IN MORE JAP PRISONERS

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., July 24—A direct ratio between the number of propaganda leaflets dropped over Jap lines and the number of Japs who surrendered during the closing months of the Philippines campaign is shown by a table just compiled by the psychological warfare branch [PWB] of Gen. MacArthur's headquarters.

Altho PWB admits that the increase in the number of prisoners "cannot be attributed directly to the intensification of our leaflet dropping," it adds that the "correlation between the two figures presents an interesting comparison."

The figures:

Oct. 20, 1944, to Dec. 1, 116,000 leaflets, 93 prisoners; Dec. 2 to Jan. 1, 1945, 322,000 leaflets, 241 prisoners; January, 1,117,000 leaflets, 859 prisoners; February, 4,035,000 leaflets, 906 prisoners; March, 9,540,000 leaflets, 714 prisoners; April, 9,504,000 leaflets, 1,230 prisoners; May, 8,585,000 leaflets, 1,777 prisoners; June, 15,819,000 leaflets, 4,175 prisoners.

Come in Waving Leaflets

Many prisoners came in to American lines waving surrender leaflets or safe conduct passes. Others came in after listening to loudspeaker broadcasts or after fellow soldiers who had surrendered were sent back to Japanese lines to persuade them to give up.

Much of the credit for the effect of this morale warfare is given by PWB to the terrific pounding handed by the air, land, and sea forces as well as to the lack of Japanese supplies and the resultant hunger and sickness among troops.

But nonetheless, the Japs are surrendering by the hundreds, an important change since the early days of the Pacific war, when, for example, the first American soldiers to take a Jap officer prisoner on Guadalcanal were given silver stars by the delighted commanding general.

Jap prisoners tell their captors that many more of their fellows would surrender except for fear of their own officers. Others, they say, fear they will be tortured and killed by the Americans. Leaflets promising good treatment are doing much to overcome this fear.

Jap Officers Alarmed

Some prisoners said that so long as they had food and ammunition they laughed at the American leaflets but that after the supplies ran low they remembered what they had read. One Jap with a leaflet fastened to his uniform was captured while helping himself to American food supplies.

Prisoners say that Jap officers, alarmed by the American propaganda, have ordered their men to bring in all leaflets they find, and have posted severe penalties for failure to do so. In the front lines, however, American news propaganda is eagerly grabbed and read, and its effect is "very distressing," they say.

Altho more interested in the psychological effect of their leaflets, PWB men cite an instance where words even sank a ship. A wooden enemy ship of 4,000 tons was sunk by a plane which, when it ran out of bombs, made a mast high attack and dropped bundles of leaflets weighing hundreds of pounds that crashed into the side of the ship and split it wide open.

The PWB work here is under the supervision of Brig. Gen. Bonner F. Feller, woh is also military secretary to Gen. MacArthur. Among officers under him are Lt. Arthur Behrstock, former Chicago newspaper man whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Behrstock, live at 540 Briar pl., Chicago.

STUTTGART LAYS 1,198 RAPINGS TO FRENCH TROOPS

Denies Senegalese Joined in Mass Attack

Place square in Stuttgart. In it were about 40 professional prostitutes. The shelter is elaborate and fitted with beds.

It is a thoroly established fact that hundreds of women were treated in hospitals here and by private physicians. There probably were numerous other cases where women and girl victims did not report or seek medical attention because of shame.

Dr. Sieveke, Stuttgart surgeon of Carl Olga hospital, told this correspondent that he had treated 30 women who had been raped. He described them as having wounds and bruises on their heads and limbs.

Dr. Sieveke, from his contacts with other hospitals and with colleagues, estimated that there had been perhaps 4,000 rape cases during the French occupation.

It is also an undisputed fact that Bishop Theophile Wurms of the Wuerttemberg diocese of the German Evangelical church and Dr. Karl Hartenstein, prelate of the Evangelical church in Stuttgart, made three strenuous protests to Gen. Schwartz, French commanding general in Stuttgart.

Burgomaster Klett and Catholic religious authorities also complained and Gen. Schwartz promised he would do all in his power to curb the Moroccan troops.

Puts Figure at 5,000

Dr. Hartenstein estimated the rape cases at 5,000, and said that in the town of Vaihingen, near here, with a population of 12,000, there were 500 reported cases of rape.

Hartenstein said two teachers, who live near his house at 29 Gins Heide strasse and are between 50 and 60, were raped by the Moroccans and that four daughters of the local leader of the German equivalent of the Salvation Army also had been attacked.

Hartenstein also complained of the French practice of setting up brothels for troops. He said girls were induced to enter them on promises of food and luxuries and that there were between 15 and 20 such houses in Stuttgart during the French occupation, licensed and unlicensed.

On the other hand, Police Chief Weber said there were only three brothels in town.

Frau Schumacher, secretary of the police women's section, has submitted a report on 31 flagrant cases of rape with names and addresses. She said that on the night the French evacuated the city a child of 9 was raped and killed, her mother also raped and shot, and her father killed by Moroccans. Police have photographs supporting her story.

Deny Dispatching Troops

American authorities of the 7th army and the 100th division, which now occupies Stuttgart, denied today the story that Gen. Devers, commanding general of the 6th army group, sent a division here to end the raping. The fact is that Gen. Devers as commander of the 6th army group which included the French 1st army, wanted Stuttgart occupied by Americans for military reasons. He sent the 100th division to Stuttgart, but the French refused to get out and the matter became a political question which was settled finally with the French remaining in the city until July 8.

Against statements of Stuttgart residents about the many rape cases stands the assertion, also, of Col. William W. Dawson, chief of the military government for the 7th army. Dawson said he believes the story of French rapes highly exaggerated and even questions the police figures of 1,198.

Dawson came into Stuttgart on April 22, the day after French occupation, and found the situation normal, he said. At that time German girls were openly in the company of French Moroccans and other troops in the streets of Stuttgart, he recalled.

Sees Propaganda Motive

Dawson said he thinks the rape story is exaggerated and spread for propaganda and political reasons and to split the allies.

Dawson's findings agree with the official denial issued by Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny and also by French military government authorities in Baden.

Even after extensive investigation it seems difficult to get at the real truth about the raping in view of the various statements. Further documentation on the case should be available soon in Washington, D. C., however, for a naval lieutenant of the American intelligence service went back to Washington at the end of June with documents and data after conferring with hospital authorities by whom raped women were treated.

WITH THE 39TH SCOUT DOG PLATOON IN BAGUIO MOUNTAINS, Luzon, July 24—As the dozen men in the patrol walked the trail down into the valley the rain drenched forest gave way to thick brush, shutting off the last bit of breeze.

Rin, a light tan and black shepherd scout dog, paused. Walt Brown, former Phillips Oil company salesman and now at 39 a sergeant in this platoon, hesitated before he urged Rin on. The breeze hadn't been much good, since it had been coming from the side, but it had been adequate to carry the scent from any Nip who might have been in that direction. But now that the bush had closed in Rin's value as a Jap detector was down almost to nil. Conditions were much different from what they were a few days ago when Rin and Teddy, another dog, had sniffed out some Nips on a hill 1,000 yards away.

On that day Brown and Teddy's handler, Sgt. Jefferson [Dusty] Rhodes, Plainview, Ill., had called for artillery to pound a hilltop. When the patrol went over later the men found about 300 Nips scattered about, mostly in pieces.

Rin Scores Once More

Rin's pause today was brief. With Brown holding his leash tightly and watching every ripple in his fur, Rin went on down the trail. The doughboys followed single file, rifles slung over shoulders. They had confidence that Rin would warn them of any peril. Rin and nine other dogs had led more than 250 patrols and never once had they let the doughboys get ambushed.

True, one dog handler had been killed two months ago, but there had been no ambush. His dog had detected the presence of a sniper but the infantry had been unable to locate the Jap in the brush. He and the dog had gone ahead, the dog tracking the sniper like a bloodhound.

For a few minutes Rin and Brown and the patrol walked along the trail, hardly bothering to peer thru the bush. Then Rin froze like a bird dog. His hair bristled.

They're Safe, by Seconds

Brown motioned to the patrol to get down and dived for the brush. The dog bounced atop him. They were safe by seconds; even as they hit the ground a line of machine gun bullets clattered down the trail.

Inch by inch Brown crawled thru the brush. Behind him the patrol was doing likewise. They were within 25 feet of the gun but it was so well hidden that an attack would be suicidal. The idea now was to get out, call for artillery, and then go in and pick up the Japs' pieces.

Every few minutes as Brown crept along, closely followed by the dog, the Jap gunner clipped the brush overhead. In half an hour or so Brown and Rin reached a gulley. They thought they were safe. But then three mortars bracketed them. Brown didn't wait for the fourth; he jumped to his feet and ran, the dog bounding at his side.

Another Freeze, Then Friends

As the gulley neared a wooded intersection with another, Rin again froze. Somebody was ahead. Whether the somebody was an American or a Nip was beyond Rin's capabilities of identification. Brown took a chance and crept into the woods. The somebody was his patrol.

Soon artillery shells were coming in. The boys gathered around Rin. "Good dog," they said. "Saved us again."

"Just barely," said Brown with unsoldierly modesty, "just barely."

1,000 JAPS DIE TRYING TO FLEE TRAP IN BURMA

CALCUTTA, India, July 24 (AP)—Allied troops have killed more than 1,000 Japanese and captured 80 attempting to escape a trap in lower Burma, southeast Asia command headquarters announced today.

These losses represented about one-fifth of the estimated strength of the Japanese pocketed near Pegu, 45 miles northeast of Rangoon.

Other Japanese still were striking at British positions along a 77 mile stretch of the Rangoon-Mandalay road between Toungoo, 150 miles north of Rangoon, southward to Nyaungleben. In the lower Sittang river area Gurkha troops attacked enemy positions 25 miles northeast of Pegu.

REYNAUD PUTS LEOPOLD ON HIS TRAITORS' LIST

Cites Arbitrary Rule

Reynaud repeatedly told of the persecution of his late minister of the interior, Georges Mandel, and, discussing Petain's actions against himself and Mandel, asserted that Louis XIV, [who is supposed to have said, "I am the state"], was forced to bow to the law of the country, but that Petain fired the judges or arbitrarily revised the laws when verdicts were passed against him that did not please him. Mandel, he said, was "shamefully assassinated—not by the Germans but by French killers protected by Marshal Petain."

Reynaud charged that Adm. Darlan told him and others in conversation that rather than surrender the French fleet to the enemy he would order it to put out to sea. He said that Darlan actually issued orders in 1940 for the fleet to scuttle itself in case of emergency—the same orders that were carried out at Toulon two years later.

Tells of Darlan Change

But, according to Reynaud, Darlan, after making his original promise, was approached by Petain. This was a few days before the capitulation.

"This regime must be changed," Petain allegedly told the admiral. "What we should have is a sort of consulate and if they ask me to be consul you are the one I shall designate as my friend."

"In a second, gentlemen, all Darlan's fine resolutions vanished in thin air," Reynaud declared, adding that Darlan was corrupted by Petain and Weygand because they knew that the fleet would be demanded in the surrender terms and they wanted to be sure that it was on hand."

Reynaud said he telegraphed Prime Minister Churchill telling him of Darlan's promise to send the fleet to sea.

"But," he added, "England did not believe France's word of honor—and we had Mers-el-Kebir." [Mers-el-Kebir is a French naval base at Oran, Algeria, where the British fleet, after giving an ultimatum to the French fleet there on July 3, 1940, to surrender and having it rejected, fired on the French ships.

PRO-GERMANS LEOPOLD'S PALS, IN 1940, CHARGE

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 24 (AP)—Foreign Minister Spaak told parliament today that King Leopold had pro-Germans in his entourage in 1940 and accused the exiled monarch of having declared at that time that the allied cause was lost.

Answering a two hour defense of Leopold by Henri de Vleeschouwer for the Catholic [pro-Leopold] party, Spaak reviewed the 1940 cabinet's discussions with the sovereign during the period the Germans were overrunning Belgium.

Spaak asserted the cabinet then believed that Leopold had surrender in mind early in the campaign. He said the cabinet's last "and most painful" interview with Leopold took place near Bruges the night of May 24-25, 1940. Spaak quoted Leopold as saying: "The allied cause is lost. France is beaten. England will only continue the struggle in her dominions and colonies. Belgium's part in this war has come to an end. We can only hope for an independence of a reduced character."

Illness Causes Lehman to Cancel UNRRA Tour

BELGRADE, July 24 (AP)—Herbert H. Lehman canceled his tour of UNRRA installations in Yugoslavia today because of an attack of dysentery, the organization announced. Because of time limitations, the UNRRA director probably will cancel plans to tour devastated regions of Yugoslavia, and will go to London as soon as he is able to travel.

6 TROOPSHIPS, LST FLOTILLA RETURN 2,238

Sail at $100 Per

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—It was reported by a responsible party today that the British ministry of war transport charged approximately $100 for each American soldier traveling on the British liners Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, now being used for United States troop redeployment. The British government must repay the fee to the shipping companies actually operating the liners, he said. The source declared the whole question was one of reverse lend-lease.

New York, July 24 (AP)—More than 500 troops came home today on the Liberty ship Ward Hunt, vanguard of six transports and a five ship LST flotilla arriving in New York harbor with a total of 2,238 United States troops, 323 navy personnel and 274 Dutch marines.

Troops from the Hunt were taken to Camp Kilmer, N. J. Some will be reassigned and other discharged.

Other transports arriving were the James W. Riley with 573 troops; Mormaclark, 15; Mormacmoon, 580, Thomas Hart Benton, 463, and Frederick Ices, eight. The LST group, first to enter New York harbor since V-E day, is carrying 28 repatriated war prisoners.

Units scheduled to arrive from Europe also included, at Boston, the 153d finance disbursing section, 66th replacement battalion, 443d and 440th military police prisoner of war procurement companies, 313th quartermaster service company, and the 396th and 397th quartermaster truck companies.

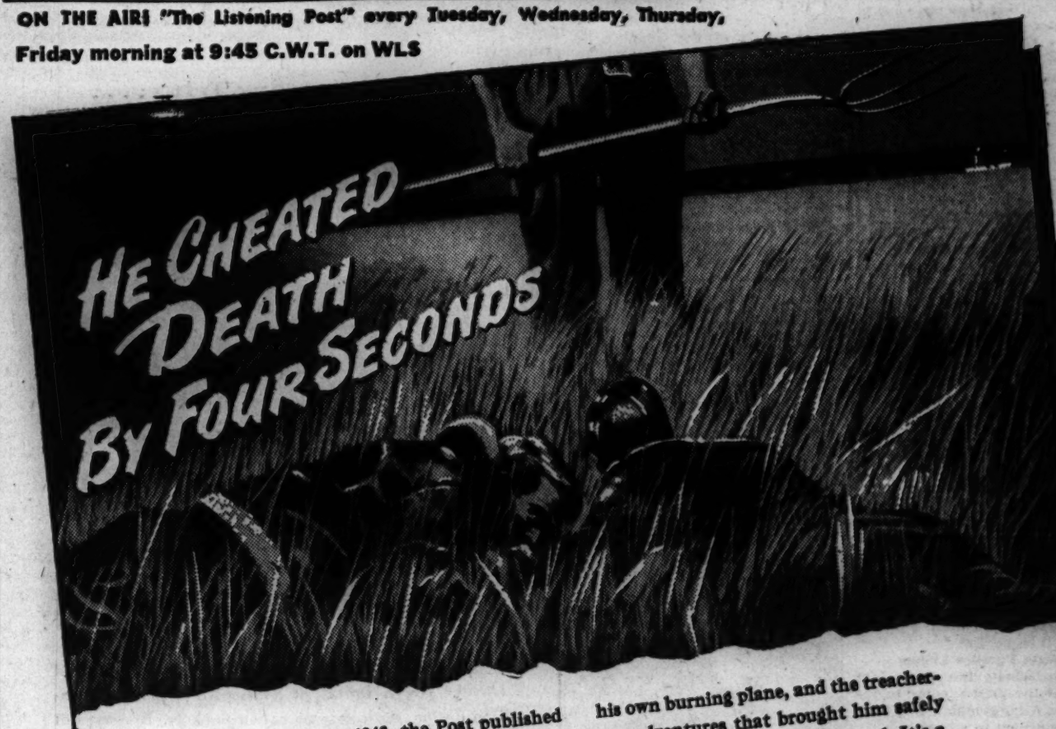
ON THE AIR! "The Listening Post" every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday morning at 9:45 C.W.T. on WLS



IN November, 1943, the Post published one of the greatest of all war stories, "I Saw Regensburg Destroyed," by Lt. Col. Beirne Lay, Jr.

Now, with censorship relaxed, this courageous wing leader tells another great war story of his crash, his miraculous escape from death in the flaming mass of his own burning plane, and the treacherous adventures that brought him safely through the French Underground. It's a three-part epic by a flyer who writes from the flak-torn cabin of a Liberator and the danger-filled escape routes through France. It's a truly magnificent piece of war reporting, not to be missed.

URGE ARMY FREE 10,000 SKILLED RAILROAD MEN

ODT Chief 'Yelling Head Off' to Move Trains

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 24—The senate war investigating committee today ordered its staff to see if it can get the army to help it work out a plan for immediate furloughs for 10,000 skilled railroaders to relieve a man power crisis on western railroads.

The committee's action followed testimony given earlier in the day by J. M. Johnson, office of defense transportation director, that the army had transferred at least one railroad battalion to the artillery and moved it to the Pacific, despite the fact that troop and war material movements are threatened by railroad man power shortages.

"The western railroads are the needle's eye in the whole war transportation picture," the ODT head told the committee. "Give us man power and we'll get the job done. Otherwise I'm afraid it won't be done. The picture is gloomy."

Yells for More Men

Johnson said he had repeatedly asked the army to release skilled railroaders—he said he needed 75,000—but had been unsuccessful.

In addition, he said, the army had drafted 4,400 railroaders between the ages of 18 and 29 last winter.

"What steps are you taking to get more men?" asked Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.].

"By yelling my head off!" roared Johnson, pounding the table.

Following a closed meeting of the committee this afternoon, Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] told reporters the committee had ordered its investigators to start conferences immediately with the army about temporary furloughs for skilled railroaders. He also announced the committee will call on the war man power commission and other civilian agencies to recruit the 65,000 civilians for railroad work recently asked for by President Truman.

Surplus Planes Sought

Another plan of the committee to relieve the nation's transportation crisis, Mead said, was to have the army release more than 1,000 transport planes now in Europe. The planes are DC-3s which were used to transport fuel, munitions, and other supplies during the European war but are now surplus, in the opinion of committee members.

Mead said the planes could be used in this country to transport up to 20,000 returned soldiers a day from debarkation ports to reclassification and deployment centers, thus easing the load now being borne by the railroads.

Ferguson suggested in an interview that army officers and government officials could curtail their traveling. They should stand in line with other citizens and await their turn for reservations, he said.

Johnson told the committee if civilians "continue to behave" he will not have to impose any more travel bans. After the hearing, he told reporters another "if" was whether he got the man power he has demanded.

STIFF BREEZES WHIP OREGON'S GREAT BLAZE

Portland, Ore., July 24 (AP)—The army of men fighting the great Tillamook forest fire redeployed tonight to meet the roaring new breakout that is expected.

All sectors were relatively quiet during the day, but humudity was down to the low thirties and stiff northwest breezes whipped the flames. Nearly 3,000 men were around the 140 odd mile perimeter of the burning area.

Unless humudity rises and the winds die, "all hell can break loose," one fire fighter said.

Spot fires set by wind-borne embers Sunday night were spreading and new ones were breaking out.

SLEEP-SHIFTERS SHIFT; TROOP TRAIN ROLLS ON

Begrimed Coach Men Move Into Pullmans

Fort Worth, Tex., July 24 [Special]—Half of 585 of Texas war veterans arrived home from Europe today, cool and clean, traveling in air conditioned Pullman cars while their buddies literally "sweated it out" in hot, sooty day coaches, already having had a "turn" in the sleepers.

The men were rotated between the Pullmans and the coaches and as a result all rode part way from Camp Kilmer, N. J., to Texas in luxury.

One changeover was made in St. Louis last night, about the halfway mark on the trip from New York to Fort Sam Houston. The group which had been in the Pullmans since the train left New York the previous night moved out of their preferred accommodations and the sitter-uppers moved in.

Change Easy to Take

"This won't be hard to take," grinned a sweaty, begrimed veteran as he prepared to enter an air conditioned Pullman. "Turn about's fair play."

As an experiment, "it stinks," said Lt. John W. Bowers of Harlingen, Tex., mess officer who rides troop trains as part of the administrative force.

It was generally agreed, however, that getting home was the main thing and riding the Pullmans even part of the way was that much better. Many of them commented that the sleep-shift train was the closest to luxury travel they had seen since leaving the United States.

"You should see the European trains," said Corp. Cecil Anderson of Beaumont.

The coach riders told of their efforts to sleep during the previous night's heat. Some stretched out on the floor and others dismantled seats to try to improvise beds but the crowding and high temperature kept them from getting much rest. It was too hot to keep windows closed and opening them let in plenty of dirt.

Meantime, their buddies in the eight air conditioned Pullmans were getting eight or nine hours of restful sleep. In the morning the berths were made up in the regular manner and the occupants sat during the day in cool comfort. Pullman porters were on duty.

First Such Train

The 16 car train—eight Pullmans, five coaches, two kitchen baggage cars and one heavy baggage car—is a test trip train which the war department is trying out on the 55 hour ride to Texas as a means to speed home returning veterans and improve their travel conditions. This is the first time Pullmans and coaches were used in combination, previous troop trains having been mostly all coaches with only a few all Pullman trains.

POINT DISCHARGE PLAN IS PLACED IN EFFECT BY NAVY

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—The navy today put into effect its program for release of certain older personnel on their request.

The program, under which approximately 30,600 reserve officers, warrant officers, and enlisted men are expected to be eligible for release by next Dec. 1, sets up a formula by which men will be allowed 1 point for each year of age figured to the nearest birthday and 1 point for each four months of active duty since Sept. 1, 1939.

To be eligible, reserve line officers, enlisted reservists, navy inductees, and enlisted regulars serving under expired enlistments must have a minimum of 53 points. Reserve officers of the supply corps must have 55, and reserve officers of the civil engineers corps, 57.

Orders putting the new program into effect went out today to all commanding officers of the navy and the Coast Guard.

DEATH SENTENCE FOR SLAYER OF EGYPT PREMIER

CAIRO, Egypt, July 24 [Reuters]—The fate of Mahmoud Issawi, 26 year old Egyptian lawyer, found guilty of murdering Ahmed Maher Pasha, premier of Egypt, last February, tonight rested with Prime Minister Mahmoud Fahmy el Nokrashy Pasha.

Nokrashy in his capacity as military governor of Egypt, must confirm the death sentence passed today. However, the prime minister was a witness during the trial and, in view of the generally accepted principle that a witness cannot act as judge in the same case, it has been argued that he is not competent to pronounce upon the verdict.

Ahmed Maher Pasha was shot while walking from the Egyptian chamber of deputies to the senate after he had announced Egypt's declaration of war on the axis to the lower house. He stopped to pose for a press photographer, and at that moment Issawi fired five shots at him.

AMERICANS WANT BASES IN PACIFIC, MANILA IS TOLD

MANILA, P. I., July 24 (AP)—American public opinion favors maintenance of post-war defensive bases in the Pacific, members of a congressional committee investigating potential naval bases said today.

The eight man party conferred with Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Kinkaid, met the Philippine president, Sergio Osmena, and toured naval bases in the Philippines on their two day visit to the islands, which ended today. Their itinerary included Okinawa, Iwo, the Marianas, and the Marshall Islands.

In the party are Representatives Izac [D., Cal.], chairman; Biemiller [D., Wis.], Bishop [R., Ill.], Gore [D., Tenn.], Jackson [D., Wash.], Patterson [D., Cal.], and Bonner [D., N. C.] and Delegate Farrinoton [D., Hawaii].

54,814 SOLDIERS TRAVEL IN DAY; SET RAIL RECORD

Railroads on July 11 transported 54,814 soldiers, the highest total in history for any single day, it was announced yesterday by Col. I. Sewell Morris, chairman of the western railroad urgency committee. He said the next highest number, 54,554, were transported July 6.

Morris estimated that during July almost a million soldiers will travel by rail, an increase of approximately 15 per cent over June's 840,000 total.

He said he believed the number of men to travel by rail would increase month by month until redeployment is completed.

Need 65,000 Workers

Morris said 65,000 more employes are needed by the railroads to help them carry out the gigantic transport project. In Chicago, he said, applicants should apply to the railroad retirement board, 409 Washington blvd., or at any United States employment service office.

Neither Col. Morris nor railroad officials who conferred with authorities in Washington would estimate how soon the present restrictions on civilian travel would be lifted.

Blame Lack of Priorities

"Where to place the blame for the present situation is a question," a railroad official said. "Some railroad men contend the railroads have been treated most unfairly by the government. The railroads never asked for money; all they wanted was the recognition that they were an essential part of the war program and the right to spend their own money for equipment. But they never got it.

"The refusal to give the railroads war plant priorities, and the tremendous troop movements, are responsible for the rigid curtailment in civilian travel."

The Pullman company yesterday issued a statement in which it said that "more than two-thirds of the nation's sleeping car beds" are now available for men and women in service.

300,000 U. S TROOPS BEGIN INVASION OF SWITZERLAND TODAY

BERNE, Switzerland, July 24—At 6:15 a. m. tomorrow, the largest organized invasion in this country's history will occur when a first contingent of some 300,000 American GI's crosses this frontier post for a seven day tour.

The lead group will number 300 and will be followed by a similar number daily for the first week. Later, this number will gradually increase until by the end of August the men will be arriving in groups of 1,000 a day.

During their stay, the men will remain in conducted groups, visiting main points of interest, including the Jungfraujoch and Bernina mountains.

BED KEYBOARD DESIGNED FOR SAILOR PIANIST

New York, July 24 [Special]—The dream of once again being able to play the piano, that had seemed as wild a figment of the imagination as it was possible to invent, has come true at St. Alban's naval hospital for Alan C. Wagner, aviation motor mechanic, 3d class, of the navy, who is paralyzed from the waist down.

Wagner, 21, of Garden City, N. Y., was severely wounded on the escort carrier Bismarck Sea when it was sunk by the Japs off Iwo Island last Feb. 21.

A young woman friend, Mrs. Tinker Connolly of Garden City, aware of Al's dream of playing again, spoke of his plight to her father, C. Brown Hyatt, a consulting engineer.

The result was a portable, full sized piano keyboard which can be propped at any angle and in any position on Al's bed and is electrically attached by as many wires to an upright piano on the floor of Al's ward.

BRINDISI PARK WADING POOLS COOL OFF KIDS

Youngsters in the neighborhood of Brindisi park, Erie and Morgan sts., could cool off yesterday without going to the lake front. They merely left their homes and went to the park. There they waded in the 10 and 24 inch pools built and maintained by Joseph J. Brindisi, president of the Off the Street Club for Boys. More than 50 youngsters used the park last night.

Brindisi, popular as Bull among the children, veteran of World War I., and an employe of the sanitary district, is general guardian of the neighborhood. He started his one man park 13 years ago. Now it contains, in addition to the two wading pools, a soft ball diamond, a horseshoe court, and a miniature golf course. He named the park in honor of his soldier nephew, James Brindisi, who was killed in action in France in June, 1944.

Brindisi keeps a tight curb on young roughnecks. He doesn't hesitate to whack them when they get boisterous. When the neighborhood children are playing at his park, they're out of mischief, he holds, and N. Racine av. police say Brindisi has been a wholesome influence.

HINT CONVICTS GOT NIGHT OFF TO KILL A MAN

Michigan Prison Vice and Gambling Bared

"Some inmates," he related, "were permitted the solace of wives or sweethearts in screened hospital beds. A witness stated that by giving $1 to a nurse, an inmate could be admitted to the prison hospital."

He explained that by using blankets and a hot water bottle, an inmate could increase his temperature to a point where he could be listed as having a fever, then a female visitor could be brought to him and a sheet would be hung over the door for privacy.

Visited Jackson Houses

"Some inmates testified they were transported by prison employes to houses of prostitution in the city of Jackson. Inmates have testified to being taken and employes have admitted taking inmates to such places.

"Some stole prison produce with which to pay prostitutes for their services. One testified that for two bushels of potatoes, the best prostitute could be obtained."

Dethmers said that inmates were taken for a week-end party with women to the resort cottage of a prison official and that testimony showed many instances of prison officials entertaining inmates in their homes, from which the inmates returned to prison in a drunken condition.

Had Noisy Parties

"Testimony shows many instances of prison officials entertaining inmates in their homes at noisy parties from which inmates came back to prison at 3 o'clock in the morning in a drunken condition," Dethmers said.

Favored convicts, his report continued, "had the run of the prison, and were permitted to be entertained at parties outside the prison." Inmates with "imposing criminal records," it said, went to outside shows and other places as they chose, to ball games and county fairs, traveled to Detroit in an official's car, but were always counted as present in the prison.

The attorney general said prison officials have refused to testify in court against inmates, explaining "we have to live with them."

10 Bookies in Prison

Other charges in his report included the following:

At least 10 bookies operated in the prison. One inmate who wrote tickets on horse races has several other inmates as runners taking bets. Gambling in the prison is widespread, with as much as $1,500 at stake in dice games.

Convicts were able to buy choice assignments from employes or other inmates for prices ranging from $3 to $50. Some prisoners went direct from quarantine to "honor blocks."

Conferences were permitted in private offices between "big shot inmates and visiting gangsters and hoodlums."

Operated Pawn Shops

Intoxicating liquor, called "spud juice," was manufactured on a large scale in the prison. Liquor also was smuggled into prison from outside.

Convicts operated pawnshops and loan businesses within the prison walls, charging exorbitant interest rates.

Monopoly rights were held by certain inmates on concessions and the manufacture of articles which did an aggregate business of more than $100,000 a year.

Medley Among Big Shots

A list of "big shot" convicts whom Dethmers names as belonging to the clique that had controlel affairs in the prison included Joseph D. Medley, a robber-kidnaper who escaped from the penitentiary last November, killed a woman in Washington, D. C., and is now awaiting electrocution. The ease of Medley's escape eventually led to the present investigation.

Dethmers cited testimony that Medley was permitted to leave the prison on a permit signed by Deputy Warden D. C. Pettit on the allegation he was going to Jackson to obtain literature for a prison war bond drive, in which he was a collector.

Medley was taken to the home of Joseph Poirier, a prison official in charge of convict's funds, and there given a suit of civilian clothes, the report quoted testimony. The convict was then allowed his freedom in the city on the day of his escape, Nov. 27.

The dapper prisoner had lost $700 in a prison dice game the day before, the testimony showed, but he recouped that loss with a profit by taking with him more than $1,000 of other convicts' money which had been contributed for war bonds.

CRUISER BOMBED AT LEYTE; RAIDS OKINAWA JAPS

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—Japanese suicide planes seriously hurt the light cruiser St. Louis in the battle for Leyte gulf, but they couldn't keep her from coming back for the Okinawa campaign. The navy told her story today.

In the Okinawa operation, the 10,000 ton ship lobbed a total of 26,265 rounds of five and six inch projectiles, weighing 2,116,585 pounds, into Japanese installations.

The greatest single day's expenditure was on April 1, when 1,450 rounds were fired to support initial landings.

Ten Planes Appear

In the fight for Leyte, the St. Louis had delivered close support to the Philippine landings for 13 days when, on Nov. 27, 1944, she came under suicide attack.

She was engaged in fueling exercises when a Japanese plane dived out of the clouds to drop a bomb. Hardly had the bomb splash disappeared when a formation of 10 enemy planes appeared overhead.

The St. Louis' guns opened fire when a single engined enemy dive-bomber peeled off in a dive. The plane was knocked out of control and crashed in flames against the cruiser's starboard side.

Fire and explosions aboard the cruiser attracted other suicide planes, and five other kamikazes singled out the burning ship.

Another Dive Bomber Strikes

A second attack came from another single-engine dive bomber which the ship's gunners shot down to port. A third was splashed on the starboard side.

Then a single engine fighter, altho well riddled, scored a near miss on the port side, ripping away some of the ship's hull plating.

Altogether in the action six of 10 attacking planes were shot down in less than 40 minutes, four by the St. Louis alone and two others with the assistance of other ships. The St. Louis lost 15 men killed.

Altho seriously damaged, the St. Louis, thru courageous fighting and damage control, was still afloat and full of fight when the enemy attacks ended.

Then came the job of battle damage repair, and finally the return to action.

A STOLEN KISS COSTS CLIFFORD 213 SMACKERS

The kiss he stole Monday from a pretty hitch-hiker cost Clifford Asselborn, 28, of Batavia township, Kane county, $213 yesterday. A fine of $200 and $13 costs were assessed against him by Justice of the Peace Arthur Hoover in Batavia. Two young women testified that they signaled Asselborn for a ride into Batavia. When they reached their destination, they said, Asselborn asked, "Don't you think the ride was worth a kiss?" Without waiting for an answer he grabbed the one nearest him and kissed her. They notified Assistant State's Atty. David B. Givler and Asselborn was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

She was granted $50 a week support, plus $50 a month for rent, and custody of Michael.

GIRLS MISTAKEN FOR DEER; 1 SHOT DEAD; 1 WOUNDED

Westminster, Vt., July 24 (AP)—Sheriff Patrick J. O'Keefe today said Dorothy Barnes, 19, was killed last night and her sister, Margaret, 17, wounded critically by three young hunters who mistook them for deer.

The sheriff said the three boys, Herbert W. Hall, 19, Francis E. Nowers, 19, and Edwin F. Rathone, 18, obtained permission to shoot deer that had been damaging the Barnes melon patch.

When darkness arrived, they went to the melon patch. They saw some figures moving, O'Keefe said, and opened fire. The figures were Dorothy and Margaret. The boys were detained for questioning.

Who's Catherine Wilson, Found Roaming in Loop?

Central police yesterday were continuing their efforts to identify a woman about 65 whom they found wandering in the loop July 15. TRIPLE CHANGE MADE IN PACIFIC AIR COMMANDS

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—The army today announced a triple change in Pacific air commands to help blast Japan with a greater bomb tonnage than ever rained on Germany.

Lt. Gen. Eaker, deputy commander of army air forces, announced that:

1. Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May, a veteran of the B-29 strikes against Japan, has been promoted from command of the 20th air force to be chief of staff to Gen. Spaatz, commander of strategic army air forces.

2. Lt. Gen Nathan F. Twining, of Monroe, Wis., will be head of the 20th air force succeeding Le May. Twining formerly commanded the big 15th air force in Africa and Italy.

Tonnage to Increase

3. Maj. Gen. John B. Brooks, of Greenwich, N. Y., will be commanding general of the 11th army air force, recently active in attacks against Paramushiro and the Kuriles.

Lt. Gen. Twining [left], Maj. Gen. Le May, and Maj. Gen. Brooks [right].

The bomb tonnage creating havoc among the Japanese already is 60 per cent as heavy as the greatest flung against Germany. Eaker pledged that the figure will reach a record 270,000 tons a month by next March. This compares with the peak 185,000 tons a month dropped on the Germans.

B-17 Orders Canceled

Eaker disclosed the army has canceled all remaining orders for production of the B-17 Flying Fortress, having a sufficient fleet of this type of bomber for the Pacific war.

Including a similar cutback six weeks ago on the B-24 Liberator, the army now has canceled orders for 44,300 planes which Eaker said would have cost $7,600,000,000.

Eaker said that a group of the B-32 bombers, a new heavy bomber larger even than the B-29 Super Fortresses, will go into operation against Japan by the end of the year.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN PLUNGE

GREEN APPROVES PENSION RAISE FROM $40 TO $45

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., July 24—Choosing the less expensive of two alternatives, Gov. Green today signed a bill increasing from $40 to $45 a month the maximum old age pensions in Illinois. A further increase to $50 a month is provided should the federal government provide funds to match the state increase.

The governor vetoed a conflicting bill which provided for no increase in grants but which would greatly increase the number of recipients.

Earlier $113,300,000 had been appropriated for old age pensions for the next two years. The bill signed by Green adds $5,000,000 to take care of the increased maximum grants.

The bill approved reduces residence requirements from five out of the last nine years in Illinois to one year of residence in the state.

It also loosens the citizenship requirement by extending aid to those who have lived in the United States for 25 years without becoming citizens.

Green vetoed a bill to increase Chicago park district pension benefits up to 75 per cent of salaries, and also vetoed a bill requiring hospitals and physicians to provide blood plasma, penicillin, and sulfa to patients who need them regardless of their ability to pay. Green said the measure was "vague and defective."

Capture 3 in Brief Flight from Training School

Three inmates who escaped from the Illinois State Training School for Boys, near St. Charles, were back in the disciplinary cottage yesterday. Richard Eddy, managing officer, said they were William Benefield, 15, Pekin, Tazewell county, committed for larceny; William Jack Thomas, 16, of 2653 Evergreen av., Chicago, auto larceny, and Clifford Turner, 17, Negro, 3538 Dearborn st., Chicago, truancy. School guards apprehended them within three miles of the grounds.

SAVES 12 HOURS IN BOMB SIGHT PART MACHINING

Leo Segedie's Effort Wins 36th Tribune Award

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

A Romanian born American whose ingenuity helped to speed production of the famed Norden bombsight tonight will receive the 36th Chicago Tribune War Workers award. He is Leo Segedie, 33, an employe of Victor Adding Machine company.

Leo Segedie.

Lt. Col. Don Eddy, deputy commander, central district, air technical service command, will present the award—symbolized by a diamond studded gold pin—in a ceremony to be rebroadcast over W-G-N at 11:15 p. m. The ceremony will be followed by a dinner in the Continental hotel at which the previous winners of the award will be honored.

Segedie's achievement was made possible by careful observation and long hours of planning and study on his own time at home. He is a set-up man at the Victor plant and his job is to put the machines in shape to be operated by the workers.

Three Operations at a Time

One part of the bombsight is a governor housing made of aluminum on which there is considerable machining which involves thousandths-of-an-inch precision work. Under the old system, in which a single tool was used, 20 hours were required to turn out 100 units.

Segedie worked out an arrangement whereby three tools on a turret lathe did three operations at one time. Since the housing goes thru the machine twice, this means six operations have been reduced to two. The time required to turn out 100 units was reduced from 20 hours to eight hours, a saving of 12 hours.

Segedie's new system also reduced damage to parts incurred during manufacture. This is especially important when it is considered that the completed bombsight costs about $10,000. Critical material is saved by the new method.

Saved Self Lot of Work

Segedie, quoting the old saw that an inventor is a lazy man, admitted that his new method saved a lot of work for himself in setting tools. However, the large file of drawings and instructions contained in his suggestion to the management discloses the many hours of hard work he gave in perfecting the improvement.

A. C. Buehler, chairman and president of the Victor company, was enthusiastic in his praise of Segedie's achievement.

"It was the skill, ingenuity, and devotion of the thousands of little men in our war plants that has largely made America's great war record possible," Buehler said.

"Being at the scene of the job they have been able to note where improvements and short cuts could be made. America owes a great debt to those privates in industry who, like Segedie, have done so much to give our soldiers the best war weapons in the world, in the amount required and on time."

Last Award of Series

Segedie was brought to this country and Chicago by his mother when he was a year and a half old. He went two years to Lane Technical High school. He lives with his wife, Dorothy, and a son, Kenneth, 3½, at 2143 N. Kilpatrick av.

With the presentation of the 36th monthly award, this Tribune war activity will be brought to a conclusion. With operations in war plants now largely stabilized there is less opportunity for the individual to distinguish himself, so it was decided to terminate the award.

Selection of the winners was made by a committee headed by Henry T. Heald, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology; Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, president of the Museum of Science and Industry, and James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers association.

'Forced to Dance'

PATSY RENO

MAISIE PALMER

Los Angeles, Cal., July 24 (AP)—Two U. S. O. hostesses, Patsy Reno, 18, and Maisie Palmer, 19, both of Santa Monica, charged today they had been required to dance with Italian prisoners of war at a Camp Roberts, Cal., U. S. O. entertainment program.

The girls told a reporter that instructions to "treat Italian soldiers just like any other soldiers" were read to them on a bus en route to the camp a month ago. They said there were about 30 Italian prisoners among some 200 United States soldiers at the dance. While the girls could refuse invitations to dance, they added, the prisoners had the privilege of cutting in, and thus the Italians were able to force the hostesses to dance with them.

Miss Ruth Cowan, U. S. O. regional director, blamed a misunderstanding of instructions. "No girl has to dance with any soldier, American or Italian," she said.

TRUMAN ASKED ME TO RESIGN —MORGENTHAU

New York, July 24 [Special].—Former Treasury Secretary Morgenthau disclosed today he stepped out of his treasury job at the request of President Truman.

"This departure from the treasury was not one of my own choosing," he told members of the New York state war finance committee at a luncheon meeting. "My 12 years under President Roosevelt's magnificent leadership, I felt, ended when he died."

After he finished speaking, reporters asked him to elaborate on his statement. "It all happened the 5th of July," he said. "I would have liked to stay to V-J day. It didn't work out that way."

Requested in Letter

Morgenthau declined to make any further quotable comment, but told reporters the President had requested his resignation in a letter, and that he had turned it in immediately.

When Mr. Truman announced Morgenthau's resignation July 5 he called the treasury head's departure "a distinct loss."

He told Morgenthau he was "indeed sorry to learn that you have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived to be released from your responsibilities as secretary of the treasury."

Retired Monday

The next day the White House said President Truman would nominate War Mobilizer Vinson as Morgenthau's successor. Morgenthau officially retired yesterday.

The ex-treasury head said today he wasn't exactly sorry to get out. "Yesterday, when the telephone people came to my bedroom and snapped the wires to the White House and to the treasury, I felt I was once again a free man," he told reporters.

He said his plans were to complete a book on Germany. It will deal with the "Morgenthau plan" for the control of Germany, which was favored by many advocates of a "hard peace" for the Nazis. Many commentators said it would have reduced Germany to a second class agricultural state.

WORLD'S BIGGEST HELICOPTER IS BUILT FOR NAVY

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—Building of the world's largest helicopter by the P.-V. Engineering Forum, Inc., of Philadelphia, Pa., was announced today upon completion of navy flight tests.

Designed to fill coast guard and navy air-sea rescue and transport service requirements, the ship is the first helicopter designed for air transport operations.

Due to its ability to carry a useful load, the craft is said to be the first economically practical plane of its type. It can carry a crew of two and 10 passengers in medium range operation, the announcement said.

The ship carries two rotors [propelling blades], one at either end, the first successful design using that plan. The ship can land in a 100 foot diameter space, on land or water.

$250,000 SURPLUS GOODS SOLD BY FORCE IN PERSIA

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—The first overseas sales of surplus goods by the army-navy liquidation commission netted the government $250,000, Thomas B. McCabe, ANL commissioner, announced today.

The sales, involving 12 transactions, were made in the Persian gulf command to the Russian and Iranian governments, the American embassy and legation, American relief agencies, and private firms. McCabe's report did not give the original cost of the items sold.

The largest single purchaser was the American Arabian Oil company, which bought five tractors, lead and asbestos pipe, and miscellaneous material for $171,219.90. The American joint distribution committee purchased $51,218.83 worth of clothing, food, and tobacco to be made into relief packages for Poland.

The soviet embassy at Tehran bought 20 mosquito bars for $148.50 and the Iranian government 100 pounds of solder for $12.50 and a well drilling rig for $9,043.75.

ELECTION WAITS POLES' RETURN, SAYS PREMIER

MOSCOW, July 24 (AP)—Polish parliamentary elections will not be held until the Poles abroad return home, a Warsaw dispatch today quoted Polish Prime Minister Edward Osubka Morawski as declaring in a speech at the plenary session of the Polish National council.

Morawski said that already 20 governments had recognized the Polish republic.

The Polish prime minister disclosed the existence of remnants of fascist bands operating in Poland and said the "Hitlerite infection" still had not been uprooted.

Britain Investigates

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—The British government intensified its inquiry into activities of the Polish exiled army's high command today after the London Times reported that the high command was attempting to extract pledges of allegiance to the London Polish regime from the soldiers.

A British foreign office commentator told newsmen that any such move would be "contrary to the intent" of the British government, which is seeking a tranquil settlement of Polish affairs following the recognition of the new Warsaw government by Britain and the United States.

Bishop Makes Plea

BIRMINGHAM, England, July 24 [Reuters] — Pleading for the re-establishment of a free Poland, Archbishop Bernard Griffin, head of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in England, declared that, so far, the Poles were "emphatically" not free as the term was understood in America, Britain, or France.

"The whole political and social life of Poland is in fact, tho not in name, under the closest control of the soviet authorities and the dreaded NKVD [soviet political police]. No sort of political opposition is tolerated," the prelate declared.

"I regard it as essential to any hope of the establishment of a free and independent Poland that there should be immediately freedom for Poles and allies to pass to and from Poland; removal of secret police from Poland and the abolition of the dictatorship of press and radio; a guarantee of elections under joint allied supervision."

KOREANS IN U. S. ASK BIG THREE FORRECOGNITION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 24—Repudiation of any secret international agreements affecting the future sovereignty and territorial integrity of Korea was urged upon the conferees at Potsdam today by the Korean commission in a telegram addressed to President Truman. The commission is the official representative here of the Korean provisional government exiled in Chungking.

Recognition by the big powers now of the provisional government of the republic of Korea will eliminate the possibility of a civil war between communists and nationalists after the Japanese war, the message stated.

The commission asserted the provisional government is ready to furnish additional man power to help speed the allied victory.

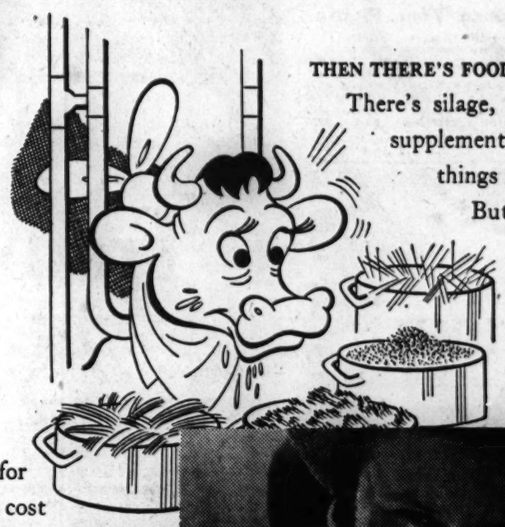
HOW'D YOU LIKE TO PAY UPKEEP ON A BOSSIE OF YOUR OWN?

IT'S CHEAPER OUR WAY!

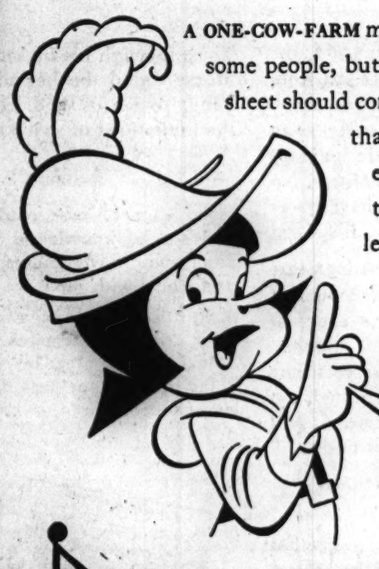
Bud Bowman

LET'S SUPPOSE you took a Bossie in to board at your house—in exchange for her supply of milk. Let's figure the cost. Her rent alone would set you back a pretty penny —'cause cows, to be happy (like those who supply milk to Bowman), hafta have comfortable quarters, soft bedding every day, fresh running water, plenty of room indoors and out.



THEN THERE'S FOOD. And what Bossie eats ain't hay! There's silage, and pasturage, and proteins and supplements and minerals—lots of complex things city folks don't even know about. But farmers who ship milk to Bowman are real experts at keeping house for cows and knowing how to feed 'em.

HOUSING AND FEEDING Bossie is just the starter in bringing Bowman-quality milk from cow to table. Could you ten-times-test the milk scientifically for richness, purity, and flavor? Could you pasteurize it to make it absolutely safe?



A ONE-COW-FARM might be all right for some people, but a glance at the cost sheet should convince even doubting Thomases that it's simpler—and much less expensive—to buy milk distributed by Chicagoland's leading dairy!

HEAR TITO AGENT IN TURKEY HUNTS MIHAILOVITCH

Report Slav Chief Offers $28,000 Reward

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 24 [Delayed]—Marshal Tito's government, apparently convinced that the anti-communist guerrilla leader, Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, recently escaped from Yugoslavia and made his way to Turkey, has secretly offered a regard of 50,000 Turkish pounds [about $28,000] for his capture and delivery to Tito. Yugoslavs here declared a Tito emissary had reached Istanbul three weeks ago bearing the reward offer.

Tito probably reached the conclusion Mihailovitch is in Turkey, it is said, because of the presence of some royalist Yugoslavs in Turkey, such as Gen. Peter Zivkovich, Yugoslav prime minister under the late King Alexander and more recently war minister of the London government in exile, and Col. Vladimir Perich, liaison officer between the London government and the Mihailovitch guerrilla forces during the European war.

Tell of Emissary

Local Yugoslav leaders said the Tito emissary, named Pavlovich, was a young political commissar traveling as a diplomatic courier. He journeyed from Belgrade to Istanbul by train via Sofia. On arrival he inspected the Yugoslav consulate general in Istanbul and the embassy in Ankara. About a week after his arrival, he met secretly with half a dozen local Tito followers and revealed the Mihailovitch reward offer.

Accustomed thru the years to Balkan intrigue by maintaining channels of information into enemy circles, anti-communist Yugoslavs had a pipeline into this secret meeting, it was explained. They stated Pavlovich demanded a pledge of loyalty and secrecy from those present and told them it was "their duty to new Yugoslavia" to seek out and seize Mihailovitch and smuggle him out of Turkey alive for delivery to Tito.

Reds Attack Exiles

The story of the reward offer was given additional credence when the Russian Tass news agency made an attack a month ago on anti-Tito Yugoslavs in Turkey. The Tass article mentioned Zivkovich and Perich by name and ended with the significant line, "Tito knows the whereabouts of Mihailovitch and can be relied upon to get him."

Anti-communist Yugoslavs, however, insist Mihailovitch is not in Turkey. They insist he and a small band of loyal followers are still in the Yugoslav mountains resisting Tito's Partisans and trying to combat the press campaign that seeks to discredit him as a German collaborator.

223 JOIN STRIKE OF TOOL MAKERS AT DODGE PLANT

The strike of 82 tool makers at the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation spread yesterday to 223 additional tool makers and cutter grinders who went home without presenting a grievance to the company. The strike—the 204th work stoppage caused by labor troubles at the B-29 engine plant in 15 months—started because some of the tool makers were docked for quitting 15 minutes early each night to wash before going home. The strikers, who are members of local 274 of the United Automobile Workers union [CIO], said they would not return until the washing up periods were granted. Engine production was not immediately interrupted.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

July 25—Battle of Lundy's Lane

One of the strangest battles in the history of warfare was fought in Lundy's lane, a road on the Canadian side of the Niagara river, on July 25, 1814.

It was fought in twilight and moonlight with the thunder of Niagara falls competing with that of the cannon, but what really made the engagement extraordinary was the behavior of the victors at its conclusion. They marched away from the field to rest, but dallied so long that when they returned the next day to collect their booty the enemy again was in possession of the field and too strong to be attacked.

A few hours before the battle, the American commanding general, Jacob Brown, who was at Chippewa, dispatched Gen. Winfield Scott and a small force to threaten the British forts at the mouth of the Niagara. Scott had barely started when, to his astonishment, he came upon Gen. Phineas Riall and a large British army drawn up on a hill in Lundy's lane. He resolved to attack while awaiting reënforcements and by his boldness convince the enemy that the whole American army was at hand.

Brave and skilful attacks turned both the right and the left British flanks and a magnificent frontal assault captured the enemy's artillery position in the center.

Reënforcements—both American and British—kept arriving. Each side attacked with the utmost violence. Riall was wounded and captured. Brown and Scott were wounded — the latter gravely. At length the British streamed away from the battle field leaving their precious artillery to the enemy.

Brown ordered his army back to Chippewa to rest and instructed Gen. Eleazer Ripley to return to Lundy's lane at dawn and remove the British cannon. Ripley was late, and was compelled to report that the British again had the field.

About 2,600 American and 4,500 British were engaged at Lundy's lane. American casualties were 852 and British 878.

EISENHOWER'S HONOR SWORD TO BE FORGED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 24—The sword of honor, which the city of London will present to Gen. Eisenhower, leader of the victorious allied armies in Europe, began to take shape today. The first process was completed when the mold of the blade was drawn from a specially cast sheet of Sheffield steel.

Tomorrow, 84 year old Tom Beasley, doyen of British swordsmiths, will start forging the 2½ pound blade. Goldsmiths, silversmiths, and enamelers will decorate the hilt and scabbard with a chosen design. Experts estimate it will be at least 14 days before the process is completed.

The sword will be sent to Eisenhower without further ceremony. It will replace the token sword used when the freedom of the city of London was conferred on him June 12.

OWI GIVING UP BEST SELLING PARIS MAGAZINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, July 24—The brightly painted kiosks and bookstands along the Seine no longer will sell France's best selling picture magazine, Voir, it was revealed here today. Its American publisher, the office of war information, is giving it up tho it had a circulation of 450,000 and earns $800,000 a year for Uncle Sam.

Burly, ever grinning Pere Maillot, who owns the GIs' favorite newsstand on Madeleine boulevard, said no other French magazine had the appeal of Voir, which has been modeled on the lines of the most up to date American publications, with fashions, politics, sports, and pinups.

U. S. Chaplains in Europe Start Visits to Palestine

JERUSALEM, Palestine, July 24—As a result of a recommendation submitted to the United States war department by Maj. Gen. W. R. Arnold, former chief of the United States army chaplains, American military chaplains stationed in Europe will, as far as possible, visit Palestine to see all the holy places before returning home from overseas service.

MILLION CROATS IN U. S. DECLARE WAR UPON REDS

BY FRANK HUGHES

Nearly a million Americans of Croatian descent are uniting to wage "political warfare" against Marshal Tito [Josip Broz] and his totalitarian-communist rule in Yugoslavia, Nick Sarich, supreme secretary of the Croatian Peasant League in America, disclosed yesterday. He accused Tito of depriving his country of a free press, free speech, and all other political liberties.

Sarich's statement came three days after assertion in Paris by Dr. Vladimir Matchek that Tito is establishing a communist dictatorship in Yugoslavia and that the small farmers of Croatia never will accept such a regime. Dr. Matchek, leader of the Croatian Peasant party, said he fled to exile in France to get "in front of the iron curtain" that Tito and his Partisans had lowered around Yugoslavia.

Protest Meeting Set for Sunday

Sarich, who lives at 3145 60th st., said that representatives of Croatian Peasant league chapters in Joliet, North Chicago, Gary, Hammond, and Chicago will meet Sunday in Sokol hall, 18th st. and Racine av., to draft a resolution condemning Tito, communism, and the communist dictatorship in Yugoslavia. The league has 42 branches in the United States and 36 in Canada. The Canadian groups adopted a similar resolution, including condemnation of Dr. Ivan Subasic, Tito's foreign minister, at a meeting July 1.

He said that the Croatian Fraternal union, which has 100,000 members in this country, is expected to call a meeting in Pittsburgh, Pa., to take similar action.

Reds Take Over Power

Sarich exhibited a letter written from London by Dr. Juraj Krnjevic, Dr. Matchek's secretary and supreme secretary of the Croatian Peasant League in Croatia, saying that "under Tito and Subasic today it is worse than under [King] Alexander, the dictator." Dr. Krnjevic added that no one in Yugoslavia can make speeches or publish a newspaper unless he is a Communist. "You can do nothing, say nothing, and write nothing unless you are a Communist," he wrote.

Sarich said his organization had worked with the Yugoslav communist organization in America promoting the sale of war bonds, but split with the Communists when they "showed more interest in spreading their ideologies than in promoting American patriotism."

Political War Threatened

"Ninety-five per cent of the Croats and Serbs in Yugoslavia believe in God, in religion, in democracy, and in freedom," Sarich said. "We are going to declare political war against the Communists.

"We are American citizens and we believe in the American form of government."

STRIKE KEEPS 39 FOUNDRIES IDLE; WLB TAKES HAND

Thirty-nine Chicago area foundries continued idle yesterday as the war labor board started investigation of a wage dispute between the International Moulders and Foundry Workers' union [AFL] and the Chicago Foundrymen's association, representing the employers. About 2,000 union members are on strike, seeking holiday pay, sick leave, and rest periods instead of a proffered 4 cent an hour increase which they believe will be denied by the WLB.

Al Leonard, a union organizer and international representative, charged the foundry operators with "bad faith" in offering a raise and refusing the other concessions.

A meeting of the employers' group will be held at noon today in the Bismarck hotel. Charles T. Milles, employers' representative, charged the strike was unjustified because mediation procedure has not been exhausted. The WLB is expected to order the strikers to return before it will hear the case.

Draft Dodger Sentenced, to 3 Years in Prison

Bruno Jablonski, 32, of 945 Madison st., was sentenced by Judge Walter J. LaBuy in U. S. District court yesterday to three years in a federal penitentiary for failure to report for induction in May, 1943.

Twelve years after the invention of the telegraph, it had its first public demonstration. Over a wire stretched from Washington to Baltimore, Morse sent the first message from the chamber of the United States Supreme Court on May 24, 1844. The historic words were: "What hath God wrought!"

From words READ and long remembered ...came the TELEGRAPH

On October 1st, 1832, the packet ship Sully set sail from Le Havre for New York, carrying among her passengers an American portrait painter named Samuel F. B. Morse. No one on board, including Morse, suspected that this was to be one of the world's great voyages of discovery.

One day in mid-Atlantic Morse, an inveterate reader, found in a French magazine an account of Ampère's recent experiments with the electromagnet. Something clicked in his mind . . . something that he had read in Enfield's book on electricity 22 years before: "If the circuit be interrupted, the fluid will become visible; and when it passes, it will leave an impression upon any intermediate body . . ."

Interrupted! . . . impression! . . . signals! . . . messages! . . .

Morse rushed on deck and began making sketches in his notebook. In that moment the telegraph was born.

But the roots of that moment were buried deep in the past . . . in the childhood ambition, gained from reading Plutarch's Lives, to do great and enduring things . . . in a young boy's ceaseless search in magazines and books for knowledge, always more knowledge, about this vast and mysterious world.

Thus, through his lifelong habit of reading, Samuel Morse found the key to an invention which gave wings to words, and freed mankind from many of the limitations of space and time.

Reading Points the Way

For Samuel Morse, reading provided the inspiration and special knowledge which brought him honors from many governments, and the rewards of wealth and world-wide fame.

So it has always been in the annals of high achievement . . . so it remains today. Reading is the great stimulator, the great inspirer. For it is the impression value of what one sees that registers indelibly and is never forgotten.

This, to a unique degree explains the extraordinary power and influence of The American Weekly. For The American Weekly brings you reading at its vivid, most varied best. True stories in word and picture of human struggle and accomplishment . . . heartbreak and laughter . . . tragedy and triumph . . . love, hatred, sacrifice . . . the march of science . . . the power and beauty of literature, art, religion. And all written so clearly and accurately that anyone can understand.

The American Weekly is distributed through a group of great Sunday newspapers and read regularly in more than 8,000,000 homes from coast to coast!

The manufacturer who associates his product or his company's name with such an influence is tying in with the most powerful known force in advertising.

EXCESSES IN GERMANY

Over the week-end every house in the American zone of occupation in southwestern Germany was raided by American soldiers. "Fifteen million Germans in the American zone, taken by surprise, were bewildered and scared," says the Associated Press correspondent in Frankfurt. There were no less than 80,000 arrests, almost all of them, it appears, for minor irregularities. Col. Thomas Sands of Cornwall, N. Y., who led the raiders, said [a] that the search showed less crime than would have been revealed by a similar action in a comparable area in this country; and [b] that those arrested would get "rough treatment." Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert of Vineyard Haven, Mass., who is intelligence officer for the army of occupation, said the raids [a] "upset the civilian population quite a bit" and [b] that this was "a good thing."

In truth, these raids were outrageous. They reflect the greatest discredit upon the officer, whoever he was, who was so ill-advised as to order them. If he thought he must take steps to prevent a civilian rising he made a grievous error of judgment because, as Col. Sands has said, the search revealed nothing to justify such fears. If he was concerned only to make the civilian population fearful and miserable he writes himself down a brute.

It is almost unbelievable that an American officer could engage in such an enterprise. Perhaps this is to be regarded as the first dividend from the new, or San Francisco, policy of international coöperation. At any rate, our army apparently has been instructed to treat the civilians in a defeated nation not in accordance with decent American practice but according to the European rules. Push their noses into the dirt and make them like it. Walk on their necks. Prove that you are arrogant and unfeeling. Be sure that they learn to hate you, and so make it altogether certain that there will be another war more bitter and bloody than the last one. Those are the European rules. Now they appear to be the American rules also.

We wonder whether the responsible officer ever heard of the Boston massacre or ever read the Declaration of Independence with its indictment of a brutal army of occupation. We wonder if he ever read the Constitution. More especially we wonder if our soldiers are being trained in Europe in the art of terrorizing civilians so that the same foul tactics can be applied in this country.

Unfortunately, the incident in our zone of occupation does not stand alone. Sigrid Schultz reported from Berlin the other day that our army there has requisitioned not only most of the buildings of the Kaiser Wilhelm institute, which, perhaps, can be justified, but also "whole streets of Dahlem and near-by suburbs" for use by the American section of the interallied control commission. Great quantities of office and household furniture also are being seized. Miss Schultz notes that the process has been a haphazard one and that some of the persons dispossessed were anti-Nazi. One of the houses taken, for example, belonged to a Berliner who only recently returned from a concentration camp to which he was sent because he refused to divorce his half-Jewish wife.

All of these excesses committed by our army would argue a studied attempt to prove to the German people that there is really no fundamental difference between Hitler's method of government and ours. We already have made a good start toward persuading them that all we have said in condemnation of his methods was so much hypocrisy. In addition, no doubt, we are persuading the Japanese to put no faith in the hopes held out to them by Capt. Zacharias of the navy in his broadcast of Saturday. He promised them that if they surrendered to America they could expect decent treatment. Recent events in Germany can hardly be reassuring to them. It is not beyond possibility that the price America will pay for the excesses in Germany will be the lives of many thousands of American boys and the prolonging of the Japanese war.

THE CENSORSHIP

The most useful decision that could be reached at the Potsdam conference would have to do with censorship. We don't know whether the subject is on the agenda, but it ought to be. There is really no good reason, if there ever was any, why reporters should not be free to travel anywhere and to report anything that isn't directly concerned with military security.

Needless to say, the principal obstacle to be overcome is the Russian attitude. The government in Moscow refuses to let foreign newspaper men travel freely and is particularly stubborn about news from the countries occupied by the Red army. The general rule thruout the huge area controled from Moscow forbids the sending of anything as news, no matter how carefully the facts have been collected and checked, unless the same subject and the same facts have been presented in the soviet press. The result, of course, is that the world knows little about what is going on in Russia and still less about events in the occupied countries.

Somebody ought to tell Mr. Stalin that if he wants to get loans in this country he must expect the lenders to demand continuing information about the borrower. That is their right. Somebody should tell him, also, that if he wants the truth about his country to be known he will welcome responsible and experienced correspondents to his country and free them from all censorship. If he doesn't do so the world will depend largely for its news of Russia upon the reports of refugees and occasional travelers who are likely to be either prejudiced or ill-informed. In short, if Mr. Stalin really desires to promote good relations with Britain and America he will open the doors wide to foreign correspondents and discontinue the political censorship.

BUSINESS ARITHMETIC

A story from Valdosta, Ga., the other day announced the opening of the tobacco auctions for this year. It was reported, among other things, that the ceiling price has been raised a cent a pound but "the OPA says the higher ceiling price is not expected to result in a higher price for cigarets."

That looks like perpetual motion applied to business accounting. The manufacturer is to pay more for his principal raw material, but charge no more for his product. The explanation, we suspect, lies in the fact that the United States treasury will be the real loser. As it is, the manufacturers must pay most of their profits to the government. Increasing costs will mean less profit, of course, but the treasury which for all practical purposes is the principal stockholder in every successful business, will get less from the cigaret companies. The rest of us will have to make up the difference somehow or other.

THE CORN

An Australian who has spent some time in this country said in a casual conversation one evening that no one, not even Americans, not even Illinoisans or Ohioans, or Nebraskans, fully appreciates the middle west. Nowhere else in the world, he continued, can there be found an agricultural area so large, so rich in its soil, so regular in its rainfall, and so varied in its products.

Take an irregular, flattened circle radiating roughly 500 miles from Chicago, from the Ohio river north into Manitoba, from the Appalachians west to the 20 inch rainfall limit. That is the middle west. Eight states—Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota—and the eastern parts of the Dakotas, Nebraska, and Kansas. Of all its rich crops corn is the richest. It is the basis of the American larder. It is why nearly every American, before OPA, ate meat every day.

A great horticulturalist wrote once that if corn were unknown to the modern world, and a seedsman introduced it as a novelty, with a simple, factual description of its qualities, he would either be thrown in jail as the greatest liar in the history of agriculture or would have his warehouses wrecked by mobs of eager purchasers. Corn, more than any other crop, disproved Malthus' dreary prophecy that starvation would be a permanent brake on the world's population.

The middle west raises more than three-quarters of the nation's corn. There are 11 million acres of it growing in Iowa, nearly 9 million in Illinois, the same in Nebraska. Illinois alone raises more corn than the southwest, from Kentucky thru Texas. Nebraska—the arid wastes of Nebraska that the OWI has been telling the Russians about—raises nearly as much as the Atlantic coast states, the mountain states, and the Pacific coast states, all 28 of them, together.

Few people beside Americans eat corn as bread. They are the poorer and punier for the lack of it. But corn is meat. Corn is hogs. Corn is good beef, if the Washington meddlers would let it be so. Corn, in the grain or fermented in the silo, is milk and butter.

The thermometer is in the 90s and down in Champaign county the corn grew 3½ inches in 24 hours. Let the frost hold off until the grain hardens in the ear and, in spite of OPA, in spite of WFA, in spite of UNRRA and all the other alphabetical agencies for giving away America, we'll still eat next year.

FACTS ON THE RAILROAD CRISIS

1. The average number of persons per day boarding railroad trains:

1929	880,680	1939	602,500
1934	512,550	1944	1,631,260

2. The average number of miles traveled by each passenger:

1929	75.2	1939	84.8
1934	74.2	1944	151.5

3. Number of passenger cars in service:

1929	52,259	1939	38,427
1934	43,845	1944	37,490

4. Pulling power of steam locomotives in service [in millions of pounds]:

1929	2,551	1939	2,123
1934	2,263	1944	2,084

5. Amount of freight moved [in billions of ton miles]:

1929	447	1939	333
1934	269	1944	738

6. Number of railroad employes:

1929	1,660,850	1939	967,943
1934	1,007,702	1944	1,413,672

In 1944 twice as many people were riding trains as in 1929, and each person was going, on the average, twice as far. To carry this additional business, the roads had fewer cars, fewer employes, and less pulling power in their engines. Meanwhile, the roads were moving three-fourths more freight than in the boom year of 1929. The unplanned redeployment suddenly placed a huge further load upon the roads. The railroads, with the backing of the office of defense transportation, endeavored to get more equipment, but were prevented by the government from doing so.

"CHAIR-BORNE"

In a recent editorial THE TRIBUNE made reference to the term, "chair-borne" as a descriptive of the vast nonfighting army spread over this country and in rear areas behind the fighting fronts. The term, we candidly if regretfully admit, is not of our coinage. We wish it were. Whoever invented it deserves well of the country. There is nothing like ridicule to bring down a peg or two that huge, arrogant, slacker organization in Washington and elsewhere which is alike indifferent to the welfare of the people of the country and of the millions of citizens held in the army without need or work for them.

One of the interesting things about American politics is that a stuck whistle is every now and then elected to congress.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

ODE TO A KETTLE

[In a Shop Window]

Thou still uncook'd-in pot of stainless steel,
O, unattainable! Until slow time
With gentle analgesic balm shall heal
The wounds of war and bring to this harsh clime
The gift of peace, thou still must pose—
A Kohinoor of culinary dreams—
In yon bright window, far beyond the pale
Of Things Permitted. How thy beauty gleams!
Yet neath thy velvet pedestal there shows
A card: "This merchandise is not for sale."

O Four-quart Pot, by flame untouched as yet!
Cold Kettle! Pristine, virginal and new,
What miracles my sullen cook, Annette,
Inspired by thy loveliness, might brew—
What goulash, what ragout! What bouillabaisse
Made fragrant with a bay leaf or with thyme!
Ah, well, a day may come when, steaming hot,
Thou shalt be mine, and I will offer grace
To OPA or godlets less sublime—
If I can get some groc'ries too, O Pot.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

W. C. F. writes: "I would like to take up farming after I am discharged from service. I understand veterans can qualify for farm purchase loans under the service men's readjustment act of 1944 and also under the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act. Where should application be made?"

If you are not an experienced farmer, your attempt to obtain loans under provisions of either law may be futile. A loan under the readjustment act must be obtained from a bank or other lending agency. To obtain certification for guaranty purposes, the veteran must convince the veterans' administrator he is a qualified farmer and that farming will be his major occupation, but first the veteran must find a farm for which the purchase price does not exceed the reasonable normal value. Ordinarily the maximum sum a veteran can borrow—$4,000, with 50 per cent guaranteed will not be sufficient. None of this money may be used for seed, feed, nor fertilizer and family subsistence until the farm pays its way. A short term loan, payable in one to five years, in sums from $100 to $2,500, may be obtained from the farm security administration for the purchase of seed, feed, livestock, fertilizer, tools, and machinery. This loan now is limited to persons unable to obtain credit from other sources. The FSA makes 40 year loans, not to exceed $12,000, for purchase of farms, but these loans are restricted to experienced farmers who are known to be diligent. Information about FSA loans may be obtained from regional FSA offices in Indianapolis and Milwaukee.

PERSISTENT COUGH

MANY adults cough once or twice a day even tho they are healthy and have not had a recent cold. With some, the symptom appears subsequent to exertion; with others, on going to bed. In general, this is not a serious situation but, should the bouts become frequent, a checkup is wise.

When persistent, the condition is known as "chronic bronchitis." In the majority of cases, it is secondary to trouble elsewhere. Disease in the nose or throat, and particularly in the sinuses, is a common offender. In children, large adenoids or infected tonsils may be to blame.

A post-nasal drip is said to exist when mucus collects in the back of the throat. At night a certain amount of this secretion may drain into the lungs by way of the bronchial tubes. Consequently, these individuals cough on arising in an attempt to evacuate this material. If swallowed, no harm is done as the bacteria are killed quickly by the acid in the stomach.

City dwellers, those working in dusty environments, and heavy smokers are prone to suffer from irritation. These victims may waken with a raspy feeling in the throat and, after being up for 10 to 15 minutes, begin to bark. This continues until all the sputum is raised and they are comfortable for the rest of the day. The complaint is more likely to follow a late evening at cards or a social gathering in which alcohol and nicotine indulgence were heavy. As a rule, the disorder does not improve unless the detrimental agent is removed and, after many years, it becomes progressively worse. In such cases, the membrane lining the bronchial tubes may be injured permanently.

Chest colds, especially in elderly people, may hang on for weeks or months. When damp, chilly air aggravates symptoms, a change in climate is often beneficial. In bronchiectasis, the tiny walls of the bronchial tubes are dilated from previous inflammation. As a result, secretions increase and an abundant, thick, yellow expectoration is produced.

A short, hard cough may occur when the heart is not percolating correctly. It may be observed after exertion or when lying flat in bed. Ordinarily, no sputum can be raised altho occasionally a blood-tinged exudate is noted. Elevating the head with two or three pillows at night and drugs directed toward the pumping organ are indicated for relief.

In all cases of chronic bronchitis, an X-ray of the chest and a sputum study are essential. No matter what the origin, these sufferers need to be built up with plenty of rest, fresh air, sunlight, and a diet high in calories. Cough medicines may lessen discomfort but in no way counteract the cause. The sulfonamides and penicillin are helpful if the guilty germ has been isolated and is the type that responds to these drugs. A few must endure the nuisance because of irreparable damage.

NOT EFFECTIVE HERE

J. E. H. writes: I understand research was being done on the use of penicillin in stomach ulcers. Have these studies been completed?

REPLY

According to Ivy, there are no reports as yet but it is unlikely that the preparation will be of benefit inasmuch as stomach ulcers are rarely due to infection.

REACTION OF MILK

L. P. writes: Some people complain that milk constipates them. It has the opposite effect on me. Can you explain?

REPLY

You are either allergic to the fluid or it is irritating. The intestine has just as much right to react differently to a certain food as individuals do to music or a political speech.

COLON POLYPS

R. J. writes: Is there any satisfactory treatment of polyps in the intestine?

REPLY

This depends on their location, number, and type. Those near the rectum can be removed surgically or with a cautery. When extensive, or proved to be malignant, an abdominal operation may be necessary.

TONGUE-TIE

Mrs. B. N. writes: Is there actually such a thing as being tongue-tied?

REPLY

This is a debatable question, but so long as a child is able to touch the roof of the mouth and the teeth with his tongue, the organ can be considered freely movable.

Who's That Man?

That feuding daily, the Congressional Record, recently contained a reference to a gentleman who by any standards must be considered one of the most stupid crooks in the history of America. He was a man named Lamar who back in 1914 impersonated a congressman from Tennessee named Palmer. The stupidity involved is that he got caught.

How or why he was detected was not stated, and we thought that times must have changed if back in 1914 strangers knew a congressman when they saw him. They don't today. Was he picked up in congress proper? Or in Rep. Palmer's home district? Records of the Supreme court, where his case eventually landed, show, however, that he got caught when he tried to defraud J. P. Morgan and the United States Steel company by long distance telephone.

That was stupid. Had he wanted a little gain in a quiet way, say in the congressman's own district, or even a bit of neat pocket-picking in the halls of congress, he probably wouldn't have had a bit of trouble. But to tackle Morgan and United States Steel! He gravely overestimated congressional pull.

What bothers us is why more men don't impersonate congressmen. Maybe they do, and do it successfully, for nothing is heard of it. They don't even need dark glasses; merely the ability to inflate the tonsils, talk mellifluously, and be unctuous, for the average person, never having seen a congressman, gives him these attributes.

Senators don't count. They get their faces on blotters, on every billboard every sixth year, and in the newspapers every time they step off trains, which they seem to do more often than train porters. Too, they usually have a distinguishing characteristic, such as a stomach, Sen. Connally's string tie, or Sen. Brooks' hair.

But the representatives generally are unknown quantities who get around briefly at election time when the competition is so tough the prospective constituent can never be certain which face belongs to whom. Congress now is about to recess until Oct. 8, which will give them a chance to come home. Our guess is they'll have a hard time remembering the way to the kitchen in their mothers' homes. The memory of man has run out since they last were around.

A member of congress probably carries credentials, but since no one knows what these are, any credentials could be flashed upon the unwary, who recognizes nothing about a seal except the sealing wax, and be accorded complete trust. The bearer could strut into any store, display these, and [1] cash a check on the First National Bank of Washington, D. C., or [2] get the brand of cigarets he likes. He could also get countless free meals by ringing doorbells and saying: "Well, well, Mr. James, how are you? I'm Canny Cutup, your congressman, you know—heh, heh!"

Better still, why not try it in congress proper? The assembly hall of the house is as confused as State and Madison the day before Easter except when the President addresses it. The difference is that State and Madison is regulated by traffic lights, the house not at all. The solons wander like stray dogs, trying a seat here, a seat there, or not sitting—or appearing—at all. If they skip a roll call, who chides them? Or cares? Who knows, at this minute, how many and which ones are in Europe? Or in the cloakroom? There are almost 500 of them and who of the 500 knows by sight, name, or voice, all the others? Especially early in a new session.

Lamar, it is obvious, was not a bright man. He went to prison. The reason his case ever went to the Supreme court is that he had been accused of impersonating a federal officer and had pleaded not guilty, saying a member of congress is an officer of the state, not of the federal government. The Supreme court said he was wrong, but it took two years. And the whole thing affects the current Presidential succession, which is the only reason any one brought the matter up 30 years later.

THE RYE CORNER

Cleveland, O., July 19—I wonder if any one has asked how was it possible, with the government controling everything these days, to acquire enough rye for a corner. The answer is simple. They placed a ceiling on all other farm products, they stopped trading in soybeans, and also corn for awhile. Yet they placed none on rye.

Rye is a comparatively small crop. In normal times it has very little use outside of the distilling business. It's so worthless on a farm that they only use it as a cover crop for other things such as something to hold up sand vetch, and to keep the sand from blowing the land away in Michigan. It's such poor food that a hog won't even eat unless he is starving.

But remember the July 1937 corn deal. Prices were soaring. It looked like a sure thing to buy July corn. You couldn't lose. I know, because I was in it. Then lo and behold, we found that our Farmers National, a government sponsored agency, if you please, was speculating in the very thing they were supposedly agin. Only thing wrong was they were on the wrong side.

They settled all longs and shorts at an arbitrary figure of $1.10. Nothing was done about it except they kicked Cargill out of the board of trade and did them a good turn, as they were no longer bound by the board of trade rules and as a result were able to outbid other board of trade members for corn. Sorta reminds one of the deal when Father Coughlin was crying for the money changers to be kicked out of the temple and stop all speculation, but he wanted silver monetized. It was a good story till some one found out he was long silver. So now I wonder who guessed wrong on the rye market and is trying to get out from under?

IS AMG APPEASING NAZIS?

KRONACH, Germany, July 7—Our outfit moved into a new area. We were given unsanitary, broken windowed public buildings to live in because of some policy—vague to the GI, if definite in Washington—which will not permit us to use German houses. The medical officer condemned the buildings and went to military government. The officer in charge there, newly arrived from a desk job in the zone of the interior, told him, with obvious contempt, "If public buildings aren't good enough for them, they can pitch pup tents." This without even examining the buildings. The medical officer was thereby forced to make the buildings as habitable as possible.

Nor is this the worst. Troops stationed in towns where public buildings are inadequate to house them are being forced to live in pup tents. All of this callously ignoring the months these same men spent in foxholes. Civilians, meanwhile, comfortable in spacious homes, must laugh as they did after the last war at the easy going Americans!

Morale correspondingly zoomed downward. We believe to a man that the AMG is a bunch of German lovers. Most of us are discouraged because it is an indication of the sort of forgetful treatment we may expect as returning veterans.

And, O yes, I forgot to mention—the AMG itself is living in the most luxurious mansions in town.

A "WELL DONE" FOR CHICAGO

Chicago, July 20—On July 30, the naval reserve midshipmen's school at Abbott hall, Northwestern university, will close after nearly five years, during which 25 classes containing 20,000 young men will have been commissioned as reserve ensigns in the navy.

They have, for the most part, been stationed in Chicago for four months, and that four months has been a period of intense and exacting work. They have, on their infrequent periods of liberty, been subject to the influences that a great city provides, but their conduct has been such as to reflect credit on themselves, their families, and the naval service. Not the least of the causes of this good record has been the hospitality of the people of Chicago, who thru their churches, clubs, and associations and in literally thousands of private invitations have proffered and provided the chance for them to meet the citizens of this city, and have been the means of providing wholesome entertainment to these young men, away from home and susceptible to the incidence of loneliness and homesickness.

On behalf of these thousands of midshipmen and apprentice seamen, I want to express profound appreciation to the people of Chicago for what you have done, and, from a grateful heart, I add my own thanks that in helping these young men, you have helped me to make more pleasant their preparation for the difficult and dangerous task that lies before them.

Elgin, Ill., July 19—A conceivable answer to Mr. A. B. McConnell's letter today would be that the 600,000 tons of Illinois coal are being shipped to Switzerland to furnish the power to produce a couple of million more Swiss watches, thereby flooding the market so that our American watchmakers, who are now manufacturing vital timing devices for the services, will be left holding the bag at war's end. Let the lads in Washington yodel a few bars of that.

COMPROMISING WITH GANGSTERS

Chicago, July 21—Until recently I have believed the old adage "Crime does not pay," but my ideas on the subject are changing. On July 19 there was a story headlined "Mobster Guzik Settles Million Dollar Tax." The amount owed by Guzik was $1,538,455.38 and Guzik settled it for $100,000 or between 6 and 7 per cent of the total. I feel that I have as much right to "compromise" with the bureau of internal revenue as Guzik has. If the requirement is that one has to be a "mobster" to be eligible for the "compromise settlement" you may be able to tell me how I can become one.

20 ITALIANS END PLEASANT 'VISIT' IN GRACIOUS U. S.

Internees Lug Out Silks, Cigarets, Soap, Cash

Great Falls, Mont., July 24 [Special]—Laden with American money and such scarce articles as silk stockings, cigarets, and soap, 20 alien Italian sailors held in this country for the last four years today sat in the county jail with crammed bags awaiting the start tomorrow of their deportation trip home.

Some of the sailors had up to $3,000 after working in Great Falls as hotel bell hops, engineers, male nurses, and railroad employes. They won't need any of this money to get home, for the government will pay all their expenses.

Buy Four or Five Suits

The Italians, who sabotaged their ships to try to prevent them falling into United States hands, have done so well since they have been involuntary guests here that most of them are more adequately stocked with scarce American goods than many of their "hosts."

Several had silk stockings, apparently taking home to their Italian womenfolks a luxury that many American girls haven't seen in months or years. Most of them had several cartons of cigarets and some had as many as 24 bars of soap each, a commodity getting scarcer daily.

Some of the prisoners had four or five suits of clothes and several pairs of leather shoes. They had extra supplies of tooth brushes and a variety of items that filled their suitcases and original Italian navy sea bags so full they could hardly close them.

Each sailor is permitted three pieces of luggage with a total measurement of not over 30 cubic feet. Some of them have small trunks. Each is permitted to take only $50 in American money but is allowed to take the balance of his funds out of the country in travelers' checks.

Paroled Out for Jobs

The 20 were among the Italian sailors taken into custody by the government after they sabotaged their ships in American harbors in 1941 by such means as throwing emery dust into the machinery. This was before the United States entered the war but after Italy had declared war on France and Britain and so was prevented from getting her ships home.

The sailors were interned for a time but later were paroled out to work at various jobs to relieve the man power shortage. Eight of them worked at the Columbus hospital here and others were employed on railroad jobs.

Tomorrow immigration authorities, who began rounding them up Sunday, will place them on a train and send them to Salt Lake City where they will join a total of 400 Italian nationals who will be shipped by train to New York and deported to their homeland.

THE QUESTION

Do you think a student, after graduation from high school, should work a year or two before entering college?

WHERE ASKED

THE ANSWERS

Helen Kaily, food checker, Indianapolis, Ind.—Students should go directly from high school to college. If a student works and stays away from school too long he gets that feeling of having money and being independent. Then he'd be restless if he went back to studying and preparing lessons.

Donald Moore, real estate broker, 8225 Justine st.—If he has the money he should go to college directly from high school. That will enable him to get his education before he is too old to get started in the business world. If he hasn't enough money he should work a few years. It's no picnic starving thru an education.

Jean Tyler, stenographer, 6419 S. Artesian av.—Going to work for a few years may prove exceedingly profitable. Being out in the business world gives a person a broader view than he can possibly obtain in college. It makes a person serious minded and would give a student time to consider what he wants to study.

Edward T. Clark, ticket clerk, 824 E. 82d st.—In normal times a young high school graduate is considered as being practically a youngster. They start from the bottom and earn very little. It would be wise to go directly to college, study while you're young, and start out in the world with more knowledge.

W. J. Maypole, accountant, 6326 N. Artesian av.—Education is very important and I think time spent on it is worth while. They say that a younger person learns more readily than an older person. For that reason a student should attend college when he is young. It is better than getting in business first.

Lillie Emmet, clerk, 7829 Carpenter st.—In school a student makes many contacts but they are of a different nature than friendships and acquaintances in the business world. To get a broader view of life and to learn to appreciate school a student should work for a year or so before attending college.

KP DUTY A LAUGH TO CHICAGO GI; HE'S GOING HOME

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ROUEN, France, July 23 [Delayed]—Pvt. Gerald Corwin, left tackle on Fenger High school's 1939 Chicago champion football team, was stripped to the waist repairing a hot water heater in an officer's mess of the 28th infantry division at the staging camp here. He was doing kitchen police, a task distasteful to American soldiers.

"I thought prisoners of war were doing kitchen police for the Americans' victorious armies. Are they not?" Corwin was asked.

"Two GIs and two PWs do the dirty work in this kitchen," replied the bronzed, husky, 22 year old lad. "The GIs work from 7 in the morning to 8:15 or 8:30 in the evening, but the Jerries report here at 8 o'clock, have an hour for lunch, and finish their eight hour day at 5 o'clock."

The soldier was not griping. He was grinning. The incongruity of bankers' hours for prisoners appealed to his risibles. His division is preparing to sail from Le Havre Wednesday for furloughs at home, to be followed by training in the United States before deployment to the Pacific.

Won't be Annoyed

Corwin, whose father is a Republican precinct captain and an Illinois highway department employe living at 11402 Front av., Chicago, like 60,000 others here awaiting ships, cannot be annoyed by anything except delays in getting aboard. That furlough means something after five major battles and 22 months in Europe. What makes it mean even more is the picture Corwin carries in a transparent cigaret case, the face of Miss Estelle Billick, 21, 660 W. 117th st., Chicago.

Hundreds of other Chicagoans are among the 21,000 men and officers of the 28th, and a visit to their tent camp found many of them impatient at the delays in boarding the five ships that will carry them across.

Doing guard duty was Pvt. 1st Class Harvey C. Gunther, 1415 Crain st., Evanston, Ill., who is eager to meet his three months old son, Bill, for the first time. Gunther, who is 29, was transferred from a field artillery unit, with which he won two battle stars, to this infantry division headed for the CBI [China-Burma-India theater] after furloughs and training in the United States.

Pvt. 1st Class Harold J. Schweizer, 25, 3020 Madison st., Chicago, a former cab driver, is another who will see his child for the first time, 10 months old Doris Elaine.

Fears Point Cut

Sgt. Stephen J. French, 24, 1314 N. 37th av., Melrose Park, Ill., former assistant pro at the York Golf club, is worried that the point system for discharges may be lowered before he gets on the ships. He has 81 points. If the requirement should be dropped to 80 points before his ship sails he would not be aboard, but would be stalled in Europe with thousands of other veterans unable to get home because of the ship shortage.

Most of the men interviewed said they would prefer to get a furlough promptly and thereafter ship to the Pacific rather than stay in Europe for months awaiting their discharge. Among them is Pvt. 1st Class Harold H. Friedman, 23, 1313 Kolin av., Chicago, who can wear the silver star and the croix de guerre. On Sept. 3, according to the citation, he and two other military police at St. Quentin repulsed two German attempts to break thru a column of infantry.

Another who fears a quick change in the point system is Pvt. 1st Class Leonard S. Tabert, 24, 2150 Armitage av., Chicago, who has a score of 81.

Has 80 Points

Pvt. 1st Class Edward J. Golden, 24, 4034 Iowa st., Chicago, is an 80 pointer with scores of five for each of five major battles and five more for a wound from a mortar fragment that grazed his temple.

Pvt. Harold H. Friedman [left], Pvt. Joseph K. Schneider, and Pvt. Leonard S. Tabert [right].

Pvt. Edwin O. Johnson, 24, 648 W. 107th st., Chicago, was married only 2½ months before he was called into the army three years ago. He has been overseas 22 months. He is a candidate to reënforce Gen. MacArthur because his points total is only 75, notwithstanding his five battle stars.

Other Chicagoans in one group of 10 preparing to sail were Pvt. Joseph K. Schneider, 2708 Wallace st.; Sgt. Henry De Graf, 5001 Ainslie st.; Pvt. Gordon H. Larsen, 7521 Belmont av., and Pvt. Albert Minor, 4200 Lake Park av.

In the same group were Pvt. Harry H. Schulter, Tinley Park, Ill.; Pvt. Steve Levanich, Rockford, Ill.; Pvt. Francis R. Miller, Dwight, Ill.; Pvt. Lawrence Miller, La Prairie, Ill.; Pvt. Robert D. Renard, Hampshire, Ill., and Pvt. Russell L. Robinson, Decatur, Ill.

Two Essential Here

Two natives of Oak Park, Ill., with the static forces in Europe are Pvt. Joe McKintrick, 23, 215 S. Scoville av., and Sgt. William Keefe, 24, 326 S. Humphrey av. They formerly collaborated in writing a sports column in the Loyola university newspaper. Now they are collaborating, on a job classified as essential, in making recordings for men about to embark for America, recordings that are flown to home town broadcasting stations.

McKintrick was an infantryman until he was hit in the back with a shell fragmen Jan. 15. The two pals asked for some mention of the girl McKintrick said he knew first but Keefe won as his betrothed. Here it is—Miss Molly Lane, 5802 Washington blvd., Chicago.

COURT ENJOINS 3 LANDLORDS IN RENTAL SUITS

Consent injunctions to restrain rental overcharges were granted to the area office of price administration yesterday in Circuit court against three landlords. Two consented to judgment for damages and a third agreed to make a refund.

The are: Oscar Fordyce, 2151 N. Clark st., judgment for $491.50; James R. Sperti and A. J. Klyczek, 1522 Chicago rd., Chicago Heights, judgment for $30 and $60 refund; Laura W. Farr, 406 Galena blvd., Aurora, $376.25 refund.

The OPA also sued for $530.46 and injunctions to restrain Fannie Knowles, 5618 La Salle st., and H. C. Phillips, 7 W. 51st st. Rents of $8 to $9.50 a month above ceiling rates at the La Salle st. address were charged.

Death of F. L. Winston Termed Suicide by Jury

A coroner's jury yesterday attributed the death June 29 of Fred L. Winston, 55, loop real estate dealer, to suicide while temporarily insane. A post-mortem disclosed the presence of poisoning. Winston, who had been sought on five warrants charging frauds amounting to $14,500, was found dead in his room in the Stevens hotel. He is survived by his widow, Carrie, 10 E. Schiller st., and a daughter, Phyllis.

Pleads Not Guilty to Sale of 'A' Gas Stamps to OPA

Jacob Baer, 45, owner of a service station at 5201 N. Western av., accused of selling 25 gasoline ration A coupons to two office of price administration agents for $30, pleaded not guilty yesterday when arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. Assistant United States Atty. William J. McCormack said the OPA investigators used some of the coupons to buy gasoline from Baer. The case was continued to Aug. 2.

2 More German Generals Captured by 3d Army

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY IN GERMANY, July 24 (AP)—Capture of two more German generals, two and one-half months after fighting ended, has been announced by the 3d army. They were Lt. Gen. Otto Hoffman of the Waffen SS and Col. Gen. Hans von Salmuth, formerly commander of the 15th German army in northern France and Holland. Hoffman surrendered in Munich and Von Salmuth at Neustadt, near Regensburg.

GLIDER COMES IN WITH NO WINGS, ONLY A PRAYER

A flying chaplain told of his war experiences yesterday before the meeting of the international army and navy commission of the Lutheran Missouri synod in the Morrison hotel. He is Chaplain Lt. Col. William J. Reiss of Troy, Madison county, first to raise the American flag over Berchtesgaden, Germany.

Chaplain Lt. Col. William J. Reiss

Chaplain Reiss landed in a glider in southern France 80 minutes before D-day with the 101st [Nuts to You] division, the first air borne task force. "It certainly arouses a queer feeling to see bullet holes thru a glider's fabric in line with one's head and to find the bullets have missed you altogether," he said.

"The colonel's glider [on which Chaplain Reiss was a passenger] came down in a field of stakes which tore off both wings. But the Lord was surely with us and we added another verse to Coming in on a Wing and a Prayer by coming in with no wings and only a preyer."

Court Upholds State Ban on Secret Fraternities

Tallahassee, Fla., July 24 (AP)—Florida's law banning secret social fraternities and sororities from public high schools was upheld by the state Supreme court today.

ELECTRIC LINES UNIONS WILLING TO COMPROMISE

A possibility that the wage dispute between two operating unions and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin, and the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee electric railroads might be settled by compromise was seen last night.

A federal panel hearing the wage dispute in the federal courthouse received an expression of willingness to compromise from the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

The panel, headed by Justice Roger I. McDonough of the Utah Supreme court, was expected to discuss a compromise with the railroad trustees today. The unions twice have agreed to postpone a threatened strike while the board hears evidence on the wage issue in which the unions seek raises ranging from 12 to 17 cents an hour for operating crews.

MOTHERS LEARN ART OF REARING DEAF CHILDREN

Attend 'School of Hope' with Youngsters

BY GLADYS PRIDDY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Jacksonville, Ill., July 24—Twenty-two mothers, many looking as young and carefree as college students, and their pre-school age children are jarring the summer vacation doldrums of the Illinois School for the Deaf here in what appears to be a series of picnics on the ancient, elm shaded 100 acre campus. Actually, they're in school.

The mothers are the pupils. They attend five classes a day in an experimental two week summer session designed to help them prepare their children for school thru such mediums as teaching breath control, feeling the rolling rhythm of a bass drum, and putting together picture puzzles. Because all of the tots who scamper in the campus play yard are deaf, their mothers, all of whom have normal hearing, face the problem of teaching them to talk without the chief help of all learned language—mimicry.

First of Its Kind in State

This is the first venture of its kind under auspices of the state. Children and mothers were selected from state-wide clinics conducted by the division of services for crippled children of the University of Illinois and recommended by that agency. The school is operated by the department of public welfare, and the mothers have only to pay their own transportation expenses.

Training here, according to Maurice Moriarty, supervising teacher, is tactile, visual, and auricular—touch, seeing, hearing.

"The handicap of deafness is essentially a language handicap," he said. Contrasting the deaf child with the hearing one who is "bombarded with sounds," mimics them, and finally talks, he added, "the deaf child is deprived of this easy, natural method. He neither receives nor produces expression. More than that, he doesn't know expression is possible." Moriarty emphasizes the pre-school training in terms of the long time process required in developing a well adjusted adult.

Feel Piano Vibrations

Beginning with breakfast at 7:30 a. m., the mothers are in class an hour later watching speech demonstration in which a few children are brought in to put their ears to the grand piano or the bass drum to feel vibrations. This helps in learning the rhythm of speech and names of objects are used with the rhythms.

Then comes the auricular class with an acoustic demonstration for training whatever residual hearing the children have, and most congenitally deaf children are said to have some. An electrical hearing aid is often used, adjusted to the child's needs. The work begins with gross sounds such as bells and whistles. These lead to speech sounds and the development of a word.

This might be called the class of hope. There is a new intentness as individual mothers lean forward to scan the little faces of their own children, watching, praying for some sign that sound has come thru. The mothers are taught here to use mailing tubes, cupped hands, and an inexpensive tube that looks like a stethoscope to direct sounds.

Sense Training Begun

Then comes sense training. The teacher blows on a tiny hand and asks the child, in gestures, to blow as she did. The deaf child, as part of his breath control training, must learn the different ways to blow and there are many—as putting out a candle, keeping a feather aloft.

Here, mothers and children get together a little. Mrs. Troy Smith, 415 S. Chicago av., Kankakee, may be paired with little, blonde Susan, 3, as she strives to help Susan play the game of seeing a spool and then pulling one just like it out of a bag without looking. This is the class where mothers learn to help the children distinguish materials by feeling them, to put together puzzles, to use pictures such as in the mail order catalogs as training devices.

Finally, mothers are told that lip reading is an art like playing the violin, and that it's a long path of patience to get a little one to watch mother's lips instead of her eyes. The parents are told to unlearn their natural tendency to mouth for the lip reader can't expect that kind of coöperation always.

Children Take Naps

Lunch finishes the classroom intervals. Children come in from playing under supervision of house parents to eat with their mothers, and the food is hearty. Today's menu: Meat loaf, spinach, potatoes, gravy, peaches, cake, iced tea, or milk.

Then it's nap time for the youngsters in the rooms they share with their mothers. The women, after a brief rest period, go to lectures.

Here they receive expert counsel. Lecturers contribute their services, according to D. T. Cloud, superintendent of the school. Speakers have included Dr. George T. Shambaugh Jr., Chicago otologist, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Kiester, director of the University of Chicago nursery school.

The work at the school will be followed up by visiting teachers from here as a means of determining the need for it and its success.

Understanding Taught

At this point, with the school ending Saturday, the mothers agree they've been greatly helped in gaining psychological understanding, in sharing their problems, and in morale.

Here from Chicago and vicinity are Mrs. Stanley D. Roeback and Leslie, 2, of 6025 S. Kilpatrick av.; Mrs. James Vasofsky and Ronald, 5, North Chicago; Mrs. Orvin Barrett and Peggy, 4, Chicago Heights, and Mrs. William Anderson and William, 6, of Lansing. There is even a seven months old baby who had to come with her mama in order to keep getting her meals on time. She goes to classes in a school laundry basket.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

July 24, 1945

IN Rio Grande, O., is a farmer who has made a good thing out of adversity. His method of producing high quality milk fed beef may serve as an inspiration to other farmers.

The farmer, Finley Richards, had a herd of 40 high producing Holstein cows. The milk from the herd was sold to a distributor in Huntington, W. Va. The Richards farm was the first stop on the milk wagon's route; as a result, Richards found himself getting up long before daylight to do his milking. In winter months, it was especially onerous to milk the herd while daylight still was hours away. Richards finally decided the project was not worth the labor and long hours.

An Idea Pays Off

Most farmers having reached such a decision would have held a dispersal sale and disposed of the cows. Instead, this farmer decided to go into the baby beef business. He purchased a registered Aberdeen-Angus bull. It was a thick, heavy set animal; a perfect beef type for breeding with the Holstein cows.

The results of this cross was a calf that looked like a purebred beef animal. It was solid black, without horns, and built along beefy lines. Richards permitted the calves to stay with the cows to get all the milk they wanted. The Holsteins are prolific producers of milk and the calves made a remarkable growth.

Fat Brings Top Prices

In a year's time, the calves weighed between 800 and 1,000 pounds and were milk fat. Then, while the calves still looked like beef animals and were fat as butter, they were sold at attractive top prices.

At first Richards had trouble because the cows produced more milk than the calves could handle. He cut down on the protein and amount of feed the cows were getting until the calves could handle their output. One year, all but two of his calves were heifers. He kept some of these to replace the Holstein cows and found the perfect cross for producing milk fed baby beef. The half-Holstein, half-Angus cow produced just enough milk to make the calves fat in the shortest possible time.

Some farmers have at times crossed beef bulls with their dairy cows, but not many have made a permanent business of it. Richards has found a field that is profitable to himself—and perhaps to other farmers.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

CURLING of tomato leaves, especially on the lower one-third of staked plants, is natural in the hot weather of July and August. Unless there is evidence of aphids or other insects on the leaves and stems, it is not necessary to spray or water tomato plants having curled leaves.

All tomato plants in the farm gardens are staked, and in midsummer the leaves of these plants curl and turn yellow on the lower portion of the plant. This phenomenon does not affect the quality or quantity of the fruit. Leaf curl is less pronounced in the farm plots this season because of numerous rains this spring.

Aphids, the tiny lice that live on the under sides of leaves, suck plant juices, and thus cause the leaves to dry and curl. Naturally, if these insects are sighted, the plants should be sprayed with nicotine sulphate or pyrethrum.

YULE IN JULY PARTY FOR GIs TO GO ON AIR

The tree is cut and trimmed, the mistletoe is hung, and mountains of gifts are awaiting a group of service men who spent their last Christmas in foxholes, at sea, on beachheads, or as prisoners of war. The Breakfast club is making it up in part to 25 service men selected by the army, navy, marine corps, and coast guard with a Christmas-in-July party over WCFL, WLS, and ABC from 8 to 9 this morning. Fifteen men will be accompanied by their wives and children; 10 will be married men whose duties still prevent them from rejoining their families.

On hand to greet them with "seasonal" cheer will be Don McNeill, master of ceremonies, Sam Cowling, Red Foley, Nancy Martin, Fran Allison as Aunt Fanny, and Ed Ballantine and his Kris Kringle orchestra playing "White Christmas," "Jingle Bells," and other Yuletide music.

HUMAN TORPEDO ATTEMPT TO SINK TIRPITZ IS TOLD

[Censorship now permits for the first time the telling of the dramatic story of an unsuccessful attempt to sink the German battleship Tirpitz, later sunk by bombers. Arthur Oakeshott was a correspondent with the British fleet.]

BY ARTHUR OAKESCHOTT

LONDON, July 24 [Reuters]—With two submarine torpedoes hung under the keel, a British naval officer hidden in a secret bulkhead and four other naval personnel and an army sergeant concealed beneath a pile of peat on the deck, a Norwegian fishing smack sailed into Trondheim fjord in November almost three years ago to sink the Tirpitz with "chariots"—two man human torpedoes.

The chariots were like a seahorse astride which the two man crew was to sit until the torpedo was "on" its object. The men then were to leave the missile and swim ashore.

Twice the smack, which had a crew of three Norwegians, was stopped at German control points, but a minute search failed to disclose her secrets.

Storm Upsets Plans

She chugged up the fjord at three knots. But when she was almost within sight of the Tirpitz a storm burst over the fjord and the chariots were sunk.

Abandoning their craft, the nine men wam ashore and made their way to the Swedish frontier. Eight escaped, but the ninth was shot by a German patrol.

The Tirpitz had been lying in Trondheim fjord ever since her dash thru the English channel with the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau. It was decided in the autumn of 1942 to try to sink her with the new secret weapon. The nine men were thoroly trained for their mission.

The fishing smack set out from a northern port with her two chariots under tarpaulins on the upper deck.

Hideout Built of Peat

On the upper deck was a little "deckhouse" constructed of peat into which the British personnel were to hide in the event of trouble. The peat appeared to be fuel for the ship's galley.

When a storm sprang up north of the Orkneys, the little craft had to alter course and encountered a British patrol vessel, which made embarrassing inquiries. The skipper talked his way out of the dilemma and the smack went on to Trondheim fjord.

At the entrance she was stopped at the first German control point. Germans examined her papers and passed her. The cargo had by this time been put overboard and was being towed beneath the keel. The ballast tanks were partly filled so that the torpedoes floated beneath the surface and beneath the fishing smack.

The vessel then sneaked thru booms and other obstacles. Suddenly the engine broke down. The skipper took the smack into a small Norwegian port, went ashore and under the noses of the Germans had the engine repaired.

Officer Thinks Fast

At the next control point the Germans made a thoro search, even tapping casings and woodwork with hammers. As the hammer struck the metal of the false bulkhead the British officer hidden behind it moved his hands along the surface so that the blows would not sound hollow.

The smack passed the third German control point without incident and had a clear run to the target.

As night fell, however, a terrific storm broke. The smack held her course with reduced speed, but suddenly there was a jerk and the ship increased speed. The towlines had parted, the two chariots had gone to the bottom, and the whole attempt was off. The men opened the sea cocks to sink the smack, plunged into the icy waters, and swam ashore.

The smack drifted ashore into shallow water and the nine men knew that if the Germans saw it they would smell a rat.

Flee in Two Groups

The men climbed a hill and found sleep in the bitter cold and snow. Upon awakening, they decided to split into two parties and head for Sweden.

One group reached Sweden after three days without incident but the other had hair raising adventure.

It traveled by day and, on rounding a sharp bend in the road, ran into two German soldiers, one carrying a rifle and the other a tommygun. The rifleman halted the party, but one man, who had been out of sight around the bend, sneaked up and killed him with a revolver. The German with the tommygun killed one of the party, then was shot dead.

REVEAL BROWDER BOAST THAT HE DRAFTED F. D. R.

Lined Up His Strategy While in Prison

New York, July 24 [Special]—Speaking before a secret meeting of the Communist Political association's national committee June 18, Earl Browder, Communist leader, took full credit for launching a "draft Roosevelt" movement in 1943, it was disclosed here today. He also boasted of reshaping the Communist party's political strategy in support of President Roosevelt's fourth term campaign while serving time in Atlanta penitentiary for passport fraud. He entered prison in March, 1941.

Browder took credit for spiking a third party movement in the last election; discrediting John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in the eyes of the nation; increasing the prestige of Philip Murray, CIO president; putting the CIO political action committee straight on campaign tactics, and saving America from a mass strike at the time of the Nazi breakthru on the Belgian front.

Tells of Prison Code

Browder said he was able to direct party policy from prison by sending out "abstruse messages" on biblical and other nonpolitical topics to "the comrades in the field." Some of his ideas, he disclosed, were contained in discourses on chess and checkers.

It was from Atlanta, he explained, that he laid the groundwork in the party for the new Browder line, which, after his release, resulted in the scrapping of the Communist party label and the class struggle in May, 1944. Browder set up the National Communist Political association as an ostensible replacement for the party.

"Practically, it was in my judgment impossible to rally a majority of the voters to the reëlection of Roosevelt upon a program which proclaimed to break the power of monopoly capital," he said.

Expected to be Ousted

It is expected that Browder's "new line" will bring about his overthrow in the national convention of the Communists here Thursday. Defending his action, he said that while the party was replaced by the political association, "in the Marxist sense we remained just as much a party as before, and strengthened our role in the political life of the country."

Browder criticized the CIO-PAC, saying it was paralyzed in 1943 because it accepted "the Dubinsky idea that labor's indorsement of Mr. Roosevelt [for a 4th term] should be withheld until the last minute as a 'bargaining point' in dealing with government labor policy."

[David Dubinsky, president of the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers' union, frequently has assailed Communism, and in turn has been denounced by the Red press in Moscow.]

Beat Down Opposition

"We had to spend the last half of 1943 breaking down all these difficulties and launching the 'draft Roosevelt' movement from below," Browder said.

Before entering Atlanta, Browder had been the spearhead of the Communist drive to hamper the nation's aid-to-the-allies program in what he termed "the imperialist war." Russia and Germany at that time were at peace with each other while splitting up Poland.

With the Nazi invasion of Russia three months later, after he started serving his sentence, Browder had a change of heart and urged his fellow Reds to subordinate everything to helping Russia and the other allies win the war.

Browder's speech was published in the Daily Worker, official Communist organ. It did not sway any votes on the national committee of the Communist Political association, as that group voted 53 to 1 to repudiate him. The one vote in Browder's favor was his own.

The grin behind the beard...

● The kind of a grin, you'll agree, that could only be on the face of a guy who knew he was doing a good job. And that's exactly what Bill Jones is doing—out there in the Pacific.

He landed one morning not so long ago on an island the Japs wanted to keep. Splashed ashore, took everything they had to give, across that strip of beach—and gave 'em back a whole lot more than they could take.

We're pretty proud of Bill Jones. He used to be one of our bulk station agents. He'll be working at it again when the war's over, if he wants to—or on some other Standard Oil job just as good or better. Bill knew that when he left.

Bill knows now, too, that all the time he spends in war service will count as time worked for Standard Oil in computing his eligibility for vacations and welfare benefits—and that any special skills he may acquire in the service will be taken into consideration by Standard Oil, when filling better jobs. And he knows that he will not be refused employment because of disability if a job at Standard Oil can be found which he can perform without creating a safety hazard.

We believe that is one reason Bill Jones (that's not his real name, of course) wears a grin behind his beard. We believe he's a better soldier than he'd be otherwise.

More than 400 veterans, honorably discharged from the armed services, already have returned to the employ of the Standard Oil Company. Still in the service are more than 3,550 Standard Oil men and women. We want all of them back with us, when they're through with the big war job. We feel just as Uncle Sam does about them . . . they represent America's finest.

U. S. TO REMOVE PRICE CONTROLS ON MINOR ITEMS

Prepares to Speed Up Reconversion

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—The government tonight outlined a program for removing price control from minor commodities "to clear the decks for speedier handling of reconversion programs."

Announced jointly by the office of economic stabilization and the OPA the program sets up procedures for eliminating price ceilings under specific conditions.

"Among the 8,000,000 commodities and services now under price control are some items for which ceilings soon will no longer be necessary," Price Administrator Bowles said.

He added that it is "essential for us to clear our decks in OPA, and streamline our procedures to permit speedy decisions" in the task of reconverting industry from war production to manufacturing of peace time goods.

Some Suggested Items

While the announcement cited no specific examples of commodities which may be removed from price control, scrap aluminum has been mentioned as one. Others are costume jewelry, fur coats, and some varieties of liquor, exclusive of whisky.

In a directive effective July 28, Stabilization Director William H. Davis authorized OPA to remove controls under these circumstances.

1. When, in OPA's judgment, such action will not result in an increase in the general level of prices of the item involved. If the commodity is one that "enters significantly into the cost of living," Davis must be notified of the proposed action. If he does not disapprove the proposal within five days, the suspension or exemption order may be issued by OPA. In all such cases exemption must be preceded by a trial period of suspension.

Other Conditions to Meet

2. When the following three conditions are met:

[a] The commodity or service does not enter significantly into the cost of living or into business costs and [b] continued control involves administrative difficulties out of proportion to the effectiveness of control or the contribution to economic stabilization and [c] suspension or exemption presents no threat of diversion of materials, plant facilities, or man power from war production or manufacture of other important commodities. Also, such action must not impair effective price control on other items.

LEAVES BABY 31 DAYS; MENTAL TEST ORDERED

Mrs. Dorothy Conklin, 21, of 6042 Wallace st., who left her daughter, Carol Ann, 2, with a neighbor June 14 and then disappeared for 31 days, was ordered yesterday by Judge Victor Kula in Domestic Relations court to be examined by the Municipal court psychiatrist. The hearing on a charge of contributing to the dependency of a minor against Mrs. Conklin was continued to Aug. 3 and a disorderly conduct charge was added.

The mothers of three babies who have been taken to St. Vincent's orphanage after being abandoned in the last three days still are being sought by police. Two of the infants were abandoned late Monday night. One, a blue eyed boy about two weeks old, was wrapped in blue and pink blankets and left in the shrubbery which fringes Lincoln park at 2440 Lake View av.

A girl about six weeks old was found in a hallway at 4840 Paulina st. Diapers, milk, powder, and other baby items were in a bag beside the child. The third baby, a girl, was found Sunday on a bench in Jackson park when she was about three days old.

$9,000 HIS SPLIT ON $2,000,000; HE SMELLS A RAT

The suspicion of Patrick [Patsy] Flaherty, 43, an ex-convict, that he was cheated of his share of 2 million dollars obtained in the looting of the safety deposit boxes in the real estate office of E. H. Rumbold last January, was told by a prosecution witness yesterday as the state closed its case.

Flaherty and Willie Niemoth, 54, a safe blower, the only two defendants remaining on trial, are expected to be put on the stand today by their lawyers, James M. Burke and George Crane, bringing the trial to an end. A third defendant, Llewellyn Morgan, 44, pleaded guilty Monday.

One Strangulation Victim

Of four other men indicted in the case, Michael Kosar and Thomas Leahy have pleaded guilty and are awaiting separate trials; John [Jiggs] Sullivan has not been arrested, and Wincel Urban was found strangled to death March 15 near Kankakee.

Detective Sgt. Timothy O'Connell, who helped solve the Rumbold robbery and brought Flaherty back to Chicago from Belleville, St. Clair county, testified that Flaherty freely talked of his part in the crime.

"I asked him what he got out of it," O'Connell said, "and he told me $9,000. When I told him the papers said more than one million dollars was taken from the boxes, Patsy said: 'Gee, some man must have gypped me!'"

$2.45 Left of $9,000 Share

Flaherty had only $2.45 left of the $9,000, O'Connell said. "I just gambled and spent the rest of it," the detective said Flaherty told him.

The state introduced into the court record the fact that Flaherty was sentenced to the penitentiary May 13, 1922, for larceny and was paroled after serving 18 months. He had been arrested on a charge of robbery with a gun, but the charge was reduced and a jury recommended clemency.

BOY, 5, IS KILLED BY FIRE TRUCK ON FALSE ALARM

A false fire alarm brought death last night to a 5 year old boy under the wheels of a hook and ladder truck and sadness to the hook and ladder firemen, because they knew him as a fire station fan.

The victim was Edward Kundert of 2235 13th st. He was struck by hook and ladder truck No. 12 as he ran from behind a parked car in front of 2211 13th st. He was pronounced dead when taken to County hospital.

The truck company was returning from a false alarm at 1707 S. Paulina st. to its station at 2258 13th st. and was traveling only 15 miles an hour. The veteran driver, John Curtin, and other members of the company knew the youngster from his frequent visits to the fire house.

Frank Remy, 62, of Westville, Vermillion county, was killed yesterday near Grant Park, Kankakee county, when his automobile was struck by a Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad freight train. The automobile was dragged almost 2,000 feet.

DURKIN BARES PLUMBER UNION FUND SHORTAGE

Martin P. Reports of the shortage vary from $40,000 to $90,000.

Durkin made the statements in a closed meeting in the union hall at 1340 Washington blvd. at the installation of local officers. William E. Costello replaced Frank Bent as president. Garden Club Medal to Be Given Today

BY JUDITH CASS

MEMBERS of the Lake Geneva Garden club will turn out in force for a luncheon today in the Lake Geneva Country club when the Frances K. Hutchinson medal for 1945 will be presented by the Garden Club of America to Newton B. Drury of Glencoe for his work in saving the redwood forests of California. The medal is awarded annually for outstanding work in conservation and heretofore always has been presented at the annual meeting of the Garden Club of America in June in New York.

Mrs. Alfred J. Kiekhefer, president of the Green Tree Garden club of Milwaukee and zone chairman of the middle west district of the garden club, will make the presentation. The medal was founded by the Lake Geneva club in memory of Mrs. Hutchinson and her work in conservation. It was given to Louis Bromfield two years ago for his work in connection with prevention of soil erosion.

Following the luncheon and meeting the group will cross the lake for a tour of Wychwood, formerly the home of Mrs. Hutchinson and her husband, the late Charles L. Hutchinson. Wychwood now is a wild life sanctuary, owned by the University of Chicago. Mrs. Drury will be among the guests at the luncheon of which Mrs. Rawleigh Warner and Mrs. Everett P. McDonnell are co-hostesses.

Members of the committee for the benefit Holiday Home rummage sale held last week in Lake Geneva are congratulating themselves on raising more than $3,000, thereby breaking all previous sale records. Mrs. Philip A. Starck was chairman of the event. Shelves, counters, and booths were stripped of merchandise by noon, and the sale was over.

Wedding News

Miss Mary Alice Herthel will be her sister's only attendant, and the best man will be the bridegroom's younger brother, Richard Barr. Ensign Barr and his bride attended Carleton college. He recently returned from duty in the Atlantic on a destroyer escort which accounted for two enemy submarines. Ensign Barr expects overseas duty again in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Winfield Webb of Evanston will be awaiting news from England about the marriage of their daughter, Frances, and Maj. Frederick John Leishman of the British royal engineers, which will take place at 4 p. m. Friday in St. Mark's church, London. A reception will follow in the Westminster suite of near-by Grosvenor House. In the absence of her parents, Miss Webb will be given in marriage by a friend of the family now living in London, Gray Miller.

Miss Webb and her fiancé, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Leishman of Barnard castle, County Durham, England, met in 1938 as students in Grenoble, France. Miss Webb, a 1942 graduate of Northwestern university, has been serving in London with the office of strategic services since last July. As soon as Maj. Leishman is released from his duties in Germany, he will enter the British foreign office. Following a wedding trip to Cornwall, his bride will remain in London for the present.

Vacation at Home

I cannot travel where I list,
So says the ODT;
But I can buy the luggage for it,
Says WP [and B].

I can't reserve a Pullman berth—
The soldiers need the bunks;
But WP [and also B]
Has raised the ban on trunks.

I can't reserve a chair car seat—
Tickets are E. R. O.;
But grips and bags can now be had
If I could raise the dough.

Grips and trunks, and handbags, too,
Are coming in brass and chrome;
Yes, luggage I can buy in stacks—
And sit on it at home.

THE REAL WORD EXPERT

Office Irk

Please ask your readers how to squelch the boss who constantly compares your dress and clothes with the costly apparel of his wife . . . or the tremendous ability of his niece to make lovely clothes [when she has nothing else to do] . . . who unceasingly comments on how wonderfully a girl can outfit herself if she gets material and sews [if she has the cash and the outlay—and not a million other responsibilities].

Yours for the boss who worries not about one's clothes!

BELITTLED

To the Rescue

As an ex-red cap I know only too well that many suburbanites consider the red cap a necessary nuisance. When pushing our trucks thru the crowd we get plenty of scowls, but one incident, at least, shows that the WCGs consider us as human beings. Just as the Des Moines Rocket was about to pull out on track 15 along came Bill S——, carrying three heavy suitcases belonging to a woman trying to catch the Rocket. Well, just then Bill's pocket must have broken, because all his money fell on the platform and rolled in every direction among the passengers headed for the local train. Do you know, when the WCGs saw what happened they came to the rescue, stopped, and picked up all the change, and Bill didn't lose a nickel.

What Do You Read?

Nordica Fenneman, in charge of the library at the Auditorium service men's center, declares that the listing of recent light, fast moving novels as good summer fiction is a fallacy. "People read just as good books in summer as they do in winter," says Miss Fenneman. "Librarians of long experience, in helping readers select their vacation reading, would go even further and say that they read better books. So frequently does a request for a list of the 'World's Great Books' preface the assembling of a vacation packet that the unlimited period of the vacation loan acts as an incentive to read the books one has always wanted but never had time to read. . . . This year vacations may be limited to a day or a week-end, but reading can be fitted into the most irregular of schedules and wears out no automobile tires!"

OPA to Issue Ration Book 5 in December

Between 18 and 20 million of the No. 5 war ration books to be validated after Jan. 1 will be distributed in December in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, and the Dakotas, Rae E. Walters, office of price administration regional administrator, said yesterday.

In making the announcement in Washington that 150 million of the new books will be printed, OPA Administrator Bowles said he expected this book would be the last. He added that while it appears the book will be needed at least thru most of 1946, he hoped there will be plenty of stamps in it that consumers will not have to use.

Walters said 5 or 6 million books will be given out in the Chicago area. They will be distributed at schools and other public buildings from Dec. 3 thru Dec. 15. Local OPA officials will designate the definite places and hours for distribution. New "A" gasoline ration books, of which the first set of stamps will be validated Dec. 22, will be issued to motorists at the same time.

The No. 5 ration book will contain 48 red and 48 blue stamps, 12 sugar stamps, 12 shoe stamps, and 72 "spare" stamps. Meat, canned goods, sugar, and shoes will be scarce thru most of 1946, the OPA has announced, and if necessary the new books may last for 15 months.

Effective tomorrow the ceiling price on grapes and lemons will be reduced 4 cents a pound, James F. Riley, acting area director of the OPA, said yesterday. Prices, which will apply thru next Wednesday, were announced for Cook, Du Page, Kane, Lake, and McHenry counties in Illinois and Lake county, Indiana. They included:

Increases—Apples, Yellow Transparent, up 1 cent to 14 cents a pound; cherries, sweet, up 2 cents to 41 cents a pound; peas, green [all], up ½ cent to 20½ cents a pound; potatoes, white [redskinned], up 1 cent to 32 cents for five pounds; spinach, up ½ cent to 13½ cents a pound; sweet potatoes, up 2 cents to 27 cents for two pounds; tomatoes, all repacked, up 1 cent to 34 cents a pound.

Decreases—Grapes, down 4 cents to 25 cents a pound; lemons, down 4 cents to 11 cents a pound; peaches, down 1 cent to 13 cents a pound; onions, dry [yellow and red, under three inches], down 2 cents to 29 cents for three pounds.

Added to the price list were wealthy apples, 14 cents a pound; blackberries, 44 cents a quart; red sour cherries, 44 cents a quart; California Elberta peaches, 17 cents a pound.

No Soap Rationing Plan

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said today he had no plan to order rationing of soap. In a statement, he appealed to housewives to discontinue the practice of raiding store shelves as soon as new soap shipments are received.

Anderson also announced that manufacturers will be permitted to make a 10 per cent increase in the output of household "heavy duty" laundry type soap chips, flakes, powders, granulated, and other similar types. He estimated the increase in these types would make about 100 million pounds more available for civilians in a 12 month period.

The present production level of toilet and laundry bar soaps and flakes and granulated soaps used for washing fine fabrics will be unchanged.

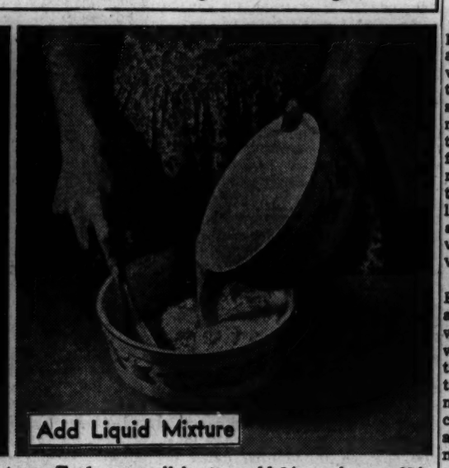
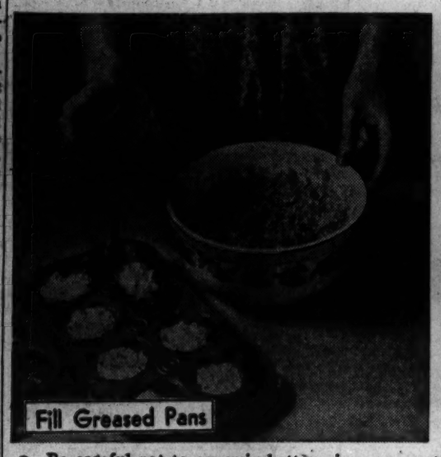
Honey Bran Muffins Spare Shortening and Sugar



1. Sift together 2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, and ¾ teaspoon salt. Combine 2 cups bran, ¾ cup chopped nuts, and ⅓ cup raisins. Add to flour.

2. To 1 egg, well beaten, add ⅓ cup honey, 1¾ cups milk, and 2 tablespoons shortening, melted. Pour into bran mixture, stirring only until dry ingredients are dampened.



3. Be careful not to overmix batter, since overmixing causes tunnels. Fill greased muffin pan ⅔ full and bake in hot oven (400 degrees) for 25 to 35 minutes.

4. Saving on shortening and sugar, these muffins need neither butter nor jelly to enhance the taste appeal of the honey and bran combination. Recipe makes 16 small muffins.

Wisconsin Harvests One of Largest Pea Crops in Its History

Milwaukee, Wis., July 24 [Special]—A very large pea crop, perhaps the largest in Wisconsin history, which may attain 15,000,000 cases, is being harvested this year in southern and central Wisconsin. While it is almost overpowering the canners and cannery workers, it is expected to be completed in the next 10 days.

Cherry growers in Door county said yesterday that they recognized the staggering size of the pea crop and realized "that it had priority" over the stripping of their trees and the packing of the fruit, all of which, this year, has been commandeered by the army.

While many German prisoners of war are working on the pea crop, canners say that unless more civilian labor responds to their pleas for help, they will have to let some fields lie, letting the peas go to seed.

Brilliant Florentine and Gifted Viennese Win Over Weather at Ravinia

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Massimo Freccia, conductor; Erica Morini, violinist. Presented by Ravinia Tuesday evening, July 24, 1945. The program:

Overture to "Oberon".....Weber
Notturno.....Martucci
Orchestral Fragments, Second Series, from "Daphnis and Chloë".....Ravel
Concerto for Violin, D major....Beethoven

Let no one say there are no compensations even to one who blew a tire on the way to Ravinia in what was, I hope and trust, the hottest night of the season. For despite the weather, which sometimes made the Chicago Symphony orchestra as hoarse and muggy as its faithful audience, there was a first rate concert waiting at the end of the journey, introducing the brilliant Florentine, Massimo Freccia, as conductor, and featuring the Ravinia debut of the gifted Viennese violinist, Erica Morini.

Frankly, I was waiting for Mr. Freccia. Giorgio Polacco is his great admirer, and no easy man to please when it comes to music. So it was with more pleasure than surprise that I found in the young conductor, who is not so much slender as narrowly and wirily built, a musician with a conscience, a keen ear, a vaulting sense of brilliance, and, most of all, a lyrical, poetic imagination.

You think that is a lot to discover in one concert? Not at all. We knew it when he finished the overture to "Oberon"—in fact, we suspected it when he began, and I do not use the editorial "we." I mean the audience. You could tell its quick mounting interest from the instant Freccia set the orchestra in motion, so instantly apparent were his sensitive authority and his full understanding of the score. Applause blazed even before the last notes had died away.

It was too bad we could not have heard the languorous Martucci Nocturne in perfect weather, but even without the maximum orchestral purity there was no mistaking the lyricism that sustained its flowing song, and possibly some of us were right in thinking it a kind of dedication. When the Chicago Symphony played that Nocturne more than a quarter of a century ago, Giorgio Polacco was its guest conductor.

The "Daphnis and Chloe" excerpts, the usual second series, also suffered from the weather, but tho the performance lacked the voluptuous brilliance of Rodzinski's recent triumph, it was a mercurial, beautifully articulated reading by a conductor who uses no score for the only permissible reason—that he needs none.

Miss Morini, who has been appearing with our orchestra since she was a little girl, is a gallant creature not to be downed by such lamentable items as the weather, obstinate insects, and a freight train chugging thru the first of her intricately wrought cadenzas. Achieving a delicate and somehow delightful rapport between Beethoven and things as they had to be, she played the concerto cleanly and wisely, with touches of humor and eloquence and sudden darts of brilliance, and Mr. Freccia's accompaniment gave her a sound and lovely frame. If she was playing her Davidoff Strad, it has a dark and winy tone, with a featherweight trill.

Notes

Eddie Dowling telegraphs, "We settled with Alex Yokri today, buying his 10 per cent interest [in "The Glass Menagerie"] back for $40,000 cash and a year's salary [as company manager] up to June, 1946. I hope from now on to have some peace." . . . To inquirers about Ernest N. Doring's "How Many Strads?", reviewed last Sunday, the book costs $20 and is available at William Lewis & Son, 207 S. Wabash av.

Tonight's Program at Grant Park

Overture to "Euryanthe".....Weber
Concerto for cello.....Haydn
Excerpts from Act III., "Die Meistersinger".....Wagner
Cello solos with piano accompaniment:

Rondo.....Weber
Song Without Words.....Mendelssohn-Schuster
Fire Dance.....De Falla
Symphony No. 8, C minor.....Beethoven

Blistering Heat Brings Plea of Needy for Ice

The rasping call of the iceman was music to the ears of many of the city's needy yesterday.

The sweltering heat is their enemy. It spoils their meager food supply and brings about serious illnesses which they cannot afford. It weakens their aged and torments their sick. Their one weapon against it is ice, plenty of ice. But ice costs money, and many do not have enough funds even for the bare necessities of life.

To these, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S ice fund extends a cool, soothing hand. Contributions sent in from readers go to the United Charities which in turn purchases ice tickets for needy cases. One dollar purchases ice for an entire week for one family.

With the onset of the hot weather, the United Charities has been receiving an increasing number of applications for ice. One of these came from the wife of a soldier who needs ice for herself and her five small children. She finds it difficult to maintain her family on the allowance. Two of the children have been under care of a clinic and require additional milk in their diet because of nutritional deficiency. Ice is necessary to keep it sweet.

Another woman, a widow, has been forced to give up her job in order to care for her three children. The family lives in two rooms in the rear of a church mission. The widow has been aided by readers of Sally Joy Brown's Tribune column with a stove, beds, and an ice box. Since the arrival of the ice box and of ice for it, the United Charities has found a great improvement in the health of the family because of better facilities for making and storing a wider variety of food.

An elderly man on the west side is receiving ice thru the ice fund for himself and his invalid sister. He came to Chicago two years ago to care for her when her husband died. However, he is 65 and handicapped with arthritis. He is determined to find work but needs assistance until his physical condition is sufficiently improved.

And there are many more cases—of diabetic patients whose insulin must be kept cool at all costs, of the elderly and infirm who must depend on aid from others to exist. Ice in many instances represents the difference between misery and comfort.

Readers who wish to contribute to this cause may make out checks and money orders to the Ice Fund, Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Tower, Chicago. All donations will be acknowledged in these columns.

'This Nettle Danger' . . . . By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright: 1945: By William MacLeod Raine)

SYNOPSIS: In the homesteaders' attempt to cut wires used by the cattlemen to fence in government land for their herds, Bruce Sherrill, leader of the homesteaders, is wounded. Bruce shot Sun Randall, son of old Jeff Randall, owner of the Diamond Tail ranch. Bruce is not a killer but had to protect his own side. He knows he was recognized and must make a getaway.

INSTALMENT III.

SUCCOR

Bruce was awakened by the rain beating in his face. Within the hour he caught sight of riders moving along a ridge above him. He drew back into the pines and waited until they had passed from sight. Already night was beginning to fall. He decided to stay in this timbered park until daybreak.

After several attempts he got a fire started close to a projecting sandstone bluff. There was little hope in him. The mountain passes must both be guarded. He dared not shoot game. Eventually he would be forced to work back to the ranch country from which he had escaped.

He slept fitfully, waking now and again from the pain of his wound and from the penetrating cold. Dawn broke clear. He was saddling when he saw riders once more on the lip of the park, this time traveling in the opposite direction from those he had sighted yesterday. One of them pulled up and pointed a finger down at him. Somebody let out a yell of triumph.

Bruce pulled himself into the hull and made for the opposite ridge. When he reached the top he looked back to see riders strung along the flat he had just left. He had no choice now. With the hunters so close on his heels he had to let himself be driven back into the ranch country and hope for a miracle. Recklessly he raced down the steep slope. He came to a long ledge overlooking the plains. Perhaps he was trapped.

His pursuers were out of sight for the moment, and they had not yet appeared when he found a rain gutter made by flood storms and turned the horse into it. This was a beggar's choice, but the buckskin reached safer ground below. A hill crease tempted him, and he took it instantly. The draw led to open ground. There was a fence before him and beyond that the buildings of the Bar B B ranch house. He grinned wryly. His long flight had brought him to the very door of his chief enemy, Cliff Applegate.

Linda was making a rice pudding when she heard a horse moving toward the house. She glanced thru the window. The buckskin was the favorite mount of her cousin, Ben Randall, but the man in the saddle was not Ben. She was startled. Ben lay at home, near to death. That villain Bruce Sherrill had jumped his horse and escaped on it. Except at a distance she had never seen the fellow, but this must be the man. While he lowered himself from the saddle, heavily, as one does who has been hurt, her gaze did not lift from him.

The girl was surprised at the appearance of the man she saw in the doorway. He was haggard, his eyes sunken from pain and fatigue. What very much astonished her was that she found no evil in the face of this man whom she had for years heard denounced as a scoundrel.

"Couldn't make it," he said, lifting the Stetson from a head of crisp reddish hair. "Your friends were too smart for me. They cut me off from the passes."

The planes in the fresh young face set like those of a hanging judge. She was thinking of Ben Randall, the boy with whom she had gone to school and ridden the range and hunted deer.

"So you come to me for help—after killing my cousin," she flung at him bitterly.

The news that Randall was dead disturbed him, but he had no time for dwelling on that now. "Thought you might like to be in at the kill," he corrected, still with the thin brittle smile. "They are beating the hills back of your place. In 10 or 15 minutes they ought to be here."

"If they find you here——"

"There won't be any time for last words, will there?" he cut in flippantly.

"Get on that horse and ride away," she ordered, stormy lights in her dark eyes. "I can't save you—and I wouldn't if I could. You'd better hurry." Her gaze swept out of the window. No horsemen were yet in sight.

He came into the room and put a hand on the back of a kitchen chair to steady him.

"Don't you hear me?" she snapped. "If they are really there, as you say, they'll take you out and hang you."

"You're a true Applegate," he said. "No fooling you. Give the dog a bad name and hang him."

Anger boiled in her, and back of it an increasing dread. She hated this insolent scamp, but she did not want him taken to be killed—not here, before her eyes, after she had seen him in such dire need.

"What is it you want—food?" she demanded. "If it's that, I'll get you some. But I won't have you here."

"Quite right," he agreed. "Evil communications corrupt good manners. I learned that in my copybook."

His knees collapsed, and he pitched down at her feet in a faint. Linda caught sight of a horseman for a moment and then he disappeared in a draw.

Already she had decided to save him if she could. Her thoughts came in stabbing flashes. First, she must get the horse out of sight before they emerged from the foothills. That done, she must hide the hunted man. In the storeroom off the kitchen. Neither her father nor her brothers went in there more than once a week.

She ran out and pulled herself to the saddle on the buckskin. There was a brushfilled gully at one side of the house where old tin cans and garbage were flung. Near the lower end she led the animal down the steep bank and tied it to a young willow.

As she hurried back to the house Linda saw that the hunters were out of the foothills and moving toward the ranch.

She caught the unconscious man under the armpits and dragged him across the kitchen floor into the storeroom. A flour barrel and one containing molasses stood at the far wall and behind these she left Sherrill. His hat and the saddle gun she brought in and concealed under some empty gunny sacks. There was no time to make sandwiches, for she could see a group of men coming thru the gate, but she took in and left with her unwelcome guest a jug of milk and a plate of bread and cold beef.

When a rap came on the door she was stirring the pudding, a song on her lips. She stopped singing. "Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt," to let in Bill Cairns and four Pitchfork cowboys.

"Morning, Miss Lindy." Ever since the girl had been 15 Cairns had looked at her with a covetous eye. "Haven't seen anything of that fellow Sherrill, I reckon?"

Linda's eyes were wide with surprise. "Is he around here, Mr. Cairns?"

"You bet he is. Not far away. We drove him down from the hills and lost him at the rimrock. But he had to come this way."

The actual bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	1 spade	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of spades.

The bidding of today's hand was characterized by undue timidity on the part of East, who unquestionably should have gone to four spades over North's jump to game. His argument, "I would have done so, partner, except that we were vulnerable," was unsound in principle, and incidentally is a very common failing.

I have many times seen players reach a contract of two no trump or three spades on constructive bidding and suddenly decide to stop, with the comment that they would have gone on to game if they had not been vulnerable. It should be pointed out, for their benefit, that it is just as important to bid game, in fact, more so, when one is vulnerable.

While the penalty for failure is slightly heavier, the reward for success is correspondingly greater. The time to be deterred by vulnerability is when you are competing against opponents who appear to have the better hand, or when you are fighting single handed against the opposition, your partner obviously having nothing.

A vulnerable overcall should, therefore, always be upon a firm footing. East has the benefit of a partner who was willing to make a vulnerable overcall and should know that his side could not be seriously hurt at four spades, whereas it appeared probable that four heart contract could not be defeated.

South's ineptness kept the hand from turning into a complete disaster for East and West. The king of spades was opened and South took off the ace and king of trumps. When East showed out he continued with another trump. West won with the queen and forced dummy's remaining trump with the queen of spades. The defense succeeded in taking three club tricks and two trumps and a spade for down three.

The fulfilment of the contract could have been assured by a simple measure. After one high trump is cashed, a low trump should be led to the jack. If it should lose to the queen in East's hand, it will mean that the trumps have broken and declarer can cash six diamonds, three hearts, and the ace of spades for 10 tricks. In the actual hand West will go up with the queen and can do no better than cash two club tricks.

It would be unsound tactics for declarer to ruff spades in dummy before getting out trumps. With the solid diamond suit available for discards trumps should be extracted as promptly and as safely as possible.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM

♠ K Q 7 3 ♥ None ♦ A K J 9 6 2 ♣ A K 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	2 hearts	Pass	3 clubs

E. Belle, Iowa City, Ia. — Take about 12 inches of wire and insert one end into a piece of sponge about 2 inches wide by 3 inches long. Bend the wire so the end is fastened securely in sponge and use to clean milk bottles.

Mrs. Leonard A., Chicago—In my pantry I keep a wood strip into which I have driven a number of headless brads. With it I can mark a pan of fudge into neat, uniform squares.

Mrs. Henry T., Milwaukee—To remove a water stain from wool or silk, I rub the stain, when dry, with another section of the material. Then I press the stained spot under a damp cloth. I use the same treatment for rayon.

First 6 Winners Are Chosen in Festival Trials

A dislike for studying piano was the beginning of a vocal career which last night made Miss Winifred M. Heckman, 21, of 7818 Crandon av., winner of the contralto class in the first audition of the Cook county vocal contests of the 16th annual Chicago Music Festival.

Preliminary winners in six groups were selected at the auditions, in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore dr. The second session of competitive auditions for vocalists living in the south and southwest areas of Chicago and Cook county will be held in the same hotel at 7 p. m. tonight.

Ex-Chicagoan to Be Bride of Lt. Robert Sala

From Palo Alto, Cal., comes news of the approaching marriage Aug. 1 of Miss Mary Ann Fitzpatrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keene Fitzpatrick of Palo Alto, formerly of Chicago, to Lt. Robert Louis Sala, son of Mrs. William Louis Sala of Oak Park. The ceremony will take place in St. Thomas Aquinas church, Palo Alto, with a reception following in the Fitzpatrick home.

Lt. Sala, a pilot in the army air forces, was a prisoner of war in Germany and spent some time in a hospital in England following V-E day. He and Miss Fitzpatrick met four years ago when she was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Charles McCabe Jr., in Evanston. Mrs. McCabe will be present at the wedding as she is spending the summer with the Fitzpatricks. Miss Fitzpatrick, granddaughter of the late John J. Mehlen of Chicago and Florida, attended the University of Arizona and the Tobe Coburn school in New York.

The marriage of Lt. [j. g.] Virginia Milroy of the navy nurse corps to Lt. James R. Murphy of the marine corps took place July 10 in St. Mary's church in Evanston. The bride, a graduate of the Mercy Hospital School of Nursing in Cedar Rapids, Ia., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Milroy of Manchester, Ia. Lt. Murphy received his degree from Northwestern university. He has served in the South Pacific. Both he and his bride were stationed at Crane, Ind., until recently, when he reported for duty at Oceanside, Cal. He is the son of John J. Murphy of Evanston.

In a ceremony July 20 in Thorndyke Hilton chapel of the University of Chicago, Miss Lolita Cates Evans, daughter of Mrs. Helen Cates Evans of Stratford, Conn., became the bride of Lt. Webster Lee Howard of the army air forces, son of Mrs. Emma Lou Howard of Fort Worth, Tex., and of Marion Howard of Los Angeles, Cal. Since her graduation from the woman's college of Furman university in Greenville, S. C., Miss Evans has lived with her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. John Perry Howe of Kimbark av., who served as attendants at the wedding.

Lt. Howard, a graduate of Brownsville Junior college in Texas, is on temporary duty in this country following 16 months' service in the Mediterranean theater. After a short wedding trip he and his bride will be at home temporarily in Fort Worth. Her father was the late Clyde Drury Evans of Manila, P. I.

Women Must Keep Heads Up for New Hats, Says Milliner

Forthcoming styles in women's hats will demand that "women hold their heads up," John Frederics, New York hat designer, said here yesterday in speaking at a millinery clinic in the Palmer House sponsored by the Interstate Department Stores, a nation-wide group of department stores.

Frederics predicted that the "architectural hat with much line and not too much trimming" will be back in vogue. He mentioned the derby crown hat "which will stand any storm or stress" as something that will be seen a great deal. Crowns also will be so constructed that the hat will actually look larger than it is, he said.

The hatless fad hasn't hurt the millinery business, Frederics added. Since the beginning of the mode, the industry has jumped from a 63 million dollar income to 239 millions, he said.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 24—Orson Welles tells me he'll be back on the job in two weeks if he can assemble a cast that quickly for the delightful story Tony Veiller has just completed. Orson will direct this original tale as well as act in it. I asked him, "What's the title?" Said he, "It's so corny I just call it 'Project 23' to date." Yes, Orson was invited by David Selznick to play a role in "Duel in the Sun"—but only the day after the story appeared in my column that he hadn't been asked. . . . I've been playing the first album of Orson's Decca records. They're charming. He tells me that as soon as Bing Crosby has time off they plan to do a recording together of Oscar Wilde's "The Happy Prince." It should be a happy combination. . . . Twentieth Century-Fox got Sally Benson down on paper for a long term contract after seeing her completed script for "Anna and the King of Siam." Sally has been doing all right by M-G-M, too, but any studio with a Peggy Ann Garner on its talent list can't afford to miss landing the lady with such a neat trick of putting the young mind on paper.

Daily Dozen as Some Do It

Clifton Webb tells me there never was anything funnier than his morning exercise class at George Cukor's house, with Clifton, George, Somerset Maugham, and Constance Collier all trying to do the same things at the same time in spite of their strong individual temperaments. A stern instructor stands over them shouting, "No sag! Chins up! Keep smiling!" Cukor's spaniels and a stray mongrel named Connie make up the gallery. Clifton said, "Hedda, if we could get it on the screen even the Nazis would smile." . . . When Bob Hutton and Cathy Downs drew a table beside Bruce Cabot and Bob's ex, Natalie Thompson, at a cafe the other night, Bob and Natalie spoke, but a chill breeze blew all around. . . . Hear there's a chill breeze blowing thru the Van Heflin house. Can such things be?

It Makes a Happy Blending

Between Leopold Stokowski's music and Gloria Vanderbilt's paintings [which I'm told are very good indeed], these two have very happy times together. . . . But talent is no unusual commodity in this town. Joe Pasternak tells me that when he ran an ad for children who could play classical music on the piano, 220 youngsters between the ages of 6 and 14 answered the call. Every one of them could play nearly any classical number he asked for. There were 32 pianos in that Hollywood bowl scene in "Anchors Aweigh"—one of the greatest things you'll ever see on the screen—and Joe tells me those kids were not professionals. They learned thru individual effort and the backing of their school principals and the faith both teachers and parents had in them.

Laddie Stays Home This Time

Metro will have to dig up a Ladd of its own. Paramount won't lend Alan to act with Irene Dunne and Esther Williams, altho he'd love to do it. . . . Wonder why Olivia De Havilland doesn't get her own mother to play the scene Olivia is supposed to do when she reaches 40 in "To Each His Own." They're the spittin' image of each other, and Ma has developed into quite a good actress. . . . Cary Grant tells me he just can't wait to start "Notorious," with Ingrid Bergman, because it's the best script he's ever read. . . . Greer Garson's next, "Great Temptation," will have another name before it hits the screen. When I saw Casey Robinson and Arthur Hornblow lunching together, I knew Greer's picture was the subject under discussion. So I asked who Greer's leading man would be. Arthur replied, "O, she'll have two—a husband and a lover." Now that's a lucky girl any way you look at it.

Building for a Lifetime

Not all Hollywood producers live the way the Howard Hawkses do, altho eastern visitors have a happy notion they do. The Hawkses have their sprawling Connecticut type farmhouse and outbuildings scattered over many acres under the shadow of magnificent old California live oaks. They built as our pioneers did—not for a few years, but for life. This is their second ranchhouse. The first was in the heart of Beverly Hills, but they sold it to Andrea Leeds and Bob Howard.

Thru the Looking Glass

Today this beauty editor, who may be just a little touched by the heat, is going to appear to eat some of her own words. We harp constantly on the subject of good grooming, urging women to be as fastidious, as dainty as effort and beauty aids can help them to be. And, looking about us, sometimes we wonder whether some women—not many, but a few—don't go too far with the whole thing. When a woman types herself in such an artificial, highly stylized way that she looks inhuman, she's certainly defeating her own purpose.

We were reminded of this the other day when a woman we know—chic as can be—suddenly turned up with the simplest, most casual kind of a hairdress instead of the lacquered jobs she's been wearing for years. She looked astonishingly different; maybe not so smart, but suddenly her face had a sweetness that hadn't been apparent before when her coiffure was just a shade too, too stylized.

There is a happy medium between smartness and individuality. It's something for which to strive. The other day, on a bus, we sat fascinated by a woman of extraordinary grooming. Her jet black hair was piled high. Not one hair was out of place, and on top of that towering structure she'd perched some equally jet black feathers. Not so much as a wisp of these was out of place either. Her make-up was dark. Her eyebrows were of a shape and style that was striking—but completely foreign to natural lines. Her mouth was a red blob, drawn by hand. Her clothes were beautiful, as was her jewelry. But she was the most unreal looking woman we had seen in years. There was almost something eerie about the picture she made; it was restful to turn one's eyes to the dowdy but sweet faced and real looking woman who sat next to her.

A certain brittleness and vapidity is a pitfall of too much artificial grooming; it's much better to be one's self. ELEANOR NANGLE.

U. S. Will Use More British Films After War, Says Producer

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—J. Arthur Rank, Britain's foremost film producer, said today he had returned from his first visit to the United States "completely sold on that vast country and its great people" and convinced that British films could gain greater distribution there. He emphasized that British production would not attempt a slugging match with Hollywood for world markets.

The failure of British films so far to gain a really wide showing in America was not the result of discrimination, Rank said, but was due partly to lack of technical advantages and partly to lack of knowledge as to what sells well in the American market.

"If we make films that will entertain the United States public, we will get playing time," he told reporters. "They like more glamor—especially glamorizing of their women stars. We will have to meet that. It doesn't mean we will have to 'Americanize' our pictures so they will no longer be recognizable as British. But we will have to choose more 'international' subjects."

Wise Parents Do Not Neglect the Older Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Marketing is hard enough these days, if you have both your hands free, and can put your whole mind on points, prices, and shortages. But if, in addition to the marketing, you have a baby and a small child to trot along with you, it can be nerve-wracking.

Billy's mother was in this predicament. So she parked the baby's carriage outside the market, set the brake, and put Billy, age 3½, in charge.

But suddenly, trying to choose between one pound of stewing beef and a small veal cutlet, she looked around and there was Billy, playing store with the fascinating little cans of baby food on a lower shelf, the baby howling outside.

Snatching Billy forcibly by one arm, his mother jerked him along, and scolding him, ran out to her golden-hair baby girl, all done up in a blue sunbonnet. This was too much for Billy, who suddenly reached out and jerked the bonnet off the baby, who howled anew!

Poor Billy, I thought. I had a feeling that most of his days were like that, now that the baby had come—a loving cooing word for the appealing cuddly newcomer, and a scolding word for him.

Poor Billy, I thought, you must get pretty tired of it. You'd probably enjoy your small sister and be able to make her laugh and gurgle and wave her hands with delight better than any one, if you had half a chance. But with all the smiles and tender tones of voice lavished on her, somehow you don't feel like getting chummy with her, because it seems as tho she's responsible for your being on the outside, or in disgrace most of the time.

Poor Billy, I thought, you'd like to have Daddy come in and call you his big son and swing you upon his shoulder, instead of hearing Mother's recital of how naughty you've been.

Poor Billy's mother, too. She doesn't realize that she's just doubling her work and her worries by mismanaging her little first-born. Suppose she'd made the baby less of a tyrant; suppose she'd praised Billy and waved her hand companionably at Billy standing guard; suppose she's said at night, "Daddy, Billy and I took the baby shopping, and he was such a help. He watched the baby, and then we went to the new pet shop afterwards." If that was her way, life would be much happier and easier all around.

Tied-in-Knot-on-Top Hair Style Fad Won't Last, Expert Asserts

The fad for tied-in-a-knot-on-top style of hair dressing will not last six months, Max Hoefer, chairman of the board of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers association predicted here yesterday.

"The style is unbecoming and can only be worn attractively by young girls," he said. "But then young girls could even shave their heads and be pretty. The hair pulled away from the face is not kind to middle aged features."

Hoefer recalled that in the early part of the century when women wore their hair in a similar fashion baldness frequently resulted because the hair was pulled tightly in a knot to form a base for the huge pompadour.

"The hair folicles were injured," he explained. "If, however, there is no tension, no stress, there is little likelihood of damage. The lacquer used today to keep the hair up causes the hair to break, and the 'rats' used for a base interfere with normal circulation."

Green Bay, Wis., July 24—Life may not begin at 30 for athletes, but it doesn't end then, either. Before the war, I was one of a minority that maintained the popular belief an athlete was thru when he reached 30 was erroneous. I used to use as my No. 1 exhibit Link Lyman of the Bears, who at 38 was the best tackle in the National Football league.

Joe Laws

When the Packers play the College All-Stars under the lights of Soldiers' Field Aug. 30 we will have at least 10 players who never again will see 30. We will have some others who are crowding that mark. I think the fans will agree with me after it's over that these oldsters still have the drive and the speed so necessary in big league competition.

Retain Strength and Speed

The war has proved the point. Many veterans who in normal years would have retired to their scrapbooks have continued because of the man power shortage. They have pleasantly learned they still have retained the strength and speed of their younger days. Last December, in the championship game in the Polo Grounds at New York, our Joe Laws, at 33, played the greatest game of his 11 year pro career. Buckets Goldenberg, at 35, played 55 minutes of tough football in the line. Don Hutson, 31, was a 60 minute player.

Hutson has not lost one bit of his dazzling speed. This is not a careless statement, but he has been timed on the ball field and figures show it to be true. I could go on and on to prove my point. Mel Hein, at 35, playing one of his greatest games for the Giants against us in the title battle. Bronko Nagurski coming back to the Bears at 35 in 1944 and neither asking nor giving quarter on the field.

Packers Have Young Men, Too

Because it was generally accepted that an athlete, especially a football player, was on the downgrade at 30, the fellows believed it. Statistics show that athletes attain their greatest speed at 27. They will hold this for several years if they train and keep in the right frame of mind. It's strictly up to the man. I am sure that the older pro players returning from the wars will learn they still will be able to go at top speed.

The age factor, tho, will be working against us in the All-Star game. The older the athlete the longer it

MILLER HUGGINS, Ty Cobb, and many another old time baseball player often deliberately allowed pitches to hit them if it meant forcing a run across the plate or otherwise benefiting their club. . . . The practice is rare today, altho players on rival teams insist Frankie Crosetti of the Yankees still is getting away with the trick. . . . Lt. Bob Paeschke of the army air corps, former Marquette university end in football and half miler in track, is home on leave in Milwaukee and urging his friends to buy more war bonds to replace the three Flying Fortresses he crash landed after being shot down by flak. . . . In each case Paeschke and his crew made their way back to friendly territory without capture or injury. . . . Aside to Joseph V. Horan of S. President Truman shoots a snappy game of pool, or did when, as a senator, he used to drop in at Johnny Kling's billiard room in Kansas City. . . . Johnny ordered a special cue for Truman from a Chicago firm. . . . Add unusual names in baseball: Pitcher Wandel Burdette Mossor of the Portland Pacific Coast league club. . . . Bill Andrews, air force lieutenant and former star athlete at the University of Washington, was killed in action over Germany a few days before the war in Europe ended. . . . Barney Barnichol, A. A. Stagg's second string quarter back at College of the Pacific in 1944, will make his next end run against the Japs. . . . He's a marine second lieutenant on his way to join the 1st division. . . .

The Cubs were shut out only once in the first half of the 1945 season. . . . That was in their first night game at the Polo Grounds on May 16. . . . Reports are being circulated that the Cubs may train in Phoenix next spring, provided, of course, travel conditions will permit. . . . The New York Yankees are reported to have offered Larry Gilbert, Nashville manager, $40,000 for the signature of his 16 year old son, Harold Gilbert, on a baseball contract. . . . The youngster, a first baseman, is a better bet to wind up with the Cubs. . . . Fellow Yankees call Pitcher Atley Donald "Swampy." . . . Jim Bottomley, the former big league first sacker, is a gentleman farmer at Bourbon, Mo. . . . The Pacific Coast Baseball league of Mexico will open its season on Oct. 27. . . . Outfielder Lou Finney of the Red Sox was able to rejoin the club, he explains, because all the cotton is planted on his Alabama plantation. . . . Pitcher Don Black of the Athletics, who drew a 30 day suspension from Manager Connie Mack for violating training rules, made use of the time by working at a filling station.

To an Old Nun

Much of life has passed you by,
Perhaps some folks would say,
There within those cloistered walls,
Towering dim and gay.

Expending it all on others—
Nursing, teaching, tending;
To you all men were brothers.

But I think I see you sitting there
Beyond that convent wall,
Telling your beads at the twilight hour,
Remembering one and all.

Yes, the "sound and the fury" passed you by,
Just as, perhaps, they say,
But the deathless part of life is yours
Forever and a day!

NAME 11 FILLIES FOR CLEOPATRA HANDICAP TODAY

Cleopatra Field

ELEVEN 3 year old fillies have been named in the overnight list for the $25,000 added Cleopatra handicap at Washington Park today. The field, listed by post position, follows:

Horse	Wgt.	Jockey	Prob. odds
Twosy	116	D. Dodson	8-1
*Flyweight	108	A. Kirkland	8-1
†Wallflower	105	A. Bodiou	10-1
War Date	122	J. Adams	2-5
Come and Go	115	C. L. Martin	12-1
†Corina Lark	100	No boy	10-1
Donna Brand	100	J. Fitzer	20-1
*Recce	114	No boy	9-1
Stonetie	100	W. Garner	25-1
Devastating	100	No boy	15-1
Busher	126	J. Longden	7-5

*Col. C. V. Whitney entry. †Walmac farm-David Siraus entry.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

The experts are inclined to predict a two horse race today in the $25,000 added Cleopatra handicap at Washington Park, but besides the favorites, Louis B. Mayer's Busher and the Maine Chance farm's War Date, the field will be composed of nine other sharply conditioned 3 year old fillies with enviable records.

Busher, queen of last season's juvenile fillies, no doubt deserves all the backing she has. Her triumphs this season include the $50,000 Santa Margarita and the $25,000 Santa Suzana at Santa Anita, in addition to a second in the $50,000 Santa Anita derby, in which she was beaten only half a length by her former stablemate, Bymeabond, while conceding the winner much weight.

Ben Jones Has Twosy Ready

War Date's victories include the $20,000 Modesty handicap and the $15,000 Princess Doreen during the current meeting, in addition to a first in her inaugural 1945 venture at Belmont.

The fact that Ben Jones, trainer for the mighty Calumet farm, has entered the stretch running Twosy tends to equalize matters, for Jones sends out top-conditioned thorobreds and Twosy figured prominently in many juvenile stakes last year. Last Wednesday she was beaten only a head by Fighting Don in the blazing time of 1:10 2-5.

Col. C. V. Whitney's swift pair, Flyweight and Recce, will add more speed and color to the mile affair. Recce was beaten three quarters of a length by the eastern sensation, W. L. Brann's Gallorette, in June.

Thomas Piatt's Come and Go dominated the 3 year old fillies in Kentucky this spring, winning the Ashland stakes and the Kentucky Oaks.

Leavenworth Wins Playtime

Tony Skoronski and Art Fay accounted for a $86.40 daily double yesterday with H. H. Atkin's Miss Fluff [$9] and Mrs. Otto Bagley's H. M. S. Hood [$16].

The day's feature race, the $2,500 Playtime purse, went to Herbert M. Woolf's Leavenworth, ridden by Steve Brooks. Leavenworth, which had won only one previous race in two years, beat the favorite, J. K. Houssels' To Wit, by a length and a half in seven furlongs and paid $27 for a $2 ticket. Mrs. Thelma Ott's Shut Eye was third in a field of eight.

Skoronski and Billy Thompson were thrown from their mounts in the eighth race. Skoronski was taken to St. James' hospital in Chicago Heights for examination. Thompson was not injured.

The day's mutuel handle was $1,056,372.

CAROL FREESE GOLF LEADER IN ALL-AMERICAN

Scores Great 73 at Tam o' Shanter

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Carol [Babe] Freese, the slim Portland, Ore., girl who drew more than a nod from golf's handicappers when she went to the semi-finals of the Women's Western Open show last month, yesterday led the field of women's qualifiers in the All-American tourneys at the Tam o' Shanter Country club. Babe, a bespectacled 19 year old who never had been out of her home state until recently, shot a shining 73, three under par, for a one stroke edge over the other 23 non-exempt gals who earned places in the main event yesterday.

Miss Freese, whose play currently is being admired by such old hands as Byron Nelson and Lt. Ben Hogan, was extended to the finish by one of her playing partners, Peggy Kirk of Findlay, O. Miss Kirk, Rollins college graduate and a former Western semi-finalist herself, came thru with a 74.

Their efforts were, respectively, within one and two shots of the women's course record of 72, set in the second round of the 1943 tournament by Lt. Patty Berg of the marines.

The only other woman qualifier to finish in the 70s was comely Dorothy Kielty of Los Angeles, Cal. Miss Kielty, who operates a dress shop in Los Angeles after her recent discharge from the WASPS, scored a 76.

Professionals in Test Today

The week-long circus, organized in 1941 by George S. May, approaches its decisive stage today with the third and last of the preliminary rounds, an 18 hole test for 88 professionals outside the states of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan, who will argue for the last 40 places in the All-American Open.

The real business of the three 72 hole medal play duels for a total of more than $60,000 in war bonds will get under way tomorrow, with the main objective being the Open's first prize—$13,600 in bonds, with a cash equivalent of $10,200. Mr. May, with his usual fine abandon, is hurling out several extra chances for the four days of the party proper, to be conducted at 18 holes per diem from tomorrow thru Sunday. Two of these are being offered to those who can break the Open course record of 65, with $1,000 in bonds offered daily and $100 in war bonds each day for the amateur who can lower the amateur record. The women also will have their opportunity, with $250 in bonds going to any professional who can better Lt. Berg's 72, and $100 in bonds to any woman amateur who can do likewise.

Miss Townsend Wins Play-off

The women's qualifying round, involving 34 players for 24 places in the big show, resulted in another three for one play-off, as did Monday's amateur test, with three 90 shooters going an extra hole for the 24th berth offered. Lillian Townsend of Evanston was the winner over Mrs. Eddie Bush of Oak Park and Hazel Olson of Ridgemoor.

In addition to the 24 who earned their roles yesterday, eight other women stars will take part in the All-American women's event. This octet, exempt from qualifying by reason of past performances, consists of 1944 champion Betty Hicks, 1944 runner-up Dorothy Germain, Lt. Berg, Betty Jameson, Catherine Fox Park, Phyllis Otto, Jeanne Cline, and Georgia Tainter.

Penna, Dodson in Strong Field

The company of pros who will swing today would make up a nice little competition of their own on most days. Those who would earn the right to swing against Nelson, Lt. Hogan, Jim Demaret, John Bulla, Sam Snead, Sgt. Ernie Harrison, Claude Harmon, Dick Metz, Sam Byrd, Jimmy Thomson, Vic Ghezzi, Gene Sarazen, Ky Laffoon, John Revolta, et al. in the race for the rich first prize in the Open are capable of winning it themselves.

Among today's starters are Toney Penna, Mike Turnesa, Clarence Doser, Joe Kirkwood, Jimmy Gauntt, Leonard Dodson, Bill Kaiser, Teri Johnson, Barney Clark, Pfc. Otey Crisman, Pfc. Jim Milward, Orville White, Ed [Porky] Oliver, and Steve Kovach.

WHITE SOX REVEL IN LIMELIGHT OF FIRST DIVISION

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, July 24—The White Sox began today to admire themselves, not in the looking glass but in the percentage column which shows them to be among what is known as the first division elite. Just how long they can continue in this strutting role is questionable but at any rate there is nothing they can do to protect themselves, at least, not until Friday when they open a series in Detroit.

In the meantime, except for two exhibitions, they must idle away three days here, thanks to some more alleged schedule making and travel reduction.

Not Exactly Hopeless

Altho nobody regards the Sox as much more than an eventual second division finisher, they really aren't so far behind that they can definitely be tabbed hopeless. As of the moment, they are only four games from the top which in normal times would be considered close enough to be of importance to whoever was in the lead. But nobody takes James Dykes and his boys seriously because they have no power at bat.

Dykes, however, and he never puts himself out on a limb, with any of his teams, doesn't admit that any 1945 entrant has convinced him as yet. In other words, he isn't certain that about seven of the eight clubs are not in the race. Whether he means it or is merely talking for publication isn't known. As for the National league, he says the Cubs are a cinch but that could be a little Dykes' scheme to put the Grimm-Galagher duo on the spot.

SOX BEAT ARMY NINE, 6-2

Camp Kilmer, N. J., July 24 [Special]—The Chicago White Sox won an exhibition game from Camp Kilmer this afternoon, 6 to 2. Eddie Murphy, former Phillies player from Joliet, Ill., hit a two run homer for the army nine. The score:

White Sox	040	002	000	6	9	0

PVT. CORBY DAVIS TAKES JAVELIN EVENT IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 24—Middle westerners were among winners in the first of a two day track and field meet in London today. Pvt. Richard [Corby] Davis, Wilmette, Ill., threw the javelin 178 feet 11 inches to win the event by 19 feet 11 inches over his nearest opponent.

Tech. 5th Grade Horace Mamala, Hammond, Ind., won the 100 and 200 meter dashes with marks of 10.6 and 22.6 seconds, respectively.

BY EDWARD BURNS

Bob Chipman, only twice a winner previously, presided neatly yesterday at an 8 to 3 Cub victory over the Phillies in the windup of the second 1945 invasion of Wrigley field by eastern teams.

Lefty Bob yielded only two singles in the first six innings, a single in the seventh, and a double in the eighth. Then, with two out in the ninth, he eased up a bit. The Phillies got a pair of runs on a consolation double by Al Spindel after Coaker Triplett had drawn Chipman's second pass and Vance Dinges had singled.

The Cubs made one more run than hits, the main reason for this discrepancy being two well timed triples. Andy Pafko tripled in the first inning to drive in Stan Hack and Phil Cavarretta, who had drawn passes from Kewpie Barrett. In the eighth Bill Nicholson tripled after Manager Ben Chapman had loaded the bases with a pass to Chipman, a single by Hack, and a pass to Don Johnson. The walk for Johnson was the eighth free ride dished out by Philly pitchers.

Show Class Against East

The success gave the Cubs a record of 12 victories in 15 games with the Phillies this season, and 11 out of 15 in their home stand against the eastern invaders, not counting the suspended game with the Dodgers on July 20. Since the Cubs last played a western team they have taken 24 while losing seven in their matches with eastern teams, again ignoring the Brooklyn gumup, which is a suspended 10 to 4 victory for the Dodgers, with one inning to be played on Sept. 15.

This afternoon the Cubs will play the Great Lakes Bluejackets. It will be the first time many of the Cubs have looked at Bob Feller's stuff, tho Hack and Nicholson have sampled it in All-Star games.

Two Long Hits Do It

As to yesterday's game—there is not much to add to the record of Cub production other than those runs driven home by Pafko and Nicholson. However, what proved to be the winning run was scored in the seventh inning. Here's that seventh: With one out Len Merullo singled for the fourth and last hit off Barrett, and advanced on Chipman's sacrifice, one of four sacrifices laid down by the Chicagoans. Hack was given an intentional pass. Instead of assisting on an out that that would have ended a scoreless inning, Wallie Flager fumbled Johnson's grounder. The bases thus were loaded. Barrett then walked Nicholson and Cavarretta, each pass forcing an unearned run across the plate, the second one being the run the Cubs needed for the decision. Charley Sproull replaced Barrett and struck out Pafko.

MEAT SHORTAGE PROMPTS GAME LAW VIOLATIONS

BY BOB BECKER

The meat shortage is boosting game law violations in some northern states, with wild deer the species that is taking the heaviest losses from the out-of-season hunters. Michigan admits that it has a real problem trying to catch the boys who are going out after dark to get some "veal." If a game bootlegger can get a deer he's assured of a cash sale of $50 or $60 today.

When we were in northern Michigan in June the after-dark hunters were busy. You could hear the crack of a rifle after sundown as the violators shot at anything from a doe with a fawn to a young buck.

Sell Undersized Fish

Michigan also says that the price of whitefish—about 80 cents a pound at the docks—is another temptation to the violators. With that kind of money waiting, the violators will take a chance on selling undersized fish.

The trend toward longer, more open fishing regulations, and more food for the table in these days of shortages, is very noticeable, if you take a look at different states.

Anglers Can Keep Busy

Here is the latest lineup on the fishing laws which shows how fishermen can keep busy: Alabama, all year fishing except for bass; Florida, all year fishing except for bass; Georgia, no restrictions on the season for panfish; Kentucky, a 12 month season on all fish in impounded waters; Louisiana, a 12 month open season for all species except bass and crappies; Nebraska, open season the whole year on all species of game fish; Ohio, year 'round fishing on all species except trout and bass; Pennsylvania, okay to fish for panfish the entire year; Tennessee, year 'round fishing for all game fish in all TVA lakes; Texas, no closed seasons; New York, no closed season on crappies, perch, bullheads, and other species.

Evelyn Moore Eliminated in County Golf

The medalist in the women's Cook county golf tournament at Jackson Park bowed out of the title picture yesterday when Mrs. Lola Guzek of Jackson Park scored a 4 and 3 upset victory over Mrs. Evelyn Moore of Acacia Country club.

Mrs. Bernie Sick of Cog Hill, defending champion led the field in the upper half of the championship flight brack by sending to the side lines Mrs. Erwin Zeisler, unattached, 4 and 3.

Surprise of the meet was provided by 19 year old Violet Bernstein of Ravisloe who made a late appearance at the tee and qualified for the championship flight with an 88. She met Mrs. Pearl Zimmerman of Edgewater in one of the lower bracket matches, and rallied on the back nine to turn in the closest victory of the day, 1 up.

Also moving into the quarter-final bracket were Elaine Sorenson Greco, unattached, a former champion; Malieda Johnson of Jackson park, Dorothy Motley of Calumet, Selma Springer of Lincoln park, and Mildred Morrison of Jackson park. Today's pairings:

CARDS DEFEAT DODGERS, 7 TO 6; KEEP 2D PLACE

Winning Run Scored in Last of Ninth

St. Louis, Mo., July 24 (AP)—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals gained an even break in their four game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers by winning the final contest tonight in the last half of the ninth inning, 7 to 6.

Augie Bergamo pounded out his third straight single to send Marty Marion home from second with the winning run.

The Dodgers were off to a big lead as they scored six runs in the first three innings off Charlie Barrett, but George Dockins pitched shutout ball for the final six innings as the Cards came from behind to tie the score in the fifth.

CHICAGO YACHT CLUB'S CARA MIA WINS MACKINAC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 24—L. L. [Ole] Karas of the Chicago Yacht club won his seventh Mackinac race today. He sailed his 53-foot Q class sloop, Cara Mia, for nearly 64 hours in the 38th annual race sponsored by the club of which he is a member. Skipper Karas thus became the only yachtsman to win the race five times in the Universal division with the same entry.

Lively Lady, Otto Dreher's Q boat from the South Shore Yacht club at Milwaukee, took second place by a margin of 74 seconds over Falcon II., last year's winner. Lively Lady won the Mackinac in 1940 and 1941.

Bangalore Too Wins Trophy

Bangalore Too, Chicago Yacht club yawl, won the Chicago-Mackinac trophy as well as retaining the Edward M. Mills trophy for first in C class.

Blitzen, only Detroit entry in the race, was the first cruising entry to finish, crossing the finish line today only a short time before Bangalore Too. Blitzen won the Commodore George Warrington trophy for first in A class of the cruising division and was runner-up to Bangalore Too on corrected time for the division time prize.

Only light winds were blowing in the straits tonight after a short rain squadd. Twelve yachts still were out at 11 p. m.

Cara Mia was the second yacht to finish, closely following Hugo Griffin's 58-foot 10-meter class cutter Tar Baby. The two Chicago Yacht club contenders came down Mackinac Straits today against light head winds. After they crossed the finish line, 333 miles from Chicago, a steady breeze from the west arose to bring the next of the 37-boat fleet into the straits in a hurry. Cara Mia's corrected time was 63 hours, 48 minutes and 37 seconds.

Tar Baby Finishes Fast

Tar Baby, which was first to finish last year as well as 10 years ago, when it was owned by Justin Dart, hoisted its 4,200 square foot parachute spinnaker as it caught sight of Cara Mia early this morning, 15 miles ahead. The 10 meter cutter sailed up to the sloop in the fresh breeze and was two miles ahead when the big spinnaker blew out, ripping along one edge from bottom to top, nearly 80 feet.

Tar Baby's crew hoisted a smaller spinnaker and was able to maintain a lead over Cara Mia until the finish. However, Tar Baby placed seventh on corrected time.

Three supporting matches of six rounds will bring together Benny Droll, Peoria middleweight, who held Curly Denton of Cincinnati to a draw in Marigold outdoor arena on Monday, and Charley Polk Annunzio Ferraro, Milwaukee welterweight, and Tommy Jones, and Jimmy Martin, former Golden Gloves and Catholic Youth organization boxer, and Robert Weatherly, south side lightweight.

Lambeau Tells Confidence in Veteran Stars

requires him to become conditioned for the rigors of the gridiron. Fortunately, we will have more new young players than in the last several years. This should freshen up our outfit for the big game in Chicago.

We hope to field three complete teams to the All-Stars' five. The present picture shows at least 23 of our 28 veterans returning. This means we will have at least 10 rookies in uniform for the All-Stars.

Pro Champs Have Experience

The Packers have lost two ends, Ray Wehba and Harry Jacunski. Against the All-Stars our oldest player, Tackle Ade Schwammel, will make his farewell to football. There's a story in this. Ade, out of Oregon State, played in the first All-Star game, back in 1934, with the collegians. He's our oldest player, 36.

As for some of our other infirm veterans, Goldenberg, at 34, will be starting his 13th season. It will be No. 12 for Laws and the 11th for Hutson. Baby Ray, opening his eighth season is 30. Pete Tinsley, 32, has seven Packer campaigns in the books. Joel Mason begins his seventh year at 31 as does Forrest McPherson at 33. On the bo'er line are Capt. Charley Brock and Larry Craig, each 29 and each beginning his seventh season with us.

Doddering old fellows? The All-Stars will learn early in the game to respect their power, not to mention their experience!

Why Do We Emphasize QUALITY So Much?

Because, behind every El Producto we make, stands the good will and prestige born of the quality that has made El Producto the smokers' standard for real enjoyment—for years—and years—and years.

Despite war conditions, the needs of the Services and enormous homefront demand, we will never sacrifice quality for quantity. The best brands are the scarcest—so, if your dealer says "Sorry, I am temporarily out" ask again tomorrow. We are doing our utmost to distribute El Producto fairly in every territory so that no dealer is ever out of El Producto for long.

EL PRODUCTO CIGARS

Taste tells the story!

- That's why . . . . when it comes to beer . . . . so many more people, day after day, are asking for Encore.
- That's why we think that you will find Encore to be the finest beer you've ever tasted.
- That's why we simply say . . . . .

SPECULATORS IN WAR BONDS CAUSE CONCERN

Financing Methods Assure Profits

Profits made by speculators in United States war securities are causing concern to treasury officials and others charged with financing the war, Chicago and New York federal reserve bank officials said yesterday. The situation was brought into especial prominence in the 7th war loan drive when sales totaled more than 26 billion dollars against a quota of 14 billions.

The bankers believe that a substantial part of the more than 12 billion oversubscription was speculative and regard that as an inflationary tendency.

The war financing methods have created a situation in which "money wise" individuals and corporations can make handsome profits that are virtually guaranteed by the government—which means the tax payers.

Ban Lifted After Campaign

Banks are prohibited from buying bonds during a drive, but after the campaign ends the restriction is removed and they can join with insurance companies, endowment funds, corporations, and other large purchasers in bidding for war bonds. Because large investors have few places for their idle funds a ready market and high prices are assured for the government bonds.

The subscription speculator, whether an individual or corporation, is able to obtain loans at very low rates of interest. Sometimes he puts up government bonds as security. Or he borrows against his established line of bank credit.

The money he borrows at 1 per cent, or in some instances at even ⅛ per cent, is used to buy government bonds which he knows in advance soon will bring more than the original sales price, or par. The government's fiscal policies make this certain.

The three new issues of 1⅛, 2¼, and 2½ per cent bonds sold in the seventh drive, for example, quickly rose 1¼ to 1½ per cent above the government's offering price.

Dealers Profit on Certificates

Large dealers in bonds are able to make substantial profits on the popular ⅞th per cent treasury certificates. They are able to borrow from their banks at ⅛ of 1 per cent to finance purchases of the certificates which they then sell at a profit of ⅜ths per cent.

A dealer with a 100 million dollar position in treasury certificates thus may make $375,000 a year profit on the differential between the interest he receives on the certificates and the interest he pays the bank that carries them for him.

On a smaller scale a neighborhood "dollar patriot" can get a reputation for himself as a big war bond subscriber by buying $100,000 in a drive. Soon after he takes delivery of the bonds he can dump them on the market at a profit of about $1,500 [1½ per cent above par] and can repeat the performance in successive drives.

Banks Require Statement

Such speculative subscriptions to war bonds partly defeat the treasury's objective—to have the original buyers hold them and put them away. Banks require borrowers of large amounts to declare that they are not making the loans to finance speculative purchases of war securities, and reserve officials said the banks will have a large part of the responsibility for policing methods to reduce such loans.

Actually, there is nothing basically dishonest about speculative bond purchases. The treasury and reserve officials oppose them because of the inflationary atmosphere created and because they do not like to have profits made from war financing by persons who in so doing contribute nothing.

Chicago reserve officials said speculative war bond buying has been general thruout the country, altho the largest purchases in dollar volume have occurred in New York and Chicago.

One reason given for the increased buying in the 7th loan campaign was a rumor that the government planned to cut the interest rate below the 2½ per cent top in future offerings.

Bills to Curb Bureaus Get Industry's Aid

The National Association of Manufacturers yesterday announced its support of five pending congressional measures designed to prevent federal administrative bureaus from assuming authority not belonging to them and holding them accountable for their legally acquired powers.

The measures were introduced by Sen. McCarran D., Nev.] and Representatives Sumners [D., Tex.], Gwynne [R., Ia.], Walter [D., Pa.], Smith [D., Va.], and Cravens [D., Ark.], the last two collaborating on a single bill.

Termed Essential Safeguards

"All these bills have the same basic purposes," the association said. "All provide the same essential safeguards for American justice. All have been meticulously drawn so as to avoid any interference whatever with the successful prosecution of the war by excluding any military, naval, or diplomatic function from their provisions."

Asserting that the people of the country "have been waiting a long time for a brake on excesses" by office of price administration and agricultural agents, war labor board operatives, and others, the association said the five bills would provide for government by law instead of by men.

Urges Rules Only When Needed

The association said that thru the legislation congress, on behalf of the people, can say to the board, bureau, or commission:

1. Make only such specific rules as are necessary to carry out the declared intent of congress.

2. Hold hearings and give every affected party a chance to be heard before deciding on the rules.

3. Let rules be reviewed at fair hearings before independent and impartial officials.

4. Decisions shall be subject to review by the courts to protect the citizen against impairment of his rights.

LUMBER YARDS REOPEN; 50,000 IDLE IN STRIKES

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Reopening of 200 lumber yards in the Detroit area yesterday brought a step nearer the end of a labor dispute which has made more than 10,000 employes idle last Thursday. Several other strikes were settled, but spread of a walkout to nearly all the 5,000 employes at the Wright Aeronautical corporation's Wood-Ridge, N. J., plant virtually halted production of B-29 engines there. This strike also spread to the Paterson plants. More than 50,000 remained idle across the country, excluding the Detroit area lumber workers.

The lumber dispute, involving demands of the AFL carpenters district council for a closed shop and unionization of foremen, resulted in closing of yards by dealers in Wayne, Macomb, and Oakland counties. A dealer spokesman termed the closing "management's strike against their employes."

Settlement of a strike of more than 4,000 employes of the Joseph E. Seagram and Sons company, distilleries in four states appeared near.

Chromic Acid, Used in Car Trim Plating, Still Scarce

Detroit, Mich., July 24 (AP)—The WPB said today that chromic acid, used in chrome plating of decorative trim on automobiles, continues in short supply and that relaxation in the allocation policy of the chemical may not be expected for several months.

People and Events

Benjamin B. Bryan Jr., 51, Lake Forest resident and former Chicago securities and commodities broker, has been honorably discharged from the United States Coast Guard after almost three years of service. Bryan, who had difficulty entering the service because of his age, served in the Pacific aboard a patrol frigate of the 7th fleet. His ship's chief functions were antisubmarine and antiaircraft patrol and convoy duty. One of his sons, Ben III, 27, staff sergeant with the 7th army, was killed in action in Germany, April 25.

Benjamin B. Bryan Jr.

James E. Boudreau, until recently a lieutenant colonel with the sixth service command and former Chicago division manager of the Ethyl corporation, has been appointed Ethyl's central sales manager. His area extends from Ohio to Montana, inclusive. Ethyl manufactures antiknock compounds for gasoline.

Harold J. Buist has been elected chairman of the board and president of Allied Mills. Executive vice president and treasurer since 1941, Buist succeeds the late John B. DeHaven who died June 25. Buist has been with the company since it was founded in 1929.

Tropic-Aire, Inc., Chicago, peace time manufacturer of automobile heaters and other products, has been awarded a star for its army-navy E pennant.

Northwest Air Lines has promoted R. O. Bullwinkel from presidential assistant in charge of traffic to the new position of vice president in charge of traffic.

SHELL UNION OIL PROFIT LARGER IN SIX MONTHS

Net income of Shell Union Oil corporation and subsidiaries for the first half of 1945 amounted to $16,957,487, or $1.35 a share, compared with $14,507,369, or $1.08 a share a year earlier, the company reported yesterday.

R. G. A. Van der Woude, president, said that the companies in the Shell Union group have provided out of income a reserve for post-war adjustments and other contingencies at the annual rate of 10 million dollars for the last two years. No additions have been made so far this year, but will be considered at the close of 1945.

CUT SYNTHETIC RUBBER PRICES ON SOME TYPES

Wilmington, Del., July 24 (AP)—Price reductions averaging 30 per cent in several types of neoprene synthetic rubber latex were announced today by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., which said additional quantities of the materials will be available for civilian uses.

The new price schedule, effective July 26 with shipments leaving the Deepwater, N. J., plant, brings the principal neoprene latex, known as type 571, down to 25 cents a pound in tank car lots or 28 cents in drums. Price cuts on other types range from 24 to 33 per cent.

Disabled Vets Show Skill in Factory Jobs

Quincy, Mass., July 24 [Special]—"Disabled veterans make good workmen—all they need is a chance to show what they can do," Maj. Douglass Yule, one of the owners of Yule Industries, Inc., said today after nearly three months of hiring, training, and working with handicapped veterans.

Yule Industries, which repairs and rebuilds various types of internal combustion engines, was incorporated last March by Maj. Yule, formerly of Detroit, Mich., and Lt. Burl Harrison, formerly of Chicago, both of whom were disabled in service and are on an inactive status. It opened for business May 1.

Planned in Hospital

While patients in the army's Percy Jones hospital at Battle Creek, Mich., Yule and Harrison worked out plans for their factory and decided to hire war veterans only, preferably those who had suffered some disability while serving their country. They have 20 veterans working for them now and eventually plan to have 260.

"The main trouble with disabled veterans," said Maj. Yule, "is that they want to do a full day's work too soon. They're too anxious to get on the job. Under our setup we give them a period of training before putting them to work."

The major said jobs are adjusted to the capabilities of the men hired. Salaries range from 75 cents to $1.50 an hour. Most of the men now working have been hired thru the United States employment service, he said. Others have applied in person.

"We have more work on hand than we can take care of," Maj. Yule said. "We were delayed in getting machinery, but it's coming in fast now and we expect to enlarge our working force steadily."

Yule and Harrison said they financed their enterprise thru their own savings and loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and business men.

Injured in Accident

Yule suffered a fall at Camp McCoy, Wis., and developed a brain abscess that caused a paralysis of his left arm and left leg. He was at Percy Jones hospital from May, 1943, to February, 1944.

Harrison was with the 1st armored division in North Africa and was shot thru the right leg April 30, 1943, while leading a patrol in Tunisia. He crawled into a wheat field and lay there for two days and nights without food or water.

While trying to crawl back to his lines, he was captured by the Germans. He was taken to Tunis where German doctors amputated a leg infected with gangrene. Eight days later he was freed by British troops who entered the town.

WIDER RAILROAD BENEFITS, WAGE INCREASE ASKED

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP).—Increased security benefits for railroad workers were urged today to support the country's economy and to avoid dependence on charity.

Labor representatives testified at a senate interstate commerce subcommittee hearing on a measure to liberalize retirement annuities, unemployment compensation, and disability benefits for railroad employes. It also would provide sickness and survivor benefits and would increase contributions by both employers and employes by 1¼ per cent.

Demand Wage Boosts

Cleveland, O., July 24 (AP).—Demands for 25 per cent wage increase and adjustments in several working agreements are being filed by the five railroad brotherhoods with all railroads, a spokesman for the groups said today.

Sherwin-Williams to Pay 75 Cent Extra Dividend

Directors of Sherwin-Williams company yesterday declared an extra dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock with the regular disbursement of 75 cents. These payments will bring the total dividends for the fiscal year to $3.75.

POST-WAR AIR OUTLOOK HOLDS JOBS FOR VETS

Predict Vast Gains in Traffic

[This is the 16th article in a series outlining opportunities for returning war veterans.]

BY ANTHONY WIRRY

The country's commercial air lines, with prospects of a large volume of post-war business from an increasingly air minded public, will offer attractive job opportunities for veterans, especially the younger army and navy trained air men.

Excluding the traffic over the three North Atlantic routes authorized recently for American lines by the civil aeronautics board, the country's estimated two dozen air lines expect to carry about 20 million passengers annually within two or three years after the end of the war, compared with 3.8 million in 1941.

Plan Equipment Spending

To criss-cross the country with domestic routes and link American cities with other continents, the United States air transport companies plan an estimated expenditure of 750 million dollars for new equipment in the next five years. It is expected 3,000 new domestic airports will be added to the 3,000 already in use. In Illinois the outlook is for 170 in the next 10 years.

Estimates of the number of planes needed for the projected post-war expansion range from 1,000 to 5,000. Taking the lower number and allotting 60 workers to each plane, the war man power commission predicts the industry-wide labor force will be about 60,000, or about triple the 22,000 employed in 1942. If the higher figure is attained, the work force will reach about 300,000.

Thru the adoption of four engine planes, one of which flew last year from Burbank, Cal., to Washington, D. C., in 6 hours and 58 minutes, the air carriers are expected to provide improved service, additional schedules, and reduced fares which will open a vast new field in domestic and overseas air travel.

Increase World Travel

Because of the increased speeds, millions of persons who formerly could not consider trips abroad in the customary two week vacations, suddenly will become world travelers, it was said.

Among the companies which have prepared for post-war expansion and marked a specific place in it for war veterans is United Air Lines with headquarters in Chicago.

United contemplates spending 52 million dollars for equipment and ground facilities and a pay roll of approximately 18,000 persons, compared with approximately 8,000 at present.

Room for Vets Ample

"Obviously such an increase will leave ample room for the reëmployment of United's personnel on military duty," said R. F. Ahrens, vice president in charge of personnel. "In addition the company intends to employ hundreds of ex-service men who entered military life directly from schools and colleges."

Ahrens said the company already has on its pay roll 400 veterans.

"We are very pleased with the performance of these men," Ahrens said. "Their training in military service has been sound and their qualifications are excellent."

Tax Refunds Held Real Aid to Industry for Reconversion

Cash refunds to corporations under the carry back and post-war refund provisions of the internal revenue code should go a long way toward removing the danger that reconversion may be impeded by shortages of cash, Roy Blough, director of tax research for the treasury department, told a Chicago Association of Commerce war problems school in the Palmer House yesterday.

Should the war end this year tax refunds under the carry back, post-war refund, and amortization deductions may amount to as much as 5½ billion dollars, he said. Blough was unable to attend and his talk was read by Gordon Keith, head of the treasury department's business tax unit of the division of tax research.

Firms Most in Need to Get Most

"This amount may appear small in comparison with the 44 billion dollars of cash and government securities currently estimated to be held by corporations alone, but the importance of these tax refunds is not wholly a matter of their aggregate size," he said. "For the most part the corporations and individual business men who will receive this cash will be those who are faced with the most serious reconversion problems. It is in terms of the needs of such firms that the importance of these refunds ultimately will be demonstrated."

The purpose of the carry backs was to insure business men against the possibility that they would be required to pay high war time taxes on illusory income, he said. The operation of the unused credits carry back and the loss carry back is much the same. They are applied first to the second preceding and next to the first preceding year.

May Average 5 Year Period

If credits or losses more than offset the excess profits or net taxable income of these two preceding years, the unused portion then may be carried forward against the excess profits or income of two succeeding years. Thus the carry backs and carry forward together may permit an averaging of income or of income and losses over as long as five years, Blough said.

The big advantage of the carry back method over other methods lies in the fact that the carry backs do not require the specific identification and segregation of war induced costs from other post-war costs, he asserted.

The tax adjustment act of 1945, recently passed by congress, remedies several defects in the original plan in the revenue bill of 1942, Blough said. Under the provisions of the 1945 act business men in carrying back losses and unused excess profits credits can be certain that their claims will be acted upon and cash refunds made within 90 days after filing of the claim.

Television Set 'Temporary,' Says Maker

The purchase of a television set in the early post-war years will be a temporary investment because every set will be obsolete in a short time, Comdr. E. F. McDonald Jr., president of Zenith Radio corporation, told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday.

Television is still unsound economically, and "is just around the corner for general use for the stock salesman only," said McDonald.

He attacked the federal communications commission decision which assigned to television the 50 megacycle wave band from which he said FM [frequency modulation] was moved because of apprehension over interference for FM.

Not Enough Room, He Says

"Anybody who buys a television set for the 50 megacycle band should know that it is only a temporary assignment," he asserted. "The reason for that is not only that if there is interference down there it will affect television more than it would FM, but also there isn't room in the 50 megacycle band to accommodate television after it once gets going."

Zenith has a backlog of 73 million dollars in government contracts, and has received orders from dealers totaling 57 million dollars for civilian radios.

New Line Is Designed

Design of a new line of radios has been completed and production on civilian goods will be under way "60 days from the day we get the release and materials," he said.

Directors reëlected all officers, and two new offices were created. Harvey Tullo, director of purchases, was elected vice president in charge of purchasing, and Sam Kaplan, credit manager and assistant treasurer, was elected assistant vice president.

ILLINOIS RANKS HIGH IN OBTAINING PATENTS; DOUBLE U. S. AVERAGE

New York, July 25 (AP)—Illinois is one of the most inventive states in the country, R. J. Dearborn, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers' committee on patents, said today.

The association said a survey disclosed that residents of Illinois take out almost twice as many patents per million population as the national average. Dearborn attributed Illinois' high rank chiefly to the large total of industrial research laboratories in the state. On a per capita basis, Illinois is exceeded by Delaware, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Michigan.

In the second quarter, Illinois received 638 patents, about 10 per cent of the national total of 6,253.

WPB Authorizes Increase in Truck Trailer Output

Detroit, Mich., July 24 (AP)—The WPB today authorized production of an additional 8,064 commercial truck trailers in the second half of 1945, increasing the total number to be produced with WPB assistance to 18,696. In addition, 8,804 have been authorized on an unrated basis.

G. M. PLANS BIG RESEARCH UNIT NEAR DETROIT

Technical Center to Cover 350 Acres

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, yesterday announced plans for construction of a new "technical center" just outside of Detroit to provide facilities for the corporation's research, advanced engineering, and styling and process development.

Charles F. Kettering, research director.

Terming the center "an entirely new concept of industrial research," Sloan said it will consist of several buildings grouped around a central esplanade within which will be a seven acre lake. The center will be erected on property 1½ miles long and about ½ mile wide, covering approximately 350 acres north of the Detroit city limits.

Cost to Be Substantial

Construction will begin as soon as clearance on materials and labor can be obtained from government agencies. Sloan said the project's cost would be substantial, and it should be viewed "as an investment in industrial progress."

Sources close to G. M. have estimated its cost at 20 million dollars.

Discussing the center's objectives, Sloan said the goal is more and better things at lower prices, thus expanding job opportunities and contributing to an advancing standard of living.

"Modern science is the real source of economic progress," he asserted. "It has brought within the reach of more and more people, more comforts and conveniences, more leisure, and more and better job opportunities. There can be no ceiling on

STOCKS CLOSE NEARLY EVEN IN RALLY ATTEMPT

Steels and Motors Rise; Dealings Slow

New York, July 24 (AP)—Stocks showed a tendency to steady today after yesterday's general decline and managed to close nearly even. Steels and motors led the recovery attempt, but dealings were the slowest in more than three months and losses outnumbered gains.

Some buying was based on the belief a technical revival may be due, but many trimmed accounts more or awaited possible developments in the Pacific and news from Potsdam and the British elections.

Prices were highest in the morning, with subsequent let-downs and a stiffening of quotations near the close. Dealings totaled only 640,000 shares.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was unchanged at 64.2. Of 810 issues registering, 332 were down, 263 up, and 215 unchanged.

Among favorites, Pacific Tin edged to another new high for 1945. United States Steel rose ¾, Bethlehem ¾, Chrysler 1, and General Motors ¼. Pan American Airways again was the liveliest issue, recovering to gain 1¼, but American Airlines dropped 3.

BONDS ARE IRREGULAR

New York, July 24 (AP)—The bond market was irregular today with opposite trends at times in various loans of the same company. On the average, rails were unchanged. The industrial and utility averages each lost a minor fraction and foreign bonds moved ahead slightly. The low-yields were backward. United States government loans held steady. Dealings again were quiet.

CHICAGO STOCKS MIXED

Prices were mixed on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday and turnover was 27,000 shares. Among more active stocks were Commonwealth Edison and Chicago corporation common, unchanged; Utah Radio, down ¼, up ¼; New York Central, down ¼, and Wisconsin Bankshares, off ⅝.

British to Ease Controls on Aluminum, Magnesium

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—British government controls on raw and prefabricated aluminum and magnesium will be relaxed Aug. 8. The licensing of raw aluminum users and magnesium fabricators will continue but operations will be almost unrestricted.

MIDLAND UTILITIES

Please tell me what are the principal assets of the reorganized Midland Utilities and Midland Realization companies.—M. L.

Midland Utilities' principal holding is 2,154,395 shares, or 98.76 per cent, of Northern Indiana Public Service company's common stock. It also owns Indiana Service corporation notes for which it would receive 3 million dollars if the reorganization of that company is carried out along the lines proposed by the management but not yet approved by the securities and exchange commission. Another asset is a $2,500,000 note of Midland Realization.

In the reorganization plan of the old Midland companies, the net assets of the new Midland Utilities were estimated at a maximum of $18,536,664, or $12.36 a share on the company's 1,500,000 shares. However, higher estimates are now made by La Salle st. analysts using the recent bid prices of about $11 a share for Northern Indiana common.

This would give an indicated market value of about $23,698,000 for Midland Utilities' holdings of this stock. On this basis, analysts place a valuation of a little under 30 millions for all of Utilities' assets, or nearly $20 a share on Utilities capital stock. However, quotations for Northern Indiana are based on a very small volume of trading, for none of Utilities' holdings have come on the market.

C. & O. ORDERS 2 STREAMLINERS FOR PEACE USE

The Chesapeake and Ohio railway has ordered two streamlined stainless steel trains to be put in service after the war between Washington, D. C., and Cincinnati, O., Carl E. Newton, president, said yesterday. Running time is expected to be 12 hours or less.

The service will be operated at minimum fares, he said. Powering the trains will be coal burning steam turbine electrically driven locomotives, three of which are under construction. The trains will be built in the Philadelphia plant of Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company.

RYE AND WHEAT FUTURES CLIMB ⅞ TO 2⅝ CENTS

Wheat and rye futures rebounded yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after an easy start and closed near top levels of the day. Rye gained 2¼ to 2⅝ and wheat ⅞ to 1¼ cents a bushel. A lively inquiry for new crop rye, and reports that the government was continuing to purchase hard winter wheat in the southwest stimulated buying.

Corn finished unchanged to ⅛ higher, and barley rose ⅛ to 1⅛ cents. Oats were weak, declining ⅛ to ⅜.

Mexico was said to be in the market for 3½ million bushels of wheat and France for 3 million bushels. Official figures indicated that French import needs may run as high as 75 million bushels because of a crop of only 183 million bushels, compared with 256 million in 1944 and a five year pre-war average of 300 million bushels.

Corn Shorts Are Problem

Dry weather in parts of the Canadian northwest spring wheat belt helped along the upturn in futures, as did a revival in the shipping demand, sales aggregating 150,000 bushels or more.

Directors of the board of trade were confronted with the problem of what action to take with regard to prospective large defaults on corn for July delivery. When trading started yesterday uncompleted futures contracts totaled 7,880,000 bushels with almost no corn available for delivery. The board penalized shorts in May contracts 1¼ cents a bushel for failure to deliver the grain.

Wheat and Oats Ample

Uncompleted July contracts for 662,000 bushels of rye, 1,087,000 bushels of wheat, 866,000 bushels of oats, and 145,000 bushels of barley were outstanding at the close of business Monday and can be settled only by delivery of the grain. After the close yesterday tenders of 25,000 bushels of wheat, 171,000 bushels of oats, and 273,000 bushels of rye were made on July contracts.

Shorts have until July 30 to tender the grain, and technically will not be in default until then. Wheat and oats available for delivery were reported ample.

T. W. A. Passenger Miles Top Year Ago by 62 Pct.

Transcontinental and Western Air operated 228,805,759 revenue passenger miles in the first six months of 1945, an increase of 62.1 per cent over a year earlier, C. E. McCollum, general manager of the central region, reported yesterday on the basis of preliminary figures. In June, T. W. A. operated 49,909,898 revenue passenger miles, 53.9 per cent more than in June, 1944.

opportunity if science continues to move forward."

Will Work with Colleges

Plans for establishing an educational service at the center were told by Charles F. Kettering, vice president and director of research.

"We expect to coöperate with the educational institutions in the development of men especially suited for the various kinds of work at the technical center," he said. "Because necessity requires G. M. to develop special facilities and instrumentation, we propose to make these available to a selected number of students in their post-graduate work as well as to interested members of the faculties who may wish to spend some months with us for the purpose of intensive study on a particular subject and to exchange knowledge and experience."

C. E. Wilson, president, said the activities being moved to the center will have no direct product responsibility for any of the manufacturing divisions' products. Each of the corporation's divisions will retain it own product research and engineering departments.

Five Buildings Planned

Composing the center will be the administration building, with an approximate 1,000 foot frontage and housing an auditorium seating 1,200 persons; the advanced engineering buildings for special products studies; the styling section building where full scale models will be designed; the process development building for the study of production processes, and the research laboratories building.

The latter, one of the largest in the group, will house all the facilities now located in the research building adjoining the G. M. building in Detroit. The center will not take over any of the functions of the G. M. proving grounds in Milford, Mich., Phoenix, Ariz., and Miami, Fla., or the G. M. Motors institute in Flint, Mich. Sloan said extensive improvements in the Milford properties are planned.

BUTLER'S SALES RISE 2.76 PCT. IN FIRST HALF YEAR

Net sales of Butler Brothers in the first half of 1945 totaled $57,432,702, an increase of 2.76 per cent above the $55,888,194 a year earlier, the company said yesterday.

Net profit was $924,206, or 58 cents a share, compared with $561,443, or 31 cents a share, in the first six months of 1944.

NEW RAIL DINER OF SELF-SERVICE TYPE DESIGNED

A new dining car which the company described as a "sort of smorgasbord of the rails" will be built for post-war travel, Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company announced yesterday. The car, to be known as the "grillroom," will not be a substitute for present diners, but rather a supplement to them.

It will seat 50 persons, compared with 36 to 48 in most conventional diners. Tables for two to four persons will be placed along the sides, ends, and in the center of the car. Two food bars will be in the middle of the car so that passengers can serve themselves a quick snack or a leisurely full meal. The kitchen will be between the food bars.

ANDERSON SETS WHEAT AND RYE 1946 CROP GOALS

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson announced today that the national planting goal for the 1946 wheat crop has been set at 68,875,000 acres, compared with 68,808,000 acres planted for harvest this year. The 1946 rye goal was set at 2,572,000 acres, compared with 2,096,000 planted for harvest this year.

The goals serve merely as a guide for farmers in planning future operations. They were based on recommendations of state farm production goals committees. Goals for other crops and commodities will be announced later.

MORGENTHAU SIGNED TRILLION DOLLARS OF CURRENCY AND BONDS

Washington, D. C., July 24 (AP)—The signature of Henry Morgenthau Jr. appeared on more than a trillion dollars worth of paper money and bonds during the 11½ years he was secretary of the treasury.

Treasury records show the signature has been on about 13 billion 619 million pieces of currency with face value of about 64 billion 986 million dollars, and about 1 billion 291 million United States securities with face value of about 1 trillion 163 billion dollars.

Treasury officials said the exact amount is unknown because plates bearing Secretary Woodin's signature remained in production in 1934 until the Morgenthau plates could be prepared. Morgenthau's signature will continue on currency and bonds until plates bearing the name of Fred M. Vinson are ready.

National Tea Sales Climb in 4 Weeks, Off for Year

National Tea company yesterday reported sales were $7,994,372 in the four weeks ended July 14, an increase of 2.1 per cent from the $7,829,639 a year ago. Sales this year have totaled $51,913,248, a decrease of 2.35 per cent from the $53,161,781 in the corresponding 1944 period.

NORTH WESTERN GAINS

The North Western railway reported freight loadings in the week ended July 21 increased 1,026 cars from a year earlier, and 540 cars from the preceding week.

WOMAN SEEKS TO BLOCK ALTON ISSUE OF BONDS

Mrs. Amalia L. Feeley, Chicago, who was awarded a $3,750 personal injury judgment against the Alton railroad last year, has filed objections to the road's petition for authorization of a bond issue.

As a member of the Terminal railroad association, operator of the St. Louis Union depot, the Alton filed a petition in federal district court Monday for permission to seek interstate commerce commission approval of a bond issue of $40,312,000 to retire old bonds of the association.

Frederick J. Bertram, Mrs. Feeley's attorney, said that altho 14 other railroads belong to the association, the Alton's participation in the bond issue as a guarantor makes it liable for full payment of interest and principal. This makes the road insolvent and jeopardizes the rights of Mrs. Feeley because the possibility of recovery on the judgment is impaired, Bertram said.
